SAY YUGOSLAVIA MOST APT PERIL POINT FOR WAR

Survey Indicates Red Attack There Would Setoff World Hostilities

WAR-BY-INCIDENT COULD REPLACE 'HALF-PEACE'

By John M. Hightower

Washington, Feb. 10.—(AP)—A survey of top-level estimates on the danger of a new outbreak of war this spring disclosed today the following highly authoritative conclusions:

1. Yugoslavia is the peril point. A Soviet-Communist attack there would set off spreading hostilities that would almost certainly engulf other nations in World War III.

2. The U. S. should do what it properly can to strengthen Yugoslavia and discourage an attack either this spring or later. The problem of what to do is now under pressing consideration here and in consultation with Britain, France and Marshall Tito's government at Belgrade. One good bet is that Tito eventually will get military supplies from the western powers.

3. The chances are that despite the dangers in the Yugoslav situation general war will not break out this spring because Russia is not ready. Some high officials here believe Russia will not take a serious risk of war even during 1952.

4. Though the odds are in favor of maintaining the present half-peace, there is still a danger of war-by-incident. The Soviet block countries have been stepping up their propaganda against Yugoslavia; evidently a new period of nerve war is opening. Tensions and tempers grow and these, with the coming of spring, create an explosive situation.

5. On the peace side of the ledger are two developments. One is the prospect for a Big Four foreign ministers' meeting this spring, indicating the great powers will fight on the diplomatic rather than military front. The other is growing hope for a settlement in Korea now that the Chinese Communists have found out they probably can't win.

These questions of war or peace always get a cautiously modified answer from Washington officials in this vein. "I don't think the Russians will try anything very big but you never can tell." Nevertheless at the highest levels of the government there appears strong confidence that the U. S. and its allies will get the time they need to rearm.

Homestead Papers Ready For Signing

Homestead exemptions and city school tax exemptions will be available for citizens to sign starting Monday, and continuing through April 15 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., said Bert Coverdale, assessor.

Coverdale stated that upon signing state and parish exemptions the Monroe school tax will be included, consequently enabling the signer not to have to go to the city hall.

"This is the first time the policy of signing city school tax exemptions, combined with those of parish and state, has been held in the assessor's office in the Ouachita parish court house," said Coverdale.

People living in rural sections will have their exemption papers brought to their homes by county deputies, said the assessor.

The exemption papers are prepared and all the taxpayer had to do is come in and sign.

FIRE RAGES IN MICHIGAN STATE OFFICE BUILDING

A wild and destructive fire burns beyond control in a state office building at Lansing, Michigan's capital city. At the time this picture was made, the flames had been roaring unchecked for nearly 20 hours. Damage has already been estimated at $4,000,000, and much of the state government's services were crippled. Firemen from five cities are fighting the flames in 10 below zero weather. (AP Wirephoto).

22 PRISONERS IN ALABAMA ESCAPE

40-Man Posse Launch Search In Patrol Cars, Air Plane

Atmore, Ala., Feb. 10.—(AP)—A posse of 40 officers, in a dozen highway patrol cars and a plane launched a search today for 22 convicts who escaped from a temporary prison building.

The break was discovered at daybreak.

Warden S. W. Hixon said the escapees, all white, included one kidnapper and a number of men with robbery and burglary records. No murderers were listed.

The prisoners kicked planks from the wall of the building last night and made their way along some ditches dug in connection with a new building project. Seventy-five men refused to join the break.

The main prison barracks was destroyed by fire in February, 1949.

Warden Hixon said he did not connect the escape with the series of recent fires at Kilby Prison

'Toy Tide' To Europe

Philadelphia, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Pier 38 south in Philadelphia is packed to the rafters today with thousands of cartons awaiting shipment to very important European citizens.

These do not contain the guns and other death-dealing equipment such as that pouring off other American piers into foreign lands.

These boxes contain toys. They are toys collected during the American Legion's second annual nation-wide "Tide of Toys" campaign which ended Jan. 20. They will be distributed to orphans and other children designated as "war victims" throughout Europe.

This year, unlike last, Spain's children, too, will receive toys.

The more than 8,000 cartons contain toys from children in Merriam, Kans., in Chicago, Ill., in Dallas, Tex.—in nearly every city and village across the nation.

There are games ,toy trucks, wagons and skates. The legion forbids toy guns, battleships, bombers and other toys which denote militarism, since, it says, the aim of the drive is to foster friendship among the world's young, and build towards world peace.

Special ceremonies will mark the sailing of the M. S. Jessie Maersk, the 10,000 ton Danish liner which will leave with the first shipment of toys Monday—Lincoln's birthday. Toys it will carry are earmarked for the Netherlands, Luxemburg, the U. S. zone of Germany, and French occupied zone of that country.

Altogether a total of 12 boatloads of toys are expected to be sent.

Negligent Auto Drivers Warned

The Monroe Police Traffic department announced yesterday that officers would be on a close watch out for speeders, red light and stop sign runners.

Statistics prove that these minor traffice violations are direct causes of many major accidents. Motorists do not realize that merely exceeding the designated speed in a zone and running red lights and stop signs are hazards not only to themselves, but to all concerned, said traffice officers.

All motorists in the city are hereby warned that officers will be on duty 24 hours a day to apprehend violators.

Titoist Movement In Europe Poses Serious Problem For Kremlin

By William L. Ryan
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Titoism has provoked a raging fever in the body of European communism in the past year. Despite vast and often bloody purges, the Tito rebellion is on the upsurge, and Moscow is reacting with frenzied rage.

The Kremlin looks upon Titoism as a malignant disease. Such a disease can kill the unity that welded the European Communist front after World War II. If it becomes epidemic—and there are signs of this now—it can push Stalinism back to the borders of Soviet Russia.

The swift rate of Titoism's spread in the last twelve months split the ranks of the party in Italy. It dug deep into the German and French parties. Behind the iron curtain it aroused such an atmosphere of suspicion as to become a permanent center of tension.

Titoism in essence means national communism independent from the dictates of Moscow. It may go down in history as one of the most significant events of the 20th century. The Great Heresy may be the Achilles heel of the Monolithic rule of Stalinism—the brand of communism dictated and severly controlled throughout the world by the Kremlin.

Purge has followed upon purge. The process of continuing, and at this writing it seems it will never let up. The audacious attempt of a small clique of Russian Bolsheviks to assert abolutist rule over so vast an area has boomeranged to such an extent that Moscow finds it difficult to know whom to trust.

The party in Czechoslovakia is in a turmoil. The party in Germany is engaged in the greatest purge of its history. There's an indication of sickness in the party in France. There is an unceasing witch hunt in progress in Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and Poland. In all the satellites the Russians have found it necessary to move in men from Moscow to take the reins of economic and military affairs and insure the Kremlins predominance.

In East Germany and all the satellite countries, Titoism has risen to such an extent that it has become necessary to threaten deviationists with death. Each satellite, East Germany included, obediently has adopted a "law for preservation of peace, which in fact is a law for war—war on all elements endangering the Moscow rule. The greatest of these elements is Titoism. Soviet Russia itself soom will have such a law, wielding the death threat over any who may be tempted to stray from the strict politburo line.

In East Germany the new absolute boss of the Soviet zone "Republic," Walter Ulbright, has announced that for the next six months the biggest purge in the party's history will be carried out, examining in detail the private lives of each of the 1,200,000 members of the party. Any who have any connection with Yugoslavia, past or present, will be thrown out, or worse. Any who have any previous western connections will betweeded out. All suspected of placing the interests of Germany above those of the U.S.S.R.—all these are "deviationists," "opportunists" or "nationalist diversionists."

The East German politburo is sending out 4,300 party commissions to hunt down the undesirables.

In West Germany many thousands—perhaps as many as 50,000—of Communists have deserted or been expelled in the past 18 months or so. As many as 100 top-ranking Communists have been discarded, suspended or demoted. The leadership, itself pretty shaky, has called for an intensified purge of Trotskyists and Titoists. The words are synonymous now.

In Italy the Communist pot is bubbling fiercely. At least eight top ranking party leaders of the "Rednorth" have defected to Titoism in the past few weeks. They could not stomach the Communist precept that the interests of Russia must come before those of Italy, even in an armed invasion.

Nowhere in all the satellite countries is Titoism so rampant as in Czechoslovakia, which even now is witnessing a Communist housecleaning.

There have been wholesale dismissals, trials, imprisonments and purges in Czechoslovakia, occurring with monotonous regularity. Moscow today is apparently taking a strong hand in directing all phases of Czech life. Even President Kelment Gottwald has admitted in public statements that Titoism is rampant.

Bulgaria has had dozens of spy trials of Titoists ever since the departure of Georgi Dimitrov, premier and Communist hero who went to Moscow ill, "for treatment," and came back in a fancy coffin.

Poland was the scene of a wide purge of the army and the party to rout Titoists.

The purge in Hungary started in January 1950, still is going on with the party snapping the whip against right wing (Titoist) elements and taking further steps to isolate the country completely from the west. There are wholesale arrests in all walks of life. The army has been purged.

A purge of the central committee began a year ago in Romania and three have been a series of spy trials ever since. The party and government have been reorganized on Soviet lines.

And when the big purge began

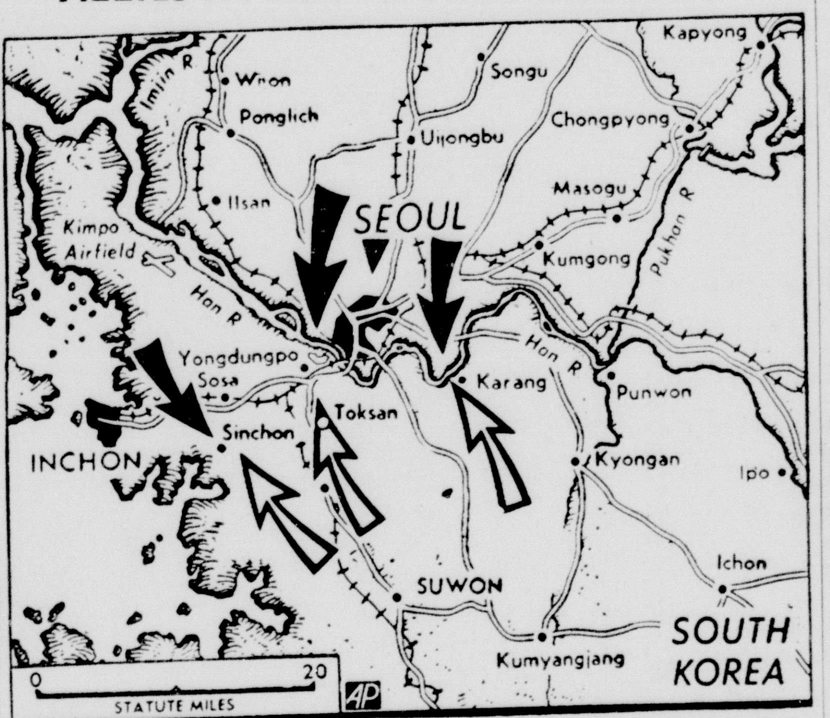
ALLIES AT HAN RIVER NEAR SEOUL



Open arrows locate approximate areas in which three Allied columns heavily armored have punched through Chinese Communist defenses south of Seoul, Korea. On the eastern flank, one column reached the Han river at Karang. On the main road to Seoul, U. N. units captured Toksan and sent patrols to within one and a half miles of Yongdungpo. On the western, an Allied patrol stabbed to within six miles of Inchon, the port of Seoul. The shelling was ordered by Lt. Col. W. F. Cathrae of Eustis, Florida. (AP Wirephoto Map).

POUND SEOUL

Announced Allied Objective Is To Slaughter Chinese Forces

GROUND GAINS TERMED SECOND IN IMPORTANCE

By Robert Eunson

Tokyo, Sunday, Feb. 11. — (AP) — Allied artillery set huge fires in Seoul last night and early today in a furious artillery barrage across the Han river while a South Korean patrol felt out Red resistance inside the old Korean capital.

American, Turkish and South Korean troops of the U. S. third and 25th divisions watched the fireworks from the snowy south banks of the Han. They awaited orders they expected would send them to attack the city they had abandonded to the Chinese Communists Jan. 4.

In three swift, sure blows Saturday, these weary, dirt-caked veterans of the U. S. Eighth army had captured Seoul's industrial suburb of Yongdungpo, Kimpo Airfield, 15 miles northwest of the capital, and Inchon port, 22 miles southwest of Seoul.

A South Korean republican patrol of the 15th division entered Seoul itself late Saturday through the night, but the announced allied objective still was not the capture of Seoul or any other point. Instead, it was the slaughter of Chinese and North Korean Red troops.

This was being accomplished. The official estimate of Red dead and wounded was about 65,000 from the start of the allied offensive Jan. 25 through Friday, Feb. 9. Saturday's toll was still to be added.

After fleeing hastily and with scarcely a shot before the allied advance Saturday, the Reds inside Seoul Saturday night fired artillery and mortars south across the Han. This touched off the tremendous allied artillery response.

An American intelligence officer said it was believed the Chinese had fled northward, leaving to the North Korean Communists what-

Lone Tree, Ia., Feb. 10. —(AP)— An airforce B-25 twin-engined bomber crashed and burned on a farm near here today and first reports listed the toll as three dead and three injured.

The CAA at Moline, Ill., said the plane carried RBR men and that it reported everything "okay" as it passed westbound over Moline about 10 minutes before the crash.

Witnesses said one engine appeared to be on fire just before the crash. Four crewmen were seen to bail out but one apparently was killed in the fall.

The pilot, a Lt. Kollesar (first name and home town not immediately available) and two other injured men from the plane were hospitalized in nearby Iowa City, Ia.

The CAA said the plane was bound for Cheyenne, Wyo. its number was listed as 0389.

Italy To Offer Five Divisions

Rome, Feb. 10—(AP)—Italy decided today to offer Gen. Eisenhower five divisions instead of three and raised her voice in protest against the four-year-old peace treaty that limits her own armament.

Il Popolo, organ of Premier Alcide De Gasperi's government party, declared the treaty should be liquidated now—because it is "incompatible with Italy's part in the Atlantic pact."

This declaration came on the anniversary of the signing of the pact, which limits Italy to a vest-pocket sized army, navy and air force.

Previously, both government spokesmen and United States embassy officials here had studiously avoided any direct statement that the peace treaty, which Russia, helped to write, might be a handicap to Italy's contribution to the western alliance.

De Gasperi's party newspaper said Italy had kept silent until now, although many of the treaty terms seemed "unjust or stupid."

ARMY GIVES UP FEUD INQUIRY

Pearson-M'Carthy Controversy Turned Over To Justice Department

Washington, Feb. 10 —(AP)— The army disclosed today it has dumped the Pearson - McCarthy feud into the hands of the justice department.

Columnist Drew Pearson and Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) have accused each other of violating military security by making public information from secret defense department dispatches.

The army indicated it got nowhere in trying to find out who gave Pearson confidential military messages from which he quoted in his newspaper column Dec. 30.

Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr., reported his department's "preliminary investigation" was completed with only "negative results."

Writing McCarthy, who had fired at Pace a list of questions about the Pearson column, the army secretary added that the case had been handed to the justice department "for further investigation."

The Pearson column had purported to show that Communist strength in Korea prior to the big Red offensive and Allied retreat was considerably less than General MacArthur had reported publicly. Pearson said no security was involved; that he was disclosing "military errors" which the public was entitled to know about.

Pace also wrote a letter to Pearson, dated Wednesday, the same day as his communication to McCarthy. Each letter was made public by its recipient.

To Pearson, who had demanded to know whether any action would be taken by the defense department against the senator, the army secretary also wrote that "the entire matter has been referred.... to the department of justice."

The columnist had written Pace complaining about one of McCarthy's senate speeches. In this McCarthy had declared that Pear-

Nature's Hazards Plague Northeast

(By The Associated Press)

Bitter cold gripped the northeastern states Saturday and floods and earthslides plagued western Washington.

A freak flood caused by a massive ice jam put Columbia, Pa., in a state of "dire emergency." The jam, one of the worst ever on the Susquehanna river, knocked the Columbia water works out of commission.

"In case of a fire we're as good as wiped out," said Walter Roye, burgess of Columbia, a community of 12,000.

He appealed to civil defense and Red Cross agencies for aid. He asked that water be hauled in milk tanks.

Some 50 families have been evacuated from along both sides of the river, which reached a record height of 17 feet above normal Friday and then receded a foot. The river, a mile and a quarter wide was solid ice between Columbia and Washington Boro, four miles to the south.

Marines In Korea Turn Down Monetary Aid From Boy, 6

Salt Lake City, Feb. 10. —(AP)— A six-year-old youngster received back today the $1.20 he had given to the marine corps "to buy some bullets."

With it was a letter from Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Smith, commanding the reinforced first marine division in Korea. Smith told Jerry Timmins that the marines in Korea now have plenty of ammunition.

Jerry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Timmins, took the $1.20 in small change to the marine corps recruiting station here some time ago. He said he had heard that the marines in Korea were running out of ammunition.

Tech. Sgt. Jerry Vaculin suggested the youngster send the money to the marine corps commander in Korea. Jerry did, along with a letter that read:

"Here is $1.20 I have saved and my mother said it would be all right for me to send it to you marines. Please buy some bullets with the money, because if the marines run out of bullets we will all be dead pigeons."

Smith's reply said:

"Dear Jerry: Thank you very much for your nice letter and the money you sent for ammunition. Uncle Sam has been sending us many shiploads of bullets, so we're not going to need to be dead pigeons.

"I am returning your money. Perhaps you will want to save it in your bank and help toward your education as you grow older. Also I am sending you some Korean money that you can keep as a souvenir from the marines in Korea.

"Thanks again for your kind offer. I hope that you keep interested in the marine corps and that perhaps someday you will be a marine yourself."

Striking Switchmen Return To Jobs Ahead Of Deadline

(By The Associated Press)

The army's "work or be fired" deadline arrived Saturday but striking switchmen already were back on the job.

However, some industry still was feeling the pinch of strike-caused shortages. Rail spokesmen said it would take from two to three weeks to clear away the backlog of freight on sidings and in yards.

The waning "sick call" strike collapsed Thursday when the army announced that switchmen who failed to report by 4 p.m. EST Saturday would be discharged and lose their seniority unless they could prove they were ill.

The Pittsburgh and West Virginia railroad, the last line to report holdouts, said it was back to normal operations Saturday morning.

At the height of the 10-day strike, some 12,000 switchmen were out, 700,000 of the nation's 2,000,000 freight cars were tied up and 250,000 workers were laid off in mines and industry . Some 120,000 automobile workers, most of them in Michigan, still are idle.

With the strike ended, many industrial layoffs scheduled for Monday were called off and a return to normal was moving ahead.

The Pennsylvania railroad ordered its freight embargo at Chicago lifted at Saturday midnight.

The srikers, since their return, have received a pay boost on orders of the army. The army has been in technical control of the carriers since the government seized them Aug. 27 to halt a threatened strike.

The boosts amount to 12½ cents an hour for yardmen and yard-

Joe Guessed Right But Played Wrong

By Oswald Jacoby

Every once in a while Hard Luck Joe analyzes a hand beautifully. He sees at a glance that the hand calls for setting up a particular suit, or perhaps for a cross-ruff. Off he goes to execute his plan. As a matter of fact, "execution" is exactly the word his partners often use. For example, his analysis of the hand shown today was perfect in all respects but one. He saw that the hand called for a cross-ruff and he was right.

West opened the king of clubs, and Joe won with the ace. He saw that he could expect to win four high cards outside of the trump suit. He also saw that he could win his eight trumps separately by cross-ruffing. Obviously, therefore, it was up to him to cross-ruff the hand in order to make his contract.

After winning the first trick with the ace of clubs, Joe ruffed a club in dummy to begin the cross-ruff. He next cashed the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart in his own hand.

Then he realized that he had better cash the top diamonds before going too far and he therefore laid down the ace and king of diamonds. He next ruffed the six of clubs in dummy and ruffed a second heart in his own hand; and followed by ruffing the ten of clubs in dummy and a third heart in his own hand.

A this point Joe was in his own hand with one trump and two diamonds while dummy had one trump, one heart and one diamond. Joe led a diamond but West won and returned a trump, thus causing dummy's queen to fall on the same trick as Joe's ace. Joe therefore still had to lose another diamond trick.

Joe was right when he decided to cross-ruff the hand. However, he should have foreseen the position which actually came about. In order to make the contract he had to begin the hearts before ruffing a club.

Correct play is to win the ace of clubs, cash the top diamonds, take the ace of hearts, and ruff a heart. It is now possible for declarer to ruff three clubs in dummy and return by ruffing three more hearts. In this way all eight trumps are made separately.

A—Bid three no-trump. This very precise response shows a balanced hand, stoppers in all suits, and the same high-card strength that would be needed for a minimum opening bid of one no-trump. In other words, if you had been the dealer with this hand, you would have bid one no-trump.

PLAN ELECTION IN CATAHOULA

Would Ballot On Creation Of New District South Of Little River

Jonesville, Feb. 10.—(Special)—The Catahoula parish police jury has authorized that preliminary steps be taken toward calling an election to create a drainage district south of Little river and between Black river and French Fork.

The project was discussed at the jury meeting by W. C. Brown, member of the Tensas Basin Levee board; Dudley C. Foley, bond attorney, and Tige Smith, state public work engineer for the district. Several property owners of the area appeared at the meeting in support of the project.

Foley stated that an acreage tax of 42.5 cents would provide the necessary revenue to supplement state funds for the project and to provide for maintenance. He proposed 20 year bonds for the district and pointed out that normal collections would result in the tax being taken off in less than 20 years.

The state will provide 40 per cent of the total cost of the project and, in addition, will provide the necessary engineering without cost to local property owners. Estimate of the cost, made last year, was $231,000.

The area involved in the project is subject to annual overflow and includes a large percentage of the river bottom farm lands of Catahoula parish.

Catahoula Will Soon Ballot On School Tax

Jonesville, Feb. 10.—(Special)—An election to renew the parish-wide two-mill special maintenance tax for the next five years was called by the Catahoula parish school board this week.

Date for the election was set as Tuesday, March 20, and returns will be promulgated at a special meeting of the board on the following day.

Aubrey Brooks, superintendent of schools, pointed out that the tax is "in no way a new tax, but one which has been on the books for many years. Money derived from it is used to buy equipment and make repairs in the schools. The five-year five-mill constitutional tax was renewed last year.

The board decided that days lost during the recent freeze would have to be made up, either by longer hours per day or by added days at the end of the school term.

RABIES CLINIC TO OPEN MONDAY

Period For Vaccination Of Dogs Will Continue Through March 1

Dr. W .Carroll Summer, director of the Ouachita parish health unit announced yesterday that the annual Rabies clinic for the vaccination of all dogs in Ouachita parish is scheduled to begin Monday and continue through March 1.

Dr. Summer explained that all dogs not wearing a tag showing a 1951 vaccination at the end of the clinic, will be impounded and destroyed if not claimed in five days.

The fee for registration and vaccination is $1.75.

Dr. Summer said the purpose of these rabies clinics is to combat this deadly disease which is 100 per cent fatal after it is contracted by man or animals.

He pointed out that cattle bitten by a dog with rabies will in turn become mad.

In connection with the parish-wide drive to curb rabies by vaccination of the entire dog population, Dr. Summer pointed out about 500 dogs have been vaccinated since Jan. 1, 1951. He estimated that about 10,000 dogs have not been brought in or may be in danger of contracting and transmitting this disease to man or other animals unless they are vacinated.

"It is of utmost necessity that this ruling be obeyed, Dr. Summer stated.

"Dog owners who do not comply with the ruling are risking the lives of members of their families as well as the life of their pet.

"We are dealing with a dangerous, insidious disease. When rabies infection has developed in man or animal, death has occurred in 100 per cent of all cases. There has been no known exception to this rule.

"Rabies is fatal. It cannot be cured, but we can and will do our best to prevent deaths from rabies in Ouachita parish through preventive vaccinations. Vaccinations may be obtained from your veterinarian. About 100 clinics have been scheduled in various parts of the parish and the cities of Monroe and West Monroe. These clinics will begin Monday and circulars have been distributed in various parts of the parish telling dog-owners when the clinics will be held," Dr. Summer said.

He urged residents with dogs to watch the newspaper for the clinic schedule.

The clinic opens Monday with the following schedule: 8:30 to 9 a.m., White's Store, White Ferry road, West Monroe; 9:15 to 9:30 a.m., Wall Lake Colored Church, West Monroe; 9:45 to 10:15 a.m. Lee's Store, White Ferry road, West Monroe; 10:20 to 10:30 a.m., intersection White Ferry road and Arkansas road; 10:35 to 10:45 a.m., Ball's Store, highway 80, West Monroe; 10:15 to 11:15 a.m., Claiborne school, highway 80, West Monroe; 11:25 to 12:15 p.m., Cross Road Grocery, Seigle Addition, West Monroe.

Tuesday the clinic's schedule is as follows: 8:30 to 8:40 a.m., Midway Grocery, highway 80, West Monroe; 9 to 9:15 a.m., Eureka school, West Monroe; 9:25 to 9:40 a.m., Calhoun; 9:50 to 10 a.m., Indian Village, colored church, in West Monroe; 10:15 to 10:25 a.m., Mineral Sprints, colored school, West Monroe; 10:45 to 11 a.m. Hayes store, Jonesboro road, West Monroe; 11:20 to 11:35 a.m., 4-Way Grocery, Jonesboro road, West Monroe.

On Wednesday the rabies clinic will take the following route: 8:30 to 9 a.m., Harmon's Grocery, Brownville; 9:05 to 9:30 a.m., Smith Grocery, Spraypon, Brownville; 9:35 to 9:50 a.m., Owens store, Baucomville; 10:15 to 10:30 am.., Watson school, West Monroe; 10:45 to 11 a.m., Mt. Vernon School, West Monroe.

SCANT FASHIONS SHOWN IN PARIS

Exotic Fresh Batch Of Open-Chested, Bare-Backed Beauty

By Eddy Gilmore

Paris, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Schiap Arelli took the raps off her new creations in clothes today and showed the eager onlookers an exotic fresh batch of open-chested, bare-backed beauty.

Her clothes must be beautiful, for you find yourself looking at them almost as much as you look at her models. That, friends, is the acid test.

After nearly two hours of solid staring, one is able to report a subtle, but startling development in the clothes that a redestined this spring and summer to adorn some of the finest female forms in the world.

The development — which perhaps Schiaparelli herself may be unaware of—is the effect of the Korean war on the new frocks and frills and the lush hats and gadgets that go with them.

They are, for instance:

Quilted coats, quilted jackets and even quilted skirts.

Coolie hats and hats that look like pagodas.

One piece of cloth resembling a rice paddy in design.

While this wasn't necessarily Schiaparelli's fault, one gorgeous model had a hair-do that looked like nothing so much as congealed bird nest soup.

Other startling aspects of the show were:

Glassless sun glasses.

Sunglasses that have four-inch-long lashes, for what reason only Schiaparelli must know.

A gown whose front consists of simply a bow.

Persimmon - colored pieces of ribbon that tie on milady's legs just below the knees and dangle down like misplaced pieces of parlor lampshade.

But lets examine the glassless sun glasses, they're that and a little more. Sure enough, they don't have any glasses in them, but have persimmon - colored tubes growing out from where the glass should be.

Persimmon and cactus green are definitely among Schiaparelli's colors for now. It shows the American influence.

A terse announcement issued just before the show began said: "Materials. Arizona material used in all shapes, lining, blouses, to turnabout aprons."

This correspondent doesn't know exactly what this means and he couldn't get anyone to tell him.

There's something else significant about the things to come in clothes and that is—slits.

Many of the new dresses are slit from the hem upwards, some to just above the knee.

In keeping with this year's glassless glasses was a pair of soleless shoes. They are to be worn on the beach, in soft toe-tickling sand.

The Duchess of Windsor arrived in New York last week wearing an original Paris-made Schiaparelli suit, as shown on the second page of the society section in the Style Shop ad.

New Schiaparelli suits were received this week at the Style Shop. They are the originals as shown in the spring fashion shows in the famed dress city.

The Style Shop has the exclusive line of the aristocratic suits in north Louisiana.

Little Theatre Curtain Call

Lights, camera, action. . . . Oh! what am I saying? What I mean is, curtains going up on "rope" this Monday night at Little Theatre playhouse, Selman Field . . . time 8:30 p.m. . . . And its just about time to start making your reservations for this unusual drama, super charged with suspense.

As a little reminder the excellent cast who will entertain you with "Rope" is as follows, Bill Harp (of Bastrop, La.), Jim Reynolds, David Russell, Sue Hunt, Dorothy Elmendorf, Ted Landhy, Ted Grant and our director of the Little Theatre Stocker Fontelieu.

It is a must on the list of regular Little Theatre goers and also an excellent opportunity for the folks who have been contemplating getting acquainted. Gwen Blauvelt goes on duty today at 1 p.m. Reservations can be made any day there after from 1 until 7 p.m.

RANDOM NOTES. . . . Blanche Gates and Ruth Pipes were week ending in Shreveport this week end on a shopping trip. . . . They tell me that the Paramoun't "sneak preview" was terrific. Manager Melvin Greenblat, unhappily had to turn away patrons who couldn't get a seat. A sneak preview is something new in Monroe. It differs from a special screening in view of the fact that theatre goers are kept in the dark about what they are going to see. Those attending the Friday night sneak preview got to see "Storm Warning" starring Ginger Rogers, Ronald Reagan, and Doris Day. Comments, very, very good. . . . The Monroe Quota Club will present a book review on March 2, 7:30 p.m. in the Virginia Hotel ballroom. Mrs. Violet Jett will review "The Red Masquerade," one of the most popular books on communism. Mrs. Jett recently appeared before the Kiwanis and Exchange Clubs where she was received with fine appreciation.

Little Theatre Sketch

SUE HUNT. . . . the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Hunt of West Monroe, has the leading feminine role in "Rope" and will make her Little Theatre debut this Monday night when "Rope" opens.

She is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School where she was a member of the Speech Club. Sue is also a graduate of Louisiana College Pineville, La., where she majored in speech, receiving her B. A. degree in the spring of 1950.

While attending college, she was a member of Cadmian Literary Society; Ph Kappa Delta Forensic fraternity and a member of Alpha Psi Omega national dramatic fraternity. She was also president of the Louisiana College Theatre during her senior year and appeared in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," "All My Sons," "Our Town" and "Stage Door."

Among the honors that Sue received while attending college was the selection of campus beauty two years (her junior and senior year).

Sue Hunt alias Leila Arden of "Rope" teaches 8th grade and speech in Calhoun High School, commuting each day from her home in West Monroe. Although this is her first time to act for Little Theatre, Sue is a well seasoned dramatist.

Jonesville Now Nearer To Paving Streets

Jonesville, Feb. 10.—(Special)—Jonesville's street paving project is a little closer to becoming a reality, which is good news to folks here who are weary of mud.

R. B. Richardson, state director of highways, has issued a work order for the states part of the street surfacing, and Mayor Dee Brown said that details of the towns part should be straightened out in the next 30 days.

The state will put bituminous surfacing on two state routes through the town. Other streets in a 20-block area will be surfaced through bonds and front-footage assessments. Contract for the work was awarded T. L. James in November.

Old Political Technique

Economic Intelligence, a publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, ran this item in its January issue: "President Truman's statement that he will cut non-defense spending has touched off a mad scramble among government agencies to tie a defense tag on everything they do. This is not surprising, since it is simply the instinct of bureaucratic self-survival operating as usual.

"As a very minor example, the District of Columbia health department (a federal agency) was sending a mobile unit around town to check the health of waiters and waitresses. This was probably a very salutary move, but the department looked a little ridiculous when one official stressed that this survey was of vital defense importance in case of an atomic bomb attack. Asked why, he said, 'We will know the blood type of all the waiters and waitresses.'

"On far bigger fronts, peace programs become defense programs. Foreign economic aid drops off, to be replaced by military aid. Public housing programs are dropped, only to reappear in new dress as 'defense housing.' We can expect that many of the innumerable programs on which the government manages to spend our billions will go underground, only to pop up somehwere else in new dress.

This is an old technique in politics. If a praject takes on some degree of unpopularity under its past name, it is simply tagged with a new and more attractive name. And there can be no question that every effort will be given to continuing and expanding this strategy now that the defense program is really beginning to roll. It is very largely a question of semantics—the meaning of language. By subtle stretches of the imagination the word "defense, for example, can be made to cover almost anything.

That is a very important problem now, with the growing emphasis on the need to reduce non-defense spending, and it will become much more important in the future. We have barely begun to feel the weight of the war effort. During 1950, defense spending was in the neighborhood of $14,000,000,000. From now on it will soar like a jet fighter. Estimates for the future were recently given by Charles E. Wilson, the General Electric Company head who is now director of the office of defense mobilization. In 1951, he said, we will spend $33,000,000,000 for defense and for 1952 the estimated figure is $46,000,000,000. And these forecasts are predicated on the assumption that the world situation will continue much as it is at present, without a general war. With a general war, the sky would be the limit. At the peak of our spending during the last war, the 1945 fiscal year, over $9,000,000,000 was poured out. In the light of current prices—and the infinitely more complex weapons of the present—equivalent production would naturally cost a great deal more.

Further, money isn't all there is to the story. We have only so many people, and so much in the way of materials. Non-defense activity drains these too, just as it drains the treasury. We pay for defense in our energies and resources no less than in currency. Here is why the congressional bloc which favors the maximum possible reduction in non-defense spending has gained a great many new adherents from Democratic and Republican ranks alike.

Lincoln Greatest Strength

All over America Abraham Lincoln's birthday is always the high spot of the political speech-making season. Paying tribute to Lincoln is as much the politician's privilege as quoting Thomas Jefferson.

In this time of stress, Americans might well wish that their politicians spent less time in revering Lincoln and more in emulating the fundamental traits that made him a great public servant.

Lincoln stands out in American history because he channeled all his strength into a single great purpose: the preservation of the United States as a union.

He believed in the ideals that justified the existence of America and he believed in the country's future. In the union's darkest day, he did not listen to counsels of despair. His was the voice of courage, of confidence, and yet of compassion.

Above all, his was a voice for unity in allegiance to the American ideal.

Too many of the men who mount platforms to hymn Lincoln's praises will not practice in their daily political lives that same faithfulness to unity.

Seldom in American life has there been a greater need for solidarity of purpose among our people. Yet a lot of our lawmakers, including a healthy number in the august U. S. senate, pursue their political objectives in utter and complete disregard of that necessity.

Men who cannot suppress their frankly political aims in a time of great trial for the nation make a mockery of the annual homage to Linclon.

The goal of American living is freedom for every individual — in a setting of security — to develop his capacities as richly and fully as he wishes. The pursuit of that goal is not the special prerogative of any political party. No party may feel that its success is synonymous with the nation's success.

Any man who does believe that his party's triumph is absolutely indispensable to America's future is out of place invoking the spirit of Lincoln. For Lincoln was an American before he was a Republican.

Abraham Lincoln in the 20th Century

Wisdom is as enduring as time itself. Recurring storms sweep across history's horizon—but the sagacity of great men has the constancy of the sun. And is as illuminating. . . . The immortality achieved by prophets and sages does not stem solely from their past accomplishments. The sources of their everlasting glory are words and deeds that light up the future. . . . The homage paid Lincoln has been inspired by the nobility of his tenets. He embodied mankind's brightest aspirations—and he fought with deep courage to make them a reality. The political and moral issues Lincoln faced differ in detail with current conflicts—but the principles involved have not changed. The Lincolnian concepts of the 19th Cenury are applicable to 20th Century problems.

He was blessed with the moral strength that is so desperately needed in Washington today. Lincoln was one of the rare politicians who combined practical ability with moral ideals transcending political expediency. . . . He could have compromised on the slavery issue and allowed the festering spiritual infection to afflict the nation. But he refused to appease indecency. . . . No man had a deeper devotion to peace. Yet he took drastic action when he discovered the conflict could not be reconciled amicably. Sometimes a leg must be amputated to save a life. . . . Lincoln said this nation could not exist half slave and half free—and that inexorable logic obviously applies to the world of 1951.

Men of little faith and less courage are always with us. They measure each challenge by the extent of their fears. They would surrender to the foes of peace in the name of peace. . . . Lincoln knew amity could not be purchased by blackmail. When his opponents threatened that his election would lead to the destruction of the Union, he shot back: "You say you will destroy the Union and the great crime will be upon me That reminds me of a thief who holds a pistol to your head and mutters: 'Stand and deliver, or I shall kill you—and then you will be the murderer!' "

One of the most disgraceful current episodes is the attempt of Communists here to use Lincoln's name for their own nefarious purposes. Just as a gangster disguises himself with an alias, so the Communists are using Lincoln's name for camouflage. Only the demented mentality essential to Communist fanaticism could believe democratic Lincoln would be an ally of despotic Stalin. You might as well expect an angel to shake the hand of the devil.

Since atheism is a salient feature of communism, it is well to remember Lincoln's classic observation: "I never behold the stars that I do not feel that I am looking at the face of God. I can see how it might be possible for a man to look upon the earth and be an atheist, but I cannot conceive how he could look up into the heavens and say there is no God."

On the question of dealing wih subversives, Lincoln made his position crystal-clear during the early days of the war. He did not believe freedom extended to treachery or that liberty included the right to destroy it. He boldly declared: "Under cover of liberty of speech and press the Copperheads hoped to keep on foot amongst us a most efficient corps of spies, informers, suppliers and aiders and abettors of their cause in a thousand ways. . . . Must I shoot a simple-minded soldier boy who deserts, while I must not touch a hair of the wily agitator who induces him to desert . . . I think that in such a case, to silence the agitator and save the boy is not only constitutional, but withal a great mercy."

Lincoln also speaks in the debate now raging about whether a president can assume war powers during national emergencies without the consent of Congress. . . . As many Chief Executives did before him—and after him—he dispensed with Constitutional niceties when the survival of the nation was at stake.

Lincoln assumed war powers di-

THRIFT

Thrift is a nice word and the idea it stands for is a very fine idea indeed. "Willful waste makes woeful want" is a bit of truth that we need to consider just now. We are a wealthy country and we feel like kings, spending lavishly, spending even what we have not. This is a very poor road to success and happiness.

All good character training begins at home or it has no beginning. Father and mother should take a serious view of using what they have wisely, saving part of it for future needs and teaching the children that thrift is not only sound common sense but a sound quality of character.

Waste and extravagance are indications of stupidity. Intelligent people know that one from one leaves nothing and on nothing you get nowhere. The stupid overlook that hard fact and when it is brought sharply to their attention by illness or other disaster, deny it and call loudly for help, blaming others for their predicament.

Intelligent people know that there is a seed time, a harvest, and a winter when no seeds grow and no harvest comes. Knowing this they act accordingly. A part of each harvest is stored against the day of need. The part that is used is made to go as far as possible. That way there is always a little laid by for the emergencies of life, happenings that never fail to come to everybody.

It would be wise, then to teach children the value, the use and management of money, clothes, the things they use, the privileges they enjoy so that they in their turn may grow up to be thrifty, successful citizens who are free of debt, free of anxiety that debt brings, free to enjoy the good things they are able to own because they have managed wisely.

To live within one's means requires self-discipline and that is only acquired from experience. Possessing it indicates a fine maturity. We cannot expect that of children, but we can certainly work toward preparing them for it. We can tell them the story of the ant and the grasshopper. We can, by example, teach them to make use of what they have instead of rushing to buy the latest thing on the market. We can teach them to mend what is worn or broken and make more use of it. We can teach them to think around problems of finance so that they learn how to get the most out of a bargain with the least.

Thrift does not mean stinginess. It means intelligent use of money and material. It means a hatred of waste and a love for freedom from dishonor and debt. It is the real American way. Let's stick to it and teach it to our children.

You should handle baby with steady hands to give him confidence in you. Some excellent advice is given by Dr. Patri in his leaflet. P-17. "Tending Baby with A Sure Hand." To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to him, c-o this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

SOCIALISM UNDERMINES MORALS

I devoted my last column to a discussion of morals in a welfare state, drawing the conclusion that socialism, or the welfare state, cannot succeed because it violates certain fundamental laws of both economics and morals.

Happily enough, I have now received an article written by my good friend, Sir Ernest Benn, devoted to this same theme. Sir Ernest founded and heads the Society for Individual Freedom of Great Britain, an organization that was very helpful to me while I was making a study of their Socialist government recently. In his article, he reaches the same conclusion I reached and in no uncertain terms. He states that the traditional respect of the British for law and order has suffered "a serious and obvious deterioration." He quotes figures to show that in 1910, one in every 3,000 Britons was convicted of an indictable offense. By 1938, it was one in every 165; and by 1948, it was one in every 96.

His further comments are so pertinent and so revealing that I am quoting some of them herewith:

"If we think only of our traditional respect for law and order, a typical bit of British quality not to be found in any other race or country, the figures disclose a change of attitude, a decline in personal standards, and a lessening of respect for ourselves and our country, all of which must have some bearing upon this vital matter of morals. . . .

"The working of the welfare state is perhaps seen in its most striking form, when through the machinery of the children's court the black sheep of the family can enjoy, in some public institution, delights and conditions far better than those available to his law-abiding brothers and sisters. It is almost true to say that there is no need for personal character or individual conscience in the welfare state, but on the contrary, in many respects, honesty is a positive handicap.

"Ignoring all detail, looking at the picture as a whole, this unpleasant state of affairs is in the very nature of things. A big central pool containing nearly half the national income, is surrounded by 50,000,000 people striving to establish claims upon it and at the same time searching for excuses not to contribute to it. To describe us as a nation of dole-drawers and tax-dodgers is merely to face the horrid facts. . . .

"Looked at in this way, the welfare state is in a hopeless position; it may be compared to a bank with no willing depositors and every customer anxious for an overdraft. Nothing lower than a nation of angels could make a success of a society with such a constitution; perhaps the best that can be said of us is that we have become a nation of escapists, and escapism does not make for morality or strength of character.

"The argument is supported by the distressing story of divorce and illegitimacy disclosing a very rapid and remarkable change in general attitude of mind. Before the days of the welfare state neither of these social troubles was considered by Whitaker to be of sufficient importance to warrant the publication of figures.

"In 1913 there were 577 divorces in England and Wales; the numbers steadily increased to 6,250 by 1938, and to 60,190 in 1947.

"However much allowance may be made for new legislation and wars, the evidence of 1,200 broken families every week proclaims a lessening of respect for the personal vow and a lowering of the standards of individual responsibility, of which, unhappily, the divorce figures are no more than a sample. Illegitimacy has increased with similar rapidity until today one in every ten of the new-born is bereft of the advantages of regular parentage.

"It is difficult, perhaps impossible, to establish by argument any direct connection between the serious change of mind towards moral laxity and the silver spooning of a welfare state, but few will fail to feel that the two things have a definite relationship one to the other."

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

SALESMAN IKE

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is possessed of so charming and convincing a personality that President Truman could have selected no one more able to sell his war program, or who could have done it more effectively.

Furthermore, it takes considerable courage to question General Eisenhower's judgment on a military question in view of his expertness and authority in this particular field. While it is possible to wonder whether the president quite understands the problems of war, it is not possible to have the same doubts about General Eisenhower.

Again, while Gen. George Marshall has been involved in startling errors proved by time to have been errors of knowledge as well as judgment, General Eisenhower has not become so involved. He has had no part in the Asiatic confusion and bears no responsibility for Teheran or Yalta.

This places him in an extraordinary position to influence public opinion, and his responsibilities are the greater because his acceptance is so universal.

Therefore an analysis of his speeches, press interviews and the reports of his meetings with congressional committees must take on this objective approach: That with keen desire to accept what General Eisenhower has said as gospel truth, it is still essential, under our system of government, to scrutinnze, analyze, and debate his suggestions with the view toward discovering, as far as possible, the exact state of our own security.

1. It is clear that General Eisenhower adds nothing to nor does he modify the terms, purposes and arrangements of the Brussels conference. Therefore, his speeches could have been made before his trip to Europe, or without any trip at all. His was a confirmatory inspection.

2. He holds that the president should be in a position to send ground troops of whatever quantity, anywhere without restriction.

3. While this is the equipment-providing stage no restrictions are to be placed upon the man-giving stage.

4. Spain, Yugoslavia, Turkey and Formosa are not included in his program. His remarks concerning Germany are remote and inconclusive.

He said:

"I am not even going to mention my several conversations in Germany, and for a very specific reason. I personally think that there has to be a political platform achieved an understanding that will contemplate an eventual and earned equality on the part of that nation, before we should start to talk about including units of Germans in any kind of army."

In a word France's program regarding Germany is to be accepted by the United States, although

New York—Doreen Feng, a Chinese goddess whose doctor once advised that her head was full of sawdust, is convinced there's been a change. The beauteous daughter of China's ambassador to Mexico and pal of Sloan O'Dwyer and mine, is now positive that one fine day in Manhattan her noggin contained nothing but squab, lotus root, bean sprout, bamboo shoot and other fixings of a nine-course dinner for 16. All of which came about when Doreen unwittingly bragged to Author J. P. McEvoy that she was ready to take her place among the literati, because she had finished her book, "The Joy of Chinese Cooking."

This volume contains some 300 pages of celestial recipes she extracted from a "ding hao" Cantonese chef in her pop's embassy. The word "extracted" is used in the dentist's manner. No chef likes to part with seasoned secrets of his craft, so Doreen initially applied some Chinese torture by appointing herself mistress of the embassy's household menus. Then she took care never to order the same dish twice. Spent hours in the kitchen observing their preparation and taking notes. Yet when "Missie" asked for the recipe, the chef always managed to forget a dash of something or other.

To correct such omissions, Doreen explained to J. P., she would return to the kitchen immediately after each meal, prepare the same dishes from the erroneous recipes and make the chef taste them. Thus he would have to admit something was wrong and recall the missing ingredient or else "lose face."

"Clever, these Chinese," McEvory remarked, but in a jiffy proved there was still some sawdust in her head. He connivingly ridiculed the idea that so dainty a lassie as Doreen would ever be found alive long enough in a kitchen to prepare a dinner. Miss Feng bristled and replied in force to this challenge. That's how Peggy McEvoy, a charming hostess, effortlessly dished up a Chinese banquet for 16 of us in her home one enchanted evening—with Doreen slaving in the galley.

Sights & Sounds: Sid Caesar showed me a letter from a Reverend Flood who suggested that, if only he had a goofy autographed picture of the comic for his classroom, he might be able to stir up more interest concerning another Caesar—in his Latin classes. . . . Actress Geene Courtney scanned the characters lined up for a fast one at a midtown bar the other afternoon, spotted an especially depressed phiz and analyzed: "He's worried about the war news. He has just found out that the army lowered I. Q. requirements for induction." . . . Gypsy Rose Lee finished off some political to-and-fro with Comic Buddy Hackett, declaring: "How can people believe those rumors about me I'm one girl who's never hidden anything from anyone." . . . Katja of Sweden, the garb designer, scoffed at N. Y. Fashion Institute's loose flowing styles for health and wired me in challenge: "The tighter a girl's clothing—the better her circulation."

BASCOM TIMMONS

There has been some serious talk in the Republican national committee of late about G. O. P. plans for really trying to build up its organization on a precinct by precinct basis in the south.

A subcommittee headed by John E. Jackson of Louisiana has fired a verbal salvo recognizing the existence of Dixie as a political promised land that Republican forces propose to invade. This subcommittee suggested a seven-point program for mobilization of the invasion force, but the full national committee must first give its approval.

In the past the Republican national committee has periodically done a lot of talk about what it was going to do to help its G. O. P. outposts in the South in national campaigns, yet its main efforts have always been exerted in the more populous, doubtful states. Back in 1928 the Republicans got a sizeable beachhead below the Mason and Dixon line. This turned out to be more the result of a split in the Democratic party ranks than the accomplishement of Republican recruitment efforts, however.

In 1948—with the Dixiecrat rebellion flaring and Dewey's election regarded as a cinch—Republican organizations in many of the southern states found it relatively easy to raise money, and they corralled a considerable number of votes. Once again this G. O. P. show of muscle was primarily a local affair. The Republican national committee concentrated its efforts, and its campaign expenditures, elsewhere.

Now, Mr. Jackson's subcommittee on the South says things are going to be different. And this is the current theme of national committee leaders. National Committee Chairman Guy Gabrielson, for example, declares that the South "is the great frontier for the Republican party."

The official word at national G. O. P. headquarters when the subcommittee on the South met here the other day was that the party is truly serious about saving the Southland from the Democrats.

Said Mrs. John E. Messevy of Charleston, S. C., Republican national committeewoman from that state: "We are making great progress in the South. We don't have to apologize for being Republicans, and we don't get ignored by the national organization any more. I am glad to say we can come here without feeling like illegitimate children at a family funeral."

She was not a member of Mr. Jackson's subcommittee, but, presumably, members of that group felt pretty good about the whole thing too.

In their report, they sharply attacked the Democrats for not encouraging the growth of the two party system in the South. They charged that the Democrats are out to forestall the development of a strong Republican party in the South "by fair means or foul."

And, to build up the Republican party in the South, even if it takes as long as 20 years to do it, the Jackson subcommittee recommended some broad and sweeping actions. It proposed that:

1. "Every available facility at hand in this National committee be called into actual aid and support.

2. "That a director of party organization in the South be appointed."

3. "That schools of politics be instituted and conducted in the South."

4. "That active cooperation of the National Federation of Womens Clubs be sought."

5. That the Young Republican Federation in each of the southern states "be inspired to active and effective growth in order to have available, young, ambitious and resourceful candidates for local public office."

6. That active interest of Republican congressional and senatorial campaign committees and the G. O. P. policy committees of both house and senate be sought in support of southern Republican candidates for congress, "not merely by official token recognition but by animated activity in their several campaigns."

7. That influential members of the party accept invitations to address G. O. P. gatherings in Dixie.

That's very comprehensive program, and—as Jackson said— it would take "a very considerable sum of money."

It will be interesting to see what the executive committee of the Republican national committee thinks of the suggested Dixie invasion when it meets here in the spring.

Political observers will be curious, also, about the reaction of "Mr Republican," Sen. Robert A. Taft to such a broad plan for expanding the G. O. P. southern colonies. For some time now, Mr. Taft has been the dominant Republican candidate for president, so far as sizeable groups of southern delegates to the G. O. P. national convention have been concerned.

Rightly or wrongly, the general impression of many southerners has been that Senator Taft does not want the one-party status changed in those areas where he has been regarded as "Mr. Republican" since long before the title was adopted for use elsewhere.

Only last year Lodge-Gossett proposed constitutional amendment to change the electoral college system to give full credit for minority votes. It's backers proclaime that it woulo stimulate growth of the two party system everywhere, particularly in the south. But Mr. Taft took the lead in having it voted down.

rectly after the guns of Gen. Pierre Beauregard fired upon Fort Sumter. It was three months later that Congress declared a state of war existed.

Front pages disclose political differences are rocking the nation. But similar struggles were more savage during Lincoln's era. . . . Although he attained the Presidency with a decisive majority in the Electoral College—he had a minority of the popular vote. The nation was split wide open on every major issue. As a result, the most shameful vituperation was leveled at President Lincoln by the press and politicians. Yet his faith in the people never wavered. . . . His reaction to the political turmoil illustrated Lincoln's genius for stating the truth with humorous simplicity: "The people will decide. If they turn their backs to the fire and get scorched in the rear—they'll find they have to sit on a blister!

The words he delivered before a regiment in 1864 would be just as propitious if addressed to our troops in Korea: "I happen, temporarily, to occupy the White House. I am a living witness that any one of your children may look to come here as my father's child has. It is in order that each of you may have, through this free government which we have enjoyed, an open field and a fair chance for your industry, enterprise and intelligence; that you may all have equal privileges in the race of life, with all its desirable human aspirations. It is for this that the struggle should be maintained, that we may not lose our birthrights. This nation is worth fighting for to secure such an inestimable jewel."

Lincoln's mastery of succinct eloquence has been beautifully expressed in his magnificent prose poems: The Gettysburg and Second Inaugural Addresses. . . . The meaning of the words is as boundless as the heart that inspired them. They not only recorded the pulsebeats of a free nation's hopes—but were a testament of faith in people everywhere. There is not a single current problem that could not be solved with the active universal application of the memorable line: "With malice toward none, with charity for all.

The thoughts he expressed in 1863 and 1865 could serve as an editorial today because they have the quality of ageless wisdom.

The tragedy of Lincoln's life was this grim irony: A man with an immense devotion to peace, whose faith in humanity was almost mystical—was forced to play a leading role in one of the bloodiest wars. . . . It is a tribute to Lincoln's essential humanity that he is remembered not as a military hero—but as a supreme champion of human decency. The only things he sought to conquer were ignorance and poverty and bigotry. He loved the soldiers who fought under him—and had compassion for those who fought against him. He never once uttered a vindictive word against the southern people. . . . His mightiest accomplishment was not on the field of battle—but the part he played in binding the nations wounds. This government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish—because Lincoln lived.

He has been eulogized with words and sculptured in marble, but his most lasting monument is being enshrined in the hearts of the people. This exemplifies the greatness of Lincoln: One of the nations strongest leaders—is its most gentle memory.

that means that more manpower will have to be provided either by France or the United States.

5. While, in a plea for patience, he refers to France's commitments in French Indo-China and Great Britain's in Malaya, General Eisenhower makes no comment on our own enormous commitments in Korea. Why are we more concerned with other countries' commitments than with our own?

6. General Eisenhower declines any commitment on ratios of obligations, which translated means a free hand and an open heart, without a specified quid pro quo. That cost us $50,000,000,000 in lend-lease, as operated by Harry Hopkins, including $11,000,000,000 for Soviet Russia.

Lend-lease did not bring to the United States security from war, for had it done so, General Eisenhower would not have been called upon to make these speeches and statements. Nor has it brought us friendships, as the recent conduct of nations at the United Nations clearly indicated.

If there is to be a giving, there ought to be some fixed obligations by the recipients of our benefactions. General Eisenhower does not indicate that he has such a plan in mind.

7. He said:

"I do not believe, for example, that the United States can pick up the world on its economic, financial and material shoulders and carry it. We must have cooperation if we are going to work with other nations. The results of the effort would be the mutual, the common good, the common security of the nations of the free world."

Nothing could be sounder doctrine. Yet it comes out of committee that he anticipates a 20 or 30-year period of confusion and cost. Will our economy and a lowering standard of living sustain either this operation or maintain the morale of our people? Where is that morale now? Look at the railroad strike that holds up our supplies for our troops in frostbitten Korea!

There is much to think about in all this.

minutes of entertainment, despite its obvious flaws. . . SUBPAR: Warner Brothers' "Sugarfoot" (Randolph Scott - Adele Jergens, Raymond Massey). A carbon copy western "epic"—but the "sugar's" badly soured through inept handling. . . Eagle Lion Classics' "My Brother, the Outlaw" (Mickey Rooney - Wanda Hendrix - Robert Preston - Robert Stack). A star-studded "turkey" that will make you feel sorry for its cast. . . BEST PERFORMANCE: James Mason in "Pandora and the Flying Dutchman."

After thirty years on the Hollywood sidelines, I should be inured to the little inconsistencies of Filmville life, but it seems that my capacity for surprise continues unabated. Just now I'm flabbergasted by the report that the major studio bosses contemplate the hiring of a famous investigator whose job it would be to check their employees for communistic leanings and affiliations. The thing that makes that proposal so astounding is the fact that a large number of Hollywoodites who made it a point, a couple of years ago, to flaunt their membership in Communist front organization, are still holding down important studio jobs. The studio bosses, themselves, must know the identities of those ex () Reds and "parlor pinks;" they must know the majority of their past affiliations. Under the circumstances, the hiring of an investigator would seem to be actuated by a desire for favorable publicity rather than by a desire for formation.

I was amused by a line in a certain Hollywood column, the other day, attributing the seizure of a famous director's home for delinquent taxes to "bad luck." The director is equally noted for his big earnings and his wild extravagances. His friends have warned him for years that he could not expect to continue spending more than his income without courting disaster. Once they persuaded him to hire a business manager, famous for the skill with which he has pulled Hollywood prodigals out of financial holes. The business manager started, of course, by asking the director for a detailed statement of his assets and his liabilities. And that's precisely where the association ended, for the director, very indignant at such presumption, informed him that his assets and liabilities were "nobody's damned business."

Speaking of Filmville celebrities and their finances, I doubt that there's ever been, in all history, a more expensive back injury than Errol Flynn's. Because of it, he's had to nix three screen roles that would have paid him a total wage of $600,000!

DOROTHY DIX

Business Of Marriage

Partners Must Fulfill More Than Material Obligations

DEAR DOROTEY DIX: Is marriage simply an economic arrangement? Is a man a good husband if he is a good provider? Should his wife be satisfied if he has given her a comfortable home, food and clothes, and sufficient amusement and recreation? Likewise, is a woman a good wife just because she is a good housekeeper and cook and has kept a man's home clean and livable? If marriage is nothing but a business proposition, why should a marry? He can provide for his physical needs much more easily and cheaply by living at a club or hotel and not be bothered by the idiosyncrasies of a woman.

A PUZZLED MAN

DOROTHY DIX

ANSWER: The average man considers himself a good husband if he provides his wife with a nice home and pretty clothes and a good car, and if he is reasonably easy to get along with. And if these are not enough to make her happy he shrugs his shoulders and says that women are queer creatures and nobody can understand them and there is no satisfying them.

For the life of him he can't see why a woman who has a mink coat should still long for a little warm affection from her husband.

And many women consider that they are good wives when they are merely good housekeepers. In those sad cases in which middle-aged husbands forsake their wives for "the other woman" the deserted wife always calls upon Heaven to witness how well she did her duty; how she pinched pennies and worked to help her husband get a start; what a good cook she was; what a thrifty manager; how tightly she kept his buttons on and how neatly she darned his socks.

IGNORES SPIRITUAL SIDE

But she never tells of giving him any spiritual sustenance. She never tells of how hard she tried to understand him; to enter into all of his hopes and plans; of her studying and reading to make herself interesting to him; of her being gay and tender and loving. Maybe the reason she doesn't is because the women who feed their husbands on the bread of life don't lose them. Maybe it is only after men have starved along on husks that they jump the bars and go out hunting forbidden fruit.

Of course, in one sense marriage is a business proposition because it is a partnership in which a man and woman invest their all, and it is bound to be a failure if the man is not a good provider and the woman is not a good housewife. But it has to have something more than that to make it a success. It has to have love and sympathy and understanding and comradeship. It has to have angel's food as well as bread and butter.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a sophomore in college and want to finish my course. For the last three years I have been going with a girl with whom I am very much in love. She tells me that she is tired of waiting on men and that unless I marry her very soon she will not marry me at all. When I tell her that I can't support her and go to school she says that I don't have to support her, that she will support herself. I don't want to do that because I know I should support her and because she would also have to help me support my mother. This girl also believes a report about my being married to another girl. What can I do about it?

R. D.

ANSWER: Your love affairs are altogether too involved for a schoolboy to handle, so I advise you to cut out romance for a while and give your mind to your studies. It will get your farther.

No lad in college should think about marriage. He is too young. His tastes are too unformed. Besides, if you tie yourself down with a wife to support before you have got a start in the world you are hanging a millstone around your neck.

Anyway, any girl who tries to bulldoze a boy into marrying her when he knows he shouldn't do it isn't the type who will make a good wife. She will be unreasonable and selfish and you should thank your lucky stars if she does go off and marry somebody else.

DEAR MISS DIX: How can we cultivate a feeling of love, appreciation and respect for our parents who have never taught us these things? They are good to us. We have almost everything we want and do as we please, but we seem to have no feeling for them. Is it all our fault that we are this way?

TWO SISTERS

ANSWER: No. Your parents are to blame. You are as they have made you. All children have to be taught the amenities of life. Many parents through ignorance or indolence ignore this.

The love of a child for its parents must begin in the cradle, but surely you can cultivate an affection for your father and mother by remembering their kindness to you, and you can show some appreciation of the generosity that has followed you all of your life.

Answer to Question No. 1

1. The answer seems a curious mixture. A psychologist interviewed several hundred women and found that married ones increased in self-consciousness about their appearance up to the age of 30. There was a decided drop until 45, followed by a steady rise until 60 and then about the same until 70. The unmarried showed a decrease from 20 to 25, a moderate increase to 35, followed by a considerable decrease to 55, and a sharp increase to 65 and then a drop until 70. There were exceptions, but each followed these ups and downs with surprisingly regularity. Why Don't ask mere man.

Answer to Question No. 2

2. Yes. Many states now have competent, reliable agencies that give expert counsel. However, the government issues a booklet, "When You Adopt A Child" that is full of excellent advice. It is sent at cost, ten cents. Address Children's Bureau, Federal Security Agency, Washington.

Answer to Question No. 3

3. Yes. All sections are excellent, but years ago the late Ellsworth Huntington concluded, from worldwide studies, that the region around Portland and Seattle is the best. More recent studies indicate that the entire Pacific Coast has the most stimulating climate for mental work. Some critics say my column has improved since I moved to Santa Monica three years ago; some think I came too late

EDDIE MARTIN

EDDIE MARTIN REVIVAL LEADER

Dynamic Pulpit Orator To Conduct Services For West Monroe Baptists

The First Baptist Church of West Monroe has announced the engagement of Evangelist Eddie Martin for a two week revival beginning February 18 and continuing through March 4. With the coming of Mr. Martin West Monroe will get a touch of the late Billy Sunday but with some new twists of his own. His mannerisms appeal to both young and old.

Doing magic tricks, tossing a football or basketball like an expert, and dressing like the crooner-of-the-week all are a part of Eddie's streamlined approach to the younger set. The 30-year old evangelist figures he has to make the youngsters feel he's one of them before he can win them to Christianity. One way is to convince them he's as "sharp as they."

With bow tie, sharp jacket and slacks, Eddie is dressed for preaching. But once he has the teen-agers' attention in the service the preaching is resounded old style gospel.

The handsome young preachers approach seems highly successful, judging by results of his recent revival campaigns in West Virginia. The first campaign in that state resulted in 500 people being saved. In another revival in January an entire high school squad came to the altar.

Evangelist Martin was born in Lancaster, Pa., but as a young man came south and heard his call to the ministry in a southern Baptist church. This will be his first campaign in Louisiana. God has been using him in a tremendously successful way, however, in other states. He will come to West Monroe direct from Martinsburg, West Virginia, where twenty-six churches are united in an all-out city-wide crusade

Jimmie Davis, song leader for the campaign, hails from Long Beach, Calif. Jimmie is a tenor with wide experience in evangelistic work. His recordings are heard on many stations. For several seasons he was feature soloist with the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra. During the campaign he will present several sacred concerts.

Rev. Jaroy Weber, pastor of the First Baptist Church in West Monroe, extends a warm welcome to everyone in the Twin Cities to attend all of the services during this campaign from February 18 to March 4.

Germans Rush To Join U. S. Flotilla Of Minesweepers

By Hans-Joerg Flachmeyer

Bremerhaven, Germany, Feb. 10—(AP)—German naval veterans are rushing to enlist in a new mine sweeper flotilla flying the stars and stripes at this American occupation port.

Applications for sea-going duty have deluged United States authorities since re-commissioning of four 600-ton mine sweepers of World War II got under way here recently. Other German veterans are seeking jobs as guards and maintenance men at shore installations of the U.S. Navy.

Russia and Britain broke the ice long ago on such use of trained manpower from the fleet that once served Hitler.

Britain has employed Germans on small mine sweepers in the North Sea since 1945. She turned them over to German administration two years ago. This unit has eight vessels and 500 officers and men.

In East Germany, Russia has sponsored the organization of German naval police from veterans who espoused communism.

Although the Germans remain divided on the issue of rearmament for western defense, the applications for naval service under American command far exceed the number of available jobs. Unmarried veterans from 18 to 35 have the best chance.

The Germans recruited in the west are a nautical counterpart of 65,000 Germans enrolled in labor service units by the American and British armies and housed in former German army barracks.

Like the labor forces, seafaring recruits wear black uniforms and drill with rifles. Besides this port, they serve in an American Rhine river patrol and at U.S. Naval headquarters in Heidelberg.

One of the American mine sweepers now has a German crew of 75, ranging from captain to stokers. The three others will be manned by Germans soon after the completion of repairs. All four were built for the Nazi navy in 1940.

American officers say the vessels may start clearing German coastal waters of shipping hazards in the near future.

"The ships are still American property, an officer emphasized. "They will have some American naval personnel aboard at all times and will continue to fly the United States flag. That's the situation in peacetime. As to what would happen in case of war, your guess is as good as mine.

German sources report the flotilla ultimately will be outfitted with five-inch guns to sink floating mines and may also get three tugs as auxiliary craft.

Many sea-wise citizens of Bremerhaven look upon the mine sweepers as a tiny foundation for future rebuilding of German naval power. At least they allow Germans to get accustomed again to naval service and provide a cadre of potential instructors.

Manpower is on hand, too, if the western powers decide to recreate a high command for German naval forces. Former Admirals Helmuth Heye and Friedrich Ruge are engaged here in writing out German naval history for American authorities.

Ruge once commanded German mine sweepers. Heye commanded the heavy crusier Admiral Hipper, naval troops in the Black Sea and "small fighting units including frogmen in successive stages of World War II.

China Planning 'Mind Washing'

Hong Kong, Feb. 10—(AP)—A new phrase has been added to favorite Chinese Communist expressions.

A Red report from Canton says that 17,000 convicts in South China's over-crowded prisons have been selected for "mind washing.

Those whose minds seem to come clean in the wash will be given some suitable work "serving the people."

Those whose minds are "too badly infected will be sent to forced labor camps.

Those found "hoplessly reactionary will be sent to the firing squads.

Thinks Chinese Sad Over Attack

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Gen J. Lawton Collins said today he is "sure the Chinese Communists are getting sadder and sadder about their entry into Korea."

The army chief of staff added, "and I hope they get still sadder."

Collins was interviewed by newsmen when he came here to inspect Camp Lucas and defenses of the strategically important Soo Locks.

Notebook

New York.—(AP)—"How will we know when we have won a victory in Korea?

That question was put to me recently by a housewife whose two young sons were sailing for service in the far east.

Her query looks naive on the surface. But it is one that has the diplomats and professional soldiers scratching their heads.

For there is no easy answer to it: There may never be a clearcut military victory for either side. The Korean campaign has been a pig in the poke, in some ways, for everybody concerned

All the nations involved in it have taken turns at the great Oriental game of losing face—and everywhere you look you see a black eye in a mask of dignity.

The north Korean government lost face by failing to win the war it started last June 25th. It also lost most of its army.

The south Korean government lost face several times by the unimpressive showing of its troops against the enemy.

The United Nations—including the United States—lost face because it has been unable to carry out its program of creating a free, independent and united Korea.

China has lost face because so far it has failed to carry out its pledge to throw the Allies off the Korean peninsula.

Even Soviet Russia, which stayed out of the formal phases of the conflict, has lost some face. Its behind-the-scenes power grab to bring all Asia under communism has been rebuffed in battle.

This leaves the polite Japanese as the only major race in the area with their features still intact. And they are deriving some innocent pleasure out of watching the other nations fumble around the floor in an effort to pick up their fallen faces and put them back on straight.

But it's hard to see how any nation can now emerge wearing the same unscarred expression.

The campaign is now, after eight bitter months, about back where it was a few days after it started. There have been well over a million casualties, and the forces in the field are getting larger rather than smaller.

The north Korean Reds began the war with 200,000 troops. The south Koreans tried to stop them with 100,000 troops. Today there are roughly about 500,000 Chinese and north Korean Reds in the combat zone, and an estimated 1,000,000 other Chinese soldiers are believed grouped along the Manchurian border. The United Nations forces in Korea now number about 400,000.

The north Koreans originally wanted to take all their country. The United Nations defeated them decisively. But the entrance of the Chinese compelled the Allies to abandon their own attempt to unify Korea.

Gaining back lost territory is now a subsidiary goal of the Allied army. Its chief aim is to kill as many enemy Reds as it can while preserving itself from any mass counter offensive that might destroy it.

In a surprisingly successful "limited offensive it has driven back to the gateways of Seoul in sixteen days and inflicted 61,000 casualties.

Suppose it keeps up its success and drives the shattered Reds back to the Yalu river? Would the Chinese then launch a fresh army of 1,000,000 men across that frontier? That would almost certainly compel another Allied pullback down the same roads they have come up twice before.

Where is victory in this checkerboard pattern of retreat and attack, counterattack and withdrawal? Who knows when who has won? The soldiers on the battleline—as well as the housewife who is sending her two young sons over there—would like an answer.

That answer may be a tacit stalemate, with the two armies permanently probing at each other in patrol forays from some defensive line near the old 38th parallel. Or the diplomats may come up with a compromise to save faces all around—so far as that can be done.

But short of the launching of all out third world war, there seems little likelihood of a decisive military victory for any of the forces now fighting amid Koreas barren snowy hills.

Student From Greece At L. S. U.

Baton Rouge, La., Feb. 10.—(AP)—American generosity—the nickel and dime kind—has gained Louisiana State University a student from far-off Greece.

The student is 18-year-old Mary Hadjiyannaki of Thessalonike, who is learning dietetics in the L. S. U. home economics department.

Mary said she wanted to study in America because dietetics is not in the Greek College curricula. Her queries to American universities, however, brought news that no full-expense scholarships were available.

She had about given up her dream when she heard from L. S. U. The letter told her that L. S. U. home economics students had a plan under which they chip in to pay expenses—tuition, books, room and board—of worthy and needy classmates.

Mary enrolled as a junior last fall and expects to finish in January 1953. After that, she plans to intern in an American hospital for one year before returning home.

'Deep Freeze' Woman Still 'Satisfactory'

Chicago, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The "deep freeze woman" today continued her remarkable recovery and doctors said she may keep her hands and feet.

The condition of Dorothy Mae Stevens, 23, was pronounced "satisfactory" but still critical today in Michael Reese Hospital.

She was found frozen stiff in a south side alley two days ago and was brought to the hospital with a temperature of 64 degrees. Doctors said she was literally in a "deep freeze" with her blood thickened to a sludge-like substance. The American Medical Association said it had no record of any human reviving from a body temperature lower than 75.

Dr. Harold Laufman, staff surgeon, said it would take three or four days to determine whether Mrs. Stevens' limbs could be saved, but the movement of her hands and feet raised hopes that she will not lose them.

It depended, he said on whether gangrene set in. The poisoning was not yet apparent, hospital attendants said.

They said her temperature, pulse, blood pressure and respiration were "just about within the normal range."

Mrs. Stevens is unable to speak because of a tube inserted in her throat for feeding.

Whistles Blow, Bells Ring, As Ill. Central Rounds Out 100 Years

An Illinois Central centennial flag took its place at 11 a.m. Saturday beneath the Stars and Stripes on the tower flagpole of Central Station in Chicago amid the ringing of bells and blowing of whistles as the railroad entered its second century of service: Simultaneously centennial flags were raised on every flagstaff over the entire 6500-mile Illinois Central Railroad in fourteen states as bells and whistles on every locomotive, roundhouse and shop sounded a full half-minute salute.

The signal for the flag-raising at Chicago was given by Martin H. Kennelly, mayor of Chicago, who pressed a switch lighting the green indication of a modern track signal. The green indication symbolizes a clear track ahead for the Illinois Central during its next one hundred years.

Adlai E. Stevenson, governor of Illinois, Wayne A. Johnston, Illinois Central president, and a group of the railroads directors and officers were present at the ceremony heralding a second Illinois Central century. A provision of the Illinois Centrals charter stipulates that the governor of Illinois shall always be a director exofficio of the railroads board. It was just one hundred years ago that Governor Stevenson's predecessor, Augustus C. French, affixed his signature to the charter creating the Illinois Central Railroad.

President Johnston said, "The raising of this centennial flag is of particular significance, for we have now stepped across the line into our second hundred years of service to the people of Chicago, of Illinois and of mid-America. We take deep pride in the knowledge that our railroad has been a dominant force in the growth of the city, the state and the entire railroad territory, which today embraces fourteen states. We are a neighbor to more than forty million folks in this territory. We are conscious of our responsibility as a good citizen and we have made every effort to shoulder that responsibility well.

"The Illinois Central has made many contributions to the leadership of our country in the last century. Abraham Lincoln was an attorney for the railroad almost from its inception until he assumed the presidency. Col. Roswell B. Mason, chief engineer during construction of the Illinois Central, served as mayor of Chicago during the great fire in 1871 and personally directed fire-fighting efforts. General Ambrose E. Burnside, General George B. McClellan, Allan Pinkerton and many others whose names are known to every school child, have played a part in the building and development of the Illinois Central.

"Our first century has been devoted to building our railroad, expanding our territory and creating markets for our railroad service. During the coming century we will continue our pioneering efforts seeking through experimentation and research to find better ways of serving mid-America.

Time Required To Draft 18's

Washington, Feb. 10. —(AP)—Some legislators forecast today that few if any 18 year olds will be drafted the first year even if congress authorizes it.

They based their views on the numerous restrictions and additional manpower sources provided in a board universal military training and service bill approved 7 to 1 by the senate preparedness subcommittee. The house armed services committee also is at work on a new draft bill.

Senator Hunt (R.-Wyo.), subcommittee member, told a reporter:

"It might happen that the armed services would not have to dip into 18 year olds during the next year in order to fill manpower needs."

Secretary of Defense Marshall and top military leaders had asked congress to lower the present draft age minimum from 19 to 18, without restrictions, and extend the length of active service for draftees from the present 21 months to 27.

Instead, the senate subcommittee under Chairman Lyndon Johnson (D.-Tex.) approved drafting 18 year olds only if older men from 19 through 25 years do not fill manpower needs, and then by taking those 18 years old who are nearest 19.

They also tightened required service to 24 months without leave. This amounts to a little more than 26 months, if the draftee uses his month of leave for each year of service.

DIES OF BURNS

Shreveport, La., Marion Gaston, 20, died today and Ila Rogers, 20, was burned in a fire which destroyed a house near here.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers and a younger daughter, Evon, also escaped.

BY-PRODUCTS OF OIL EMPHASIZED

Many Companies Are Building Or Planning Expansion Projects

By Max B. Skelton

Houston, Tex., Feb. 10.—(AP)—The defense program has caused increased emphasis to be placed on by-products of the nation's oil refineries.

Many companies are building or are planning projects which will increase output of scarce but vital raw materials.

Two such projects were announced this week.

Standard Oil Company of California is to build a $10,000,000 southern California plant to produce benzene, an important requirement of synthetic rubber manufactuer.

Gulf Oil Corporation plans to build at Port Arthur, Tex., a multi-million dollar unit to manufacture ethylene. This gas is used extensively in production of raw materials needed by manufacturers of plastics, synthetic rubber, and gasoline anti-knock compounds.

Both plants are expected to be completed about the middle of next year.

Standard's plant will have an annual benzene output of 13,000,000 gallons a year. Gulf's ethylene production will approximate 2,500,000,000 cubic feet annually.

The California project also will produce toluene, now in great demand in production of aviation gasolines.

Gulf officials estimate the Port Arthur plant will increase United States etylene output by 12 per cent. New pipe lines will carry the gas to chemical plants along the gulf coast.

The coal industry long has dominated the benzene manufacturing field, turning out approximately 165,000,000 gallons last year to about 12,000,000 from petroleum.

Officials of the petroleum administration for defense have asked the oil industry to boost its benzene output by some 76,000,000 gallons a year.

Meanwhile the nation's oil refineries continue to operate at near record levels. The American Petroleum Institute reports 95.1 per cent of the refinery capacity was in operation last week, compared to only 82.4 per cent a year earlier.

The Hudson River is affected by tides all the way to Troy, N.Y. the head of navigation 150 miles upstream.

Community Development Is Decidedly Up To Home Folks

Starkville, Miss., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Home folks — and no one else—must provide the spark for community development.

They are the only ones who can, or will, according to the chairman of State College's community development committee.

And, added Dr. Harold Kaufman, strong community organizations are needed now to counterbalanace a national trend towards centralization and making of decisions in far-away places that affect every day community life.

"We must work together and have the opportunity to learn and understand each other's work and point of view," he told the opening session of a conference on community development here today.

"The initiative for community development rests largely with local people. Agencies should serve chiefly as resources. We must continue to work together in planning for the future."

George McLean, editor of the Tupelo, Miss., Journal and originator of the Tupelo plan of community development which has received nationwide notice, listed the ways he found by which people can be stirred to improve their communities.

"The farmers of the Tupelo area are too busy improving their lot to sit around the country store stove and cuss the weather and their bad luck," he said.

McLean said farmers getting together to improve each other's farms and community projects by service clubs have proved the most effective in his area.

"But there is no limit to what Mississippians can do if they pull together," he added.

George Sargent, community development specialist for the Alabama extension service, warned the conference not to set goals too high.

"Two steps are important," Sargent continued. "The people must become aware of the need for community development and people must be found who are willing to work towards that goal."

Other speakers included Dr. Fred T. Mitchell, president of State College; Walter Spiva of Newton, state civilian defense director; Boswell Stevens of Macon, Miss., president of the State Farm Bureau Federation; B. F. Smith of Stoneville, executive secretary of Delta Council; J. O. Emmerich of McComb, publisher of the McComb Enterprise-Journal; W. E. Barksdale, director of the agricultural and industrial board; L. O. Bradshaw, industrial development expert for Mississippi Power and Light Co.; and Dr. Felix J. Underwood, director of the state board of health.

'Canned' Ships, Airplanes, Tanks, Guns In Good Shape

By Clarke Beach

Washington, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Uncle Sam is opening his "cans" of preserved airplanes, tanks, guns and ships and is delighted to find how well most of them have kept in the five years since he put them away.

When the great hoard of leftovers from the war was placed in long-term storage, everybody had his fingers crossed. The army and air force had never attempted such a thing, and the navy hadn't been very successful.

Many old salts in the navy shook their heads when they saw the reserve fleet—about $19,000,000,000 worth of ships—being mothballed in 1945 and 1946. The salt damp of the sea air, they predicted, would eat into the metal no matter what you did.

But about 200 vessels have been taken out of storage since the Korean war began, and only some of the rubber and other non-metallic parts have deteriorated. These parts are easily replaced.

Chief loss in all the services has been that equipment has become out of date. Aircraft and tanks have to be extensively modified because of improvements in the past five years. In ships much of the electronic equipment has had to be replaced.

All the services used their individual methods of preserving. The primary aim of all, however, was to keep the equipment dry. Rusting can be almost eliminated if the atmosphere is dehumidified to desert dryness.

The navy accomplished this by sealing up its ships and constantly drying the inside air by pumping it through silica gel, a chemical that absorbs moisture. The atmosphere inside the ships was brought down to 30 per cent humidity—compared to 70 per cent in the air of the average harbor.

All iron and steel surfaces of machinery were covered with a rust preventive, compound a kind of wax.

Gun turrets were sealed and dehumidified like the ships. If the big guns were not enclosed in turrets, a metal housing was built around them.

Just after the war, when the navy had to rush its mothballing operations before its personnel was demobilized, it resorted to the quick and easy method of fashioning plastic cocoons around the guns. A net was wrapped around them, and this was sprayed with plastic until a hard casing had been built.

The cocoons proved breakable under ice and snow and are considered satisfactory now only in the south—and they are not too highly regarded there.

The stored ships, moored at naval stations on the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coasts, are inspected every week. The schedule calls for putting them in drydock every five years to scrape and paint the hulls. About 35 per cent have been drydocked since the war.

The navy estimates that the total cost of preserving, maintaining for five years and overhauling and reconditioning a ship for service is less than five per cent of the original cost. And navy spokesmen say the cost of new ships has doubled since the World War II navy was built.

Army ordnance men had about $1,000,000,000 worth of new or practically new equipment they wanted to store. They tried navy-type plastic cocooning on a few tanks and guns but rejected it when they found that even hailstones pierced the cocoon.

Then they hit upon the idea of putting the equipment in steel "cans." They had a large number of new oil tanks which were to have been used in the invasion of Japan. Some were 51 feet in diameter, others 30 feet.

Tanks, guns, vehicles were sprayed with rust preventive and packed into the cans. The cans were set 10 in a row, and air, passed through silica gel for drying, was pumped through pipes connecting the row of cans.

The "canning farms" at eight ordnance depots require little maintenance except weekly inspections, when crews exercise the gun recoil mechanisms.

The air force packed much of its radar and radio equipment, delicate instruments, carburetors, bomb sights and similar material in moisture-proof cans, from pint to ten-gallon size.

But its major preserving job was on 1,500 B-29s. About half were simply parked in the open. Fragile instruments were removed, and the engines were sprayed with rust preventive. Sparkplugs were removed and tubes of silica gel were inserted in the sparkplug holes.

The other B-29s were coated in 10 coats of plastic sprayed directly on the surface of the aircraft. Everything was kept in the plane —engines, instruments and all.

Bags of silica gel were laid inside the fuselage. About every two months someone has to pen and enter the plane to replace the bags with dry ones.

The airmen are highly pleased with the cocooning process. They have found that planes so treated can quickly be put in flyable condition.

Reports on open-air storage are fields where open-stored B-29s are being reconditioned indicate corrosion damage has been extensive. Others say it has been no worse than in cocooned planes.

About two-thirds of the 3,500 aircraft which the navy preserved were parked in the open in the dry air of Litchfield Park, near Phoenix, Ariz. The engines were "pickled" like those of the air force. Navy spokesmen say they have found them in good condition but that the intense heat of the desert sun had injured plexiglass, fabric and other outer surfaces.

The remaining one-third of navy planes were packed into sealed metal containers about the size and shape of boxcars. Openings were left to permit inflow and outflow of air, without pumping. But the air that entered passed through silica gel.

Navy spokesmen say they have found the engines equally well preserved by both methods. But it takes longer and costs more to renovate the fuselages of aircraft stored in the open.

TEEN TALK

BY VIVIAN BROWN

(Associated Press Newsfeatures Writer)

The prospect of starting a new career always is fun. Lots of young people seem to have discovered television and its possibilities, judging from letters asking for information about television careers.

William Gaxton, musical comedy personality, who celebrated 35 years in show business, and now is host on "Airflyte Theatre," a television program, offers some pointers to remember about job hunting in television circles.

Before you swarm to the cities from your school dramatic and television workshop courses, study these tips given by Mr. Gaxton and see whether you are setting your nose to the right grindstone:

1. Get pictures of yourself. Networks and advertising agencies require glossy photographs for their casting files. Size 8 in. x 10 in. is usual. On a separate piece of paper type your background, age, theatrical experience, physical characteristics. Paste this on the back of the photographs. Remember many directors cast from these photograph files. Don't rely on one shot, otherwise you'll be typed.

One young actor had photographs of himself taken as a cab driver, Elizabethean character, newspaperman, even a cowboy. Such a variety of shots prevented casting agents from seeing him only in certain roles, and he's gotten work in a variety of roles, because of this foresight.

2. Making the rounds. It's a good idea to haunt the networks, package agencies, casting agents day after day, for you'll never know when an opportunity may pop, such as an actor taken ill.

3. Be ready to audition. . . . Always be prepared to be tested. Have dramatic or comedy audition material either in monologue or a scene involving another character which somebody can read with you. Choose something that best displays your talents and by all means have your part memorized.

4. Knowing people. . . . You get to know people—directors, actors, actresses, technicians—by meeting them on the "rounds." You meet them at actors clubs, at television personality meeting places. These contacts may think of you when a part opens up. Sometimes a good lunch with the right person can be helpful.

5. Neatness. Don't be an exhibitionist. Look neat. Males: Always have your hair combed, wear a tie and a jacket. A sports jacket is fine if clean. Girls: Do not wear overpowering perfume or show up for an afternoon appointment wearing a strapless evening gown.

6 Be yourself. You don't have to parrot an image of what you think an actor should act like. Everybody will like you better if you act natural. You can be yourself and be successful.

7. Try to improve your acting ability. Watch other actors—their good points and mistakes. Watch television — see actors creating their roles and what they do to put them across. Train your memory. Work hard when you get a break. Remember in television, folks can see your mistakes vividly.

8. Get some training. If there is a television station in your home town, that's the best place to start. Get as much experience as you can. The art of cue-ing, attacking a role, all can be learned in your home town. Only when you feel you have enough experience should you decide to grapple with a big city.

9. Budget your money. You'll need time to get a break in television. You'll probably need to take a part-time job while you are trying to break in to television. Many young hopefuls do that.

10. Be honest. Don't try to win success by trickery. You don't have to climb over the prostrate figures of others to succeed. Often some of your best parts come as the result of a friend or someone for whom you've done a good turn.

Army Wins Out On Higgins Plant

Washington, Feb. 10—(AP)—A munitions board spokesman said tonight the board had decided the army should have use of the former Higgins boat plant at New Orleans.

Both the army and the air force had sought use of the facilities.

The board, to which a request had been made for a ruling, has "referred the matter to the army and air force with the decision that the army is to get the plant," the spokesman said.

Previously, the army had disclosed that if the plant's use was allocated to the army it would request the Chrysler Corporation to operate the plant for production of tank engines.

CRAB PARASITES STUDIED

Los Angeles —(AP)— Colonies of single-cell parasites which attach themselves to crabs ordinarily are not considered harmful, but Dr. Gordon H. Ball, zoologist at the University of California declares that his researches show the tiny life units produce damaging effects.

When they gather around the small ducts in the crabs body, the parasites completely close the duct opening and destroy certain cells, Dr. Ball states. He added that the parasites are harmless to humans should the affected crabs be eaten.

CONNALLY RAPS HOOVER'S VIEW

Says Air-Sea Defense Plan Would Leave Europe To Communist Mercy

Washington, Feb. 10—(AP)—Senator Connally (D-Tex.) said today that former President Hoover's air-sea defense plan would leave Europe at the mercy of Communist conquest.

Asserting that Hoover apparently does not want to send any American troops to bolster western Europe's defenses, Connally told a news conference:

"If they are attacked, it will all be over before we can get Mr. Hoover over here or the army over there."

On the other hand Senator Taft (R-Ohio) told reporters at Chicago today that he agrees with "practically everything" Mr. Hoover said.

The ex-president warned in a Friday night radio speech that a land war with Russia might bring the "loss of civilization."

Connally the chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, made it plain that if Hoover testified before his group and the armed services committee when they open public hearings on the troops-to-Europe issue next Thursday it will not be on Connally's invitation.

"I don't desire to use Mr. Hoover," Connally said. "He's not our witness. I'm not going to call him but if he wants to come, of course we'll hear him."

When a reporter pressed the question, Connally said he doesn't care how Hoover gets to the hearings "but if he walks through the door, he'll be heard."

Senator Wiley (R-Wis.), top Republican on the foreign relations group during the continued illness of Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), said he will ask that Hoover testify.

He called Hoover's proposals "challenging and provoking" but seemed to side with Connally against those who are attempting either to bar the sending of any troops to Europe or to limit the number dispatched.

ever defense they might choose to make of Seoul's ruins.

Associated Press War Correspondent William C. Barnard, in Yongdungpo, said 45 rounds of Communist artillery and many mortar shells fell on Third division positions, after twilight, inflicting some casualties.

Allied aircraft quickly swooped over the capital and dropped flares that turned the night into day.

Then American big guns opened up a "tremendous" barrage. The explosions inside Seoul reverberated and shook the earth, Barnard said.

It was the second time in less than five months that United Nations forces were poised on the threshold of Seoul.

The spectacular one - two - three punch that captured Korea's best west coast port at Inchon, the best airfield at Kimpo and Yondungpo's industrial center took only eight hours.

Last September the U. S. first marine division and the U. S. army Seventh infantry division fought for more than a week to secure the same valuable ground.

The Communists, took Seoul Jan. 4 for the second time when the U. S. Eighth army pulled south in a withdrawal then expected to reach possibly to the old Pusan perimeter of last summer.

Jan. 25 the Eighth army's Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway reversed the tide and began a "limited" offensive whose objective was not real estate but one of mangling the Chinese and North Korean Reds.

The decision to drive north to Seoul apparently was made after General Ridgway learned that all Communist resistance south of the Han in western Korea had vanished.

Refugees who streamed south five weeks ago were back on the roads again, hopefully plodding northward.

Engineers raced to get Kimpo Airfield, once known as the world's busiest airport, back in operation.

AP Correspondent Tom Bradshaw said Kimpo's hangars and buildings were bombed out. There was no sign of life there, he said, but a few Red mortar rounds fell close.

Kimpo was taken by a tank force commanded by Lt. Col. Tom Dolvin, of Columbus, Ga.

At Inchon — pounded mercilessly for weeks by American and British cruisers and recently by the battleship Missouri as well—naval parties landed and set to work to restore the harbor. They had abandoned it Jan. 5-6.

Beside a bridge on the road to Yongdungpo engineers planted this sign:

"We blew it Jan. 1, '51—we built it Feb. 9, '51. Welcome back."

The amount of Communist resistance in Seoul was a short-fuse question, soon to be answered.

Intelligence reports varied on the defenders. Some reports indicated that the Chinese had withdrawn to the north and northeast, leaving Seoul to the North Koreans to defend.

Other reports indicated at least some Chinese still were there.

When the Red defenders and Allied attackers traded shots across the Han Saturday night AP Correspondent Jim Becker said some Chinese Communists were dug in behind a hill in a bend in the stream, southwest of the city.

A few Chinese Communist troops south of the Han were seen trying to escape to the north at a point southeast of Seoul, AP Correspondent Stan Swinton said.

Third division troops, moving up to the Han in force, ran into several small-sized Red forces, he said. The third also received light artillery and small arms fire from north of the Han.

On the central front, roughly 50 miles east of Seoul, AP Correspondent William C. Waugh reported an increasing number of Chinese in positions formerly held only by North Koreans.

The Chinese for the first time faced a United Nations spearhead five miles south of Hongchon, an important road hub only 24 miles south of the 38th parallel.

Hongchon appeared to be a Chinese concentration point. It also has been described as headquarters for the North Korean fifth corps. It is about 50 miles east and north of Seoul on a good east-west supply route.

Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond's tenth corps, in an offensive coordinated with the U.S. first and ninth corps in the west, moved forward slowly in a five-pronged drive through the mountains.

American and French defenders of that town on the north bank of the Han have had to fight all week to the west, north and east of the position.

Almost 20 miles due east of Chipyong the Allies had another anchor position at Hoengsong. A UN column pushing the attack 11 miles west of Hoengsong met light resistance. Three other columns to the east of the anchor town all reported steady but unspectacular gains.

Farther east, two Communist regiments—probably North Korean—were pulling back deeper into the mountains of central Korea, some 17 miles northwest of Pyongchang.

On the east coast no contact was reported with Reds who have been sparring with South Koreans near Kangnung, 17 miles south of the 38th parallel.

In the air war, Okinawa-based B-29 bombers dropped 80 tons of block-busters on three railroad bridges north of Pyongyang and heavily damaged the Communist rail center of Sunchon. The superforts drew ground fire, but there was no interception. Late in the day Russian made jets made three attacks on fifth air force F-80 jets, but there was no damage to either side. About 20 Migs were reported.

Summarizing its bombing missions on Red supply routes since Jan. 1, the Far East air forces announced that raids have destroyed or damaged 1,800 Red vehicles, 127 railroad and highway bridges, 45 tunnels, 47 locomotives and 700 railroad cars.

MAP PLANS FOR RED CROSS DRIVE

Campaign Chairman Dick Troy meets with the campaign committee of the Ouachita parish chapter of the Red Cross to discuss preliminary plans for the annual fund drive. Negro Is Shot, Another Arrested

A Negro man was shot late last night and Monroe police arrested another Negro, Alfred Jones, 50, and charged him with "shooting with intent to kill."

The victim of the shooting was identified as Wade Redic, 55 late last night. Police said the shot man was taken to the Conway Memorial Hospital. His condition was not immediately known.

Police said the incident occurred at Jim Bennett's pool hall on Sixth street. An officer said a shot gun was used.

A Mulhearn ambulance driver said Redic suffered a wound in his left side and left arm. He said the man was conscious.

IMPORT CONTROLS ASKED

Rangoon —(AP)— Burmese weavers want the importation of textiles to be controlled, charging unrestricted importation to a threat to the handloom weaving industry.

The Burmese government decontrolled textile imports last August to stockpile cloth, fearing a cloth famine in the event of war.

MAKE PLANS FOR RED CROSS DRIVE

Expect One-Day Affair Instead Of Extended Collection Campaign

Members of the campaign committee of the Ouachita parish chapter, American Red Cross, under the chairmanship of Dick Troy, mapped final plans this week for the annual fund drive, slated for early March.

Troy announced that the committee hoped to make the solicitations for money a one-day affair, concentrating efforts and minimizing inconvenience for contributors and Red Cross workers. "In the past," said the chairman "many of us have felt that several days or a week of solicitation put too much strain not only on the collectors, but also on the businessmen and private citizens who contribute."

On the committee with Troy are McVea Oliver, chapter chairman, Walter W. Kellogg and Joe Goyne.

Troy, who has been an active worker for Red Cross for nearly ten years, heads the Monroe Insurance and real estate firm of Troy and Nichols. He has been a member of the board of directors of the local chapter on several occasions, and has been associated with every Red Cross fund drive since 1942.

Discussing the present and future needs of the organization, he revealed that the Red Cross would shoot for a goal of $42,000 this year, an increase of $10,000 over the 1950 goal.

"The needs of the Red Cross have increased, he said, "due mostly to the increase in war activities. Chapter services must be expanded. Blood Banks must be filled to all-time levels as a protection against the devastation of atomic warfare. Training must be stepped up to an even higher level to protect Americans in the event of atomic bombing, and services to veterans and servicemen will also show a great increase.

March 7 and 1 will be the big days locally, said Troy. Plans and final arrangements for those dates will be announced at a later date.

The Nation Today

Washington, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Here are some main points for married couples to remember in filing their 1950 income tax return.

Married couples get a break under the present law. If they file jointly, they can split their income, each claiming half. This throws each half into a lower tax bracket, making for a lower total tax.

Never in any case when one of them had no income will married couples lose by filing a joint return. In most cases they'll save.

And even in most cases when both had income they'll save by filing jointly.

If you have any doubts about your case, work it out both ways: On a joint return and on separate returns.

In all cases where a husband and wife file a joint return both must sign it.

(The rules about husband-wife filing—on such things as exemptions and so on—have been explained in previous stories.)

If you were married as late in 1950 as Dec. 31, you can file a joint return on your income for all of 1950.

If you were divorced or legally separated any time in 1950, even as late as Dec. 31, you must file separate returns for the year.

In such a case the husband on his return takes his own $600 exemption, whether or not his divorced wife files a return. If she files, she takes her own $600 exemption on her return.

Even if a husband paid all the support of a divorced or legally separated wife he can't get an exemption for her.

Suppose a husband and wife were living apart by Dec. 31, 1950 but were not divorced or legally separated during the year. They can file a joint return.

Some people face this question: "Can I deduct for alimony?" You can, if you paid the alimony under a court order and in regular installments. But the husband can not claim a $600 exemption for his divorced wife.

Suppose your husband or wife die during the year. In such a case you are considered married for the whole year. Which means: Even though your partner is dead, you can file a joint return, getting the benefit of the full exemptions ($600 for you $600 for your dead partner) and split the income to lower your tax.

What of husbands and wives in a community property state? If they wish to file separate returns they can't use form 1040-A. They can use form 1040, either as a short or long form, depending on the size of their income.

The community property states are Arizona, California, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada New Mexico, Texas and the state of Washington.

New York, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Mildred McAfee Horton, wartime commander of the waves, today suggested drafting women for non-combat service.

She said it was part of the obligations of citizenship for women to serve in the armed services.

At a luncheon of the Radcliffe Club of New York, she assailed the national manpower policy which, she said, "implies a fundamental dissimilarity between manpower and womenpower which tends to pull all women in the category of a national luxury instead of an available asset."

gy of the west as well as an extremely dangerous thorn in Moscow's monolithic side. It is in the Kremlin's interest to eliminate Tito's regime, which broke with Moscow more than two years ago. Similarly it is regarded here as being in the deepest interest of the free world to bolster Tito and strengthen his already considerable might.

Politically, Tito has proved the possibility of national independence in eastern Europe and has had a marked effect among western Europe's Communists. Recent purges in Czechoslovakia and defections of some Communist leaders in Italy are regarded as evidence of Tiotism on both sides of the iron curtain.

Militarily, Tito represents with his 32 divisions the most powerful anti-Soviet force in the European area today. Moreover he is guarding the highly strategic southern flank of non-Communist Europe, standing with Greece and Turkey across Russia's path to the eastern Mediterranean and Middle East.

Ever since his break with the Kremlin, Tito has been drawing gradually closer to the western powers, not out of ideological affinity—for he remains a Communist—but out of necessity.

Though he has never asked military aid from this country, he has made it clear that he would like the west to help build up his strength now and to come quickly to his assistance should he be attacked.

One of the purposes of the present diplomatic conversations among the western powers and Yugoslavia apparently is to establish closer relationships by which some of these problems could be solved.

In recent weeks American diplomacy, for example, has emphasized closer relations between Yugoslavia and the American-aided nations of Greece and Turkey. Some officials believe that the tightening of the relations which has already occurred could eventually lead to some sort of eastern Mediterranean or southeastern European treaty.

Consideration also has been given to a joint declaration by the U. S. Britain and France asserting their determination to stand by Yugoslavia in case it is attacked. Moscow would thus have no allusions about the nature of setting off a general war.

The B. R. T. was fined $25,000 Friday by Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe in Chicago for staging a similar three day "sick call" walkout in December, in disregard of an end-strike injunction. He held the union was responsible for the mass action of its members and in contempt of court.

Sons Of 50 Generals In Combat In Korea

By Douglas Larsen

Washington — (NEA) — About the only "break" you get in the army if you're the son of a general is a chance to get into combat quickly.

U. S. army generals have 50 sons fighting in Korea, including nine who have died there and four who have been wounded. There are 23 more sons of generals presently assigned to the Far East command who can expect combat assignment in Korea any day.

Probably the most famous father - son fighting team was the late Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of the 8th army, and Capt. Sam Walker. Gen. Walker was killed in an auto accident on his way to decorate his son.

Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commander of the first cavalry division in Korea, has a son, 1st Lt. Hobart R. Gay, Jr., who is an F-80 jet pilot assigned to the 49th fighter-bomber group stationed in Korea. Young Gay has flown many missions in close tactical support of his dad's cavalry division. They saw each other for the first time in several years last Thanksgiving day in the front line.

Capt. Richard Gruenther: His brother was wounded in the last war; he was hit in Korea.

The father-son tradition in the army has grown fast since World War II. Since Pearl Harbor there have been 475 generals on active duty at one time or another. They have contributed 612 sons to some period of service during that time. In World War II, 76 sons of generals were casualties.

In earlier U. S. history, Gen. U. S. Grant had a son and grandson who made general officer rank. Famed confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee was a son of the equally famous Gen. "Light Horse" Harry Lee of Revolutionary War fame. Gen. Douglas MacArthur is the son of Lt. Gen. Arthur MacArthur.

Highest ranking general to lose a son killed in Korea is Lt. Gen. Thomas B. Larkin, famed supply and communications expert of World War II. His son, 1st Lt. Harrison Larkin was killed in an aircraft crash. Among other generals who have lost sons in Korea are Brig. Gen. David H. Blakelock, Brig. Gen. John Magruder and Brig. Gen. Robert W. Strong.

Capt. Sam Walker: His father died on the way to decorate his Army son.

Lt. Gen. Alfred Gruenther, Gen. Eisenhower's chief of staff in Europe has two sons in service. One was wounded in World War II, the other in Korea. Maj. Gen. Thomas F. Hickey also has two sons in service, one of whom is in Korea; so does Maj. Gen. Albert C. Smith.

Reason given for the high rate of father-son combinations among the general officer ranks in the U. S. army is the high prestige put on having West Point as an alma mater in an army officer's family. Most of the sons are officers. No general has a son in the enlisted ranks serving in Korea.

American Colleges Join Forces With Industry

By Richard Kleiner
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

New York —(NEA)—American industry is going to get a helping hand from colleges in its fight to boost production for defense.

The Association of University Evening Colleges which embraces 76 U. S. colleges having extension courses, is embarking on a nationwide program to help industry.

As explained by Dr. Robert A. Love of the City College of New York, A. U. E. C.'s president, the national emergency is creating a tough problem for industry.

"Our labor force is already tight," Dr. Love says "and as we draft more and more men, it will grow tighter still. Yet at the same time, we must call on this smaller force to produce more and more goods—civilian goods as well as arms and equipment.

"The only way they can step up production is through upgrading, education, training improvement of skills and knowledge. We must train existing workers to take on extra duties and bigger responsibilities, and we must train new workers to step in."

It is in this training phase that the colleges will play their part. Most of the colleges with extension courses already give some training in various aspects of industrial work.

C. C. N. Y. as an example, lists such subjects as 'Plant Layout and Materials Handling;" "Induction Procedures and Training Programs;" "Industrial Purchasing;" "Ocean Shipping;" and "Management Techniques in Offices."

Dr. Love points out that other member colleges give other courses. By exchanging ideas and actual teaching materials, each one of the 76 can be equipped to give any type of course in the industrial field.

But the plan is more than simply listing courses in a catalog and giving them to any student who enrolls.

It is the belief of the association, and primarily of Dr. Love, that the actual need for a certain type of worker should come first. Then a course should be given to produce the worker.

"Industry, itself knows what it needs. We don't. But we have the know-how and facilities to produce the precise type of employe that industry is looking for," Dr. Love explains.

The plan calls for close cooperation with industrial trade associations. These associations, in every field of industrial endeavor, are the spokesmen for all America's plants and shops.

Already, 326 associations, in fields ranging from librarians to scrap iron and steel, cooperate with A. U. E. C. member colleges in producing coursese tuned to industry's needs. More have indicated they'd like to help with future courses, as defense production grows.

As outlined by Dr. Love, here's how the educational program for industrial defense will operate:

Suppose (as is actually the case) there is a shortage of trained foremen in steel fabricating plants. The trade association involved will contact A. U. E. C. or a member college. Or any industry can get in touch with the association and work out a needed course directly.

Together, the industrial men and the educational experts will work out a course plan. Possibly the teachers will be drawn from industry itself. Dr. Love thinks men with actual experience do a good job in the classroom.

Then, factory workers will be either invited to attend, or else attend on company time. There's plenty of incentive for them to come voluntarily; for one thing, if there's a wage freeze, the only chance they'll have of better pay will be upgrading.

If it works out better that way, the course can be given right in the plant. This might happen frequently, as new factories are built. A. U. E. C., operating as a clearing house, will be able to send the course plan and, if needed, all the material and even an instructor, right to the plant.

If the courses are given in the colleges, A. U. E. C. points out that its 76 colleges are within commuting distance of 60,000,000 Americans in 26 states. Among the members are such institutions as Harvard, Columbia, Carnegie Tech, Northwestern, Rutgers, Johns Hopkins and Texas Christian.

"Dear Jes' Ramblin':

"I would like you people to know that we are deeply grateful to Skipper Hunter, our paper boy, for the prompt, efficient service we received during the recent snow and ice period. Skipper never failed to deliver the papers despite the extreme difficulty in so doing.

"To us who could not venture out, this was certainly a pleasure. Not only did Skipper carry on in the cold weather, but once during the heavy rainy days we found our papers wrapped in waxed paper to keep them dry.

Where could anyone find a more thoughtful guy?"

"A Subscriber."

Mrs. V. S. Garnett was made happy when, in the height of the storm recently she discovered a black headed Grosbeak that came to her feeding table to partake of crumbs that had been placed there. The discovery is of note to bird lore lovers in that she declares it is the first time that this bird has been recorded in Louisiana. It is a good sized bird that is at home in states along the Pacific at this time of the year or in Mexico.

She believes that the storm drove him in to this area for the first time. Later in the season they are found in the Rocky mountain region and the Yosemite. These birds are black but have a dash of yellow underneath, and with a dash of white seen in bars. They are the size of a robin.

The Red Cross Grey Ladies, ever on the alert like Boy Scouts to do a good turn each day for someone in need, have just made it possible for Marie Vigus, a guest in St. Joseph's home, to make an air trip to Los Angeles to see her aged and chronically ill mother.

As Miss Marie is partially paralyzed and in need of much personal attention the airplane manner of travel seemed to be the one and only means of transportation suited to the case. The trip was arranged entirely by the Grey Ladies who saw their charge off at Selman airport where they bid her a joyful 'Bon Voyage."

ARMY GIVES UP

son printed a decoded secret message without change. This was contrary to Pearson's claim that he had made changes in order to prevent detection of the code used by the defense department.

McCarthy also gave a date and a number which he said the message bore, and described it as a daily intelligence summary from General MacArthur's Far East headquarters.

Pearson said in a statement that disclosure by McCarthy of date and number of a secret army report from Korea was a security violation. He asked Pace whether McCarthy, "who is also a reserve officer in the marine corps," had special permission to make such information public.

"If not," Pearson asked, "what action does the department of defense plan to take against Senator McCarthy as a reserve officer"

Pace replied the army had given nobody such authorization. Concerning Pearson's question about McCarthy's reserve status, Pace merely noted that the army has no jurisdiction over marine corps reserve officers.

Labor Gets Voice On Control Setup

Washington, Feb. 10—(AP)—Labor-unions got more voice in the nation's economic high command today. Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston, a businessman, appointed George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (AFL), as his principal assistant.

This conceivably could help ease Johnston's problems in winning Labor - management cooperation, but today the wage control situation was, plainly, in a mess.

The wage stabilization board was split three ways on a wage control formula. Some of its members were reported to be "discouraged" about prospects for agreement. One official remarked privately that the nine board members representing labor, industry, and the public were "further apart then they were a month ago."

Meantime the Office of Price Stabilization was quiet today. It postponed until next week the announcement of ceiling prices on fats and oils, soybeans, coffee, cocoa, and a few other commodities.

Ever since the Korean outbreak, unions have been demanding more representation in the defense effort. Only yesterday four important labor leaders wrote to Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson — Johnston's boss—asking him to appoint a leading trade unionist to his "top policy staff."

VICTIM OF CANCER ASKS VALENTINES

12-Year-Old Jacquelyn Marre Not Expected To Live Much Longer

Atlanta, Feb. 10.—(AP)— Little "Miss Beautiful," a kid with cancer would like very much to be your Valentine.

So perhaps you can spare a paper heart for lovely, 12-year-old Jacquelyn Marre, whose own valiant heart maybe won't run much longer?

You see, said Arthur S. Marre, her father, the doctors have said the cancer is incurable.

And, he added, "It would make her mighty happy" to receive lots and lots of valentines because it's mighty dull just lying in bed 90 per cent of the time despite a radio, record player and television.

Marre, an athletic instructor and crack amateur golfer formerly with the St. Louis Athletic Club, said it was after the second operation in February, 1950, that doctors gave his child but three months to live.

"We took her out of the hospital then," he continued, "and brought her home to be happy."

But Jacqueline didn't die. Under her mother's care the wan little girl with the big hazel eyes even gained weight and once in a while the color would return to her cheeks but not for long.

Occasionally her speech and eyesight fail and she has trouble coordinating her movements, but somehow she always rallies.

It's been a strange year for Jacquelyn for though her 13th birthday is February 27, she still thinks of herself as just eleven. She spent much of 1950 unconscious.

Jacquelyn got that "Miss Beautiful" title, by the way, as a baby right after she was born. It was granted by newspaper photographers in San Diego.

"A lot of photographers from the newspapers came around," said Marre, "wanting to see the beautiful baby. We don't know just how it happened but they ran her picture on page one."

A wealthy Atlantan, Marre related, had offered a trip to Mayo's Clinic at Rochester, Minn., but "we just don't know. She's had the best medical care possible and the doctors just shake their heads."

The Marres have three other children, Susan, 4; Billy, 10, and Michael, 7.

Sometimes, like yesterday, Jacquelyn feels well enough to go for a ride with her father. She doesn't talk much, he said, but she does like to watch the other kids play.

Well, that's the story of the little girl who, after listening intently to a news broadcast, told her father, "If I had one last wish, it would be for world peace."

If Jacquelyn is your valentine send it to 316 Ninth street, N. E., Atlanta, Ga.

Laws Regarding Illegitimates Called Too Lax

Baton Rouge, La., Feb. 10. —(AP)—A state welfare conference was told Friday legislation was needed to fix the amount of support fathers should provide for their illegitimate children.

The proposal came from W. D. Atkins, assistant district attorney of East Baton Rouge parish. He said judges should be relieved of the responsibility.

District Judge Charles A. Holcombe suggested to the conference, meanwhile, that the non-support law for illegitimate children, amended by the 1950 legislature, had a doubtful legal status.

He said one of the legal questions raised was that it concerned children born before the act was adopted.

The judge also said it was his opinion that while the act was "a meritorious one," because taxpayers should not have to pay for support of illegitimate children, the act nevertheless violated some sections of the civil code.

"I have no idea what would happen to the act if it ever reached the state supreme court for a decision," he said.

The amended act in effect clarified responsibility of the father for support of his illegitimate children when the mother was destitute.

Mrs. Agnes Dreher, field representative of the state department of welfare, said the agency would have to continue working on the presumption the non-support law was acceptable in court.

A conference member, noting Atkins' comment about needed legislation, asked Judge Holcombe how the courts fixed the amount of support now.

"We find out how much the father is making," the judge replied, "How many lawful children he has, how many illegitimate, then figure out the best proportion he should provide for the illegitimate children."

Mrs. Edith Ross, director of local welfare services for the state agency, reported the percentage of department caseloads for children, caused by desertion, separation or divorce of fathers, rose from 26.4 per cent in 1942 to 53.6 per cent in January, 1950.

She added:

"It was never intended that public assistance would relieve parents of the responsibility for support of their children."

About 50 delegates attended the six-parish regional conference in the state capitol. Parish field agents were from the Baton Rouge area.

MAYORS SIGN JOINT PROCLAMATION

Mayors C. C. Bell, Jr., and John Coon, center, left to right, sign a proclamation endorsing and encouraging participation in the Food Handling School program to be conducted in Ouachita parish by the local health unit and Louisiana Restaurant Association. FOOD HANDLING SCHOOL SLATED

Will Be Held For Benefit Of Cafe Operators And Employes

The Ouachita Parish Health department in connection with the Louisiana Restaurant Association is sponsoring a food handling school program for the benefit of restaurant owners and their employes in an effort to improve service in local food establishments.

The school will be conducted one week a month until each food establishment s employes have had a chance to attend. It was pointed out that there will be one and a half hour sessions for restaurant owners and operators and three, one hour classes for employes.

The proclamation signed jointly by the mayors of Monroe and West Monroe is as follows:

"WHEREAS, the cities of Monroe and West Monroe are eager to protect their citizens from all diseases and to safeguard the health of the community; and

"WHEREAS, thousands of our people eat in public places each week; and

"WHEREAS, high standards of health and sanitation must always be maintained in such public eating places; and

"WHEREAS, we desire at all times to cooperate with our health authorities in any program which will safeguard the health of our citizens;

"THEREFORE, we, John E. Coon, mayor of the City of Monroe, Louisiana, and C. C. Bell, Jr., mayor of the City of West Monroe, Louisiana, do hereby endorse and encourage participation in the food handling school program to be conducted by the Ouachita Parish Health Unit and the Louisiana Restaurant Association."

Eight Transferred To State Prison

The Ouachita parish sheriffs department transported eight men to the state penitentiary at Angola and one juvenile to the Negro correction home in Baton Rouge the past week.

Sheriff Bailey Grant stated that six Negroes, all convicted on charges of simple burglary, had been taken to the state insitution Wednesday, February 7. They were: Benny Miller, seven years; Robert Rushing, seven years; Grant Morehead, seven years; James Galvin, four years; Willie Price, nine years; Van Curry Shaw, seven years.

Two men were taken Saturday. They were: H. W. Wise, carnal knowledge of a juvenile, five years; Cleve Beckley, theft, three years.

Prominent Monroe Negro Is Arrested

A prominent Monroe Negro was arrested by the Ouachita parish sheriff's department for forgery of four checks and the issuing of worthless checks.

R. J. Hill, 26, part owner of the Hill Barbecue stand on Texas avenue and the Club Delecia in Booker T. Washington addition, is being held in the parish jail.

Hill, in a statement, admitted having forged the checks.

The statement confirmed that Hill would sign the checks himself and have other Negroes endorse them, said deputies. "He then would pass the checks off to merchants in payment for goods received," said authorities.

M'Gehee, Ark., Man Held For Theft Here

A 43-year-old McGehee, Ark., man was arrested by the Ouachita parish sheriff department Friday and charged with theft by check.

Ralph Andrew Mashburn was placed in the parish jail after deputies had located two checks which were signed by his wife, Elizabeth Mashburn.

Mrs. Mashburn, in a telephone conversation with the sheriff department, stated that she had not authorized her husband to sign her name to checks.

Deputies stated that Mashburn had been in Arkansas and Missouri and that worthless checks may have been issued in these states. Local citizens are also warned to be on the look out for these checks, said Bailey Grant.

Report 3 Arabs Slain By Jews

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The Arab News Agency reported today Jews had slain an Arab farmer and his two young children in an attack with hand grenades and machineguns against his home beside the Israeli - Jordan truce boundary near Tulkarm.

The dispatch, from the Jordanian capital of Amman, said this was the fourth violation of the truce in eight days.

Quoting official information in Amman, the dispatch said Jews slipped into the village of Falheya, surrounded the farmer's house near the truce line and immediately opened fire. It said United Nations observers found Israeli-made ammunition and grenades in the area and Jordan had asked an inquiry by the UN truce committee.

JONESBORO, OGDEN, DAVIDSON QUINTETS WIN

BASKIN SEXTET CLAIMS FOURTH STRAIGHT TITLE

Jonesboro-Hodge Leads Ouachita In Second Half Of Last Game

The Baskin High School girls won their fourth straight Northeast Louisiana State Invitational Basketball Tournament here last night, while Jonesboro-Hodge, Ogden, and Joseph M. Davidson High of St. Joseph claimed championships in the three divisions for boys.

Jonesboro-Hodge upset the Ouachita Lions of Monroe in the final boys' game last night, 50 to 35, to hand the Lions only their fourth defeat of the season against 19 victories. The win came in the "Ouachita section" for boys.

Ogden's quintet tripped Neville of Monroe, 64 to 44, in the finals of the "St. Matthew's section." and Joe Davidson won over Eros, 45 to 35, in the "L.T.I. section."

Baskin's powerful girls smothered Quitman in the finals of the only division for girls, 61 to 20.

James Shively led the defeat of the Ouachita quintet as he hooped 27 points for the J-H Bengals. Harold Davis was high scorer for Ouachita with 13. Ouachita had gained the finals with a close call in the semis, edging past Quitman, 39 to 37.

Awards for outstanding sportsmanship on the part of individual players, given annually by the Lockhart-Blair Sports Shop of Monroe, went this year to Jean Strauss of Neville, and Arlon Adams of Ogden.

The high-geared Baskin girls accounted for their 149th consecutive victory over a period of four seasons as they sidetracked Quitman in the championship battle of the sextets. Mildred Ragsdale, who has been the sparkplug of Baskin drives to win the last four tournaments here and three state Class B championships, was appearing in the local event for the last time and hooped 41 points for high scoring honors.

Miss Ragsdale is due to graduate in the spring, but Miss "Tiny" Tarbutton, Baskin coach, had another Ragsdale, Ruth, coming up for next year. Ruth, two inches taller than her towering sister, is a guard on the Baskin team this year, but is expected to take over at forward next season. Barbara Rasberry was high scorer for Quitman in the final with eleven points.

Quitman barely made the finals by edging Ouachita's girls, 41 to 39, in a semi-final game that went into three overtimes. The two teams were tied at regulation time, after a three-minute overtime and after a one-minute overtime. Then in a "sudden death" session, Lena Hinton hooped the basket that sent Quitman into the championship game.

Ogden, which had come up with wins over Kelly and Bastrop in the St. Matthew's section for boys, followed the sharpshooting of A. Adams and Center Fain to overcome the Neville Tigers. Adams was high scorer with 28 points, and Fain swished the nets for 17. Harold Basset and Joe Messina each hit for 14 for Neville. The Bengals had gained the finals with wins over Rayville and Calhoun.

Twenty - one points by Center Thomas was a big factor in Joe Davidson's win over Eros in the finals of the L. T. I. section for boys. Thomas collected eight field goals and five gift shots for high score honors in the game. His closest rival was William Watson, a teammate, with 12.

Davidson and Eros had their hardest battles in the semi-finals before gaining the championship round. After beating Oak Ridge handily Friday night, the St. Joseph quintet had to go all out to edge Delhi, 28-26, in the semi-finals, and Eros, which had won over Start in an opener, was forced into an overtime session to stop Columbia, 34 to 33.

Presentation of trophies, following the final game, was made by Lewis C. Slater, president at Northeast. Members of the Women's Recreation Association at Northeast — Billy Pierce, Billy Danley, Charlotte Holloway, Bonnie Adams, Janie Graham, Elizabeth Ann Doan, Frances Shepard, and Ann Thompson—delivered the eight trophies which included girls' championship, runner - up and consolation, the three boys' championship awards, and the two Lockhart-Blair sportsmanship awards to President Slater as he in turn rewarded the conquering teams and outstanding individuals.

Yesterday's summary:

Girls' semi-finals—Quitman 41, Ouachita 39; Baskin 64, Chatham 32. Consolation — Ouachita 44, Chatham 31. Finals—Baskin 61, Quitman 20.

TULANE CAGERS CONQUER L. S. U.

Don Holt Sets Sizzling Pace That Topples Bayou Bengals

New Orleans, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Towering Don Holt led Tulane's basketball team to a 69-54 victory over traditional foe Louisiana State University here tonight.

The six-foot seven-inch center sank 28 points, mostly on backbreaking hook shots, to pace Tulane to its victory. It continued Tulane's basketball domination over L. S. U., which hasn't won in the series since February, 1946.

L. S. U.'s Bobby Meador tipped in the first field goal to give his team a 2-0 lead. Tulane went ahead on field goals by Ralph Pederson and Ivan Wilhelm and was never behind. They led 34-26 at halftime.

Bob Boggess topped L. S. U. scorers with 16 points. High scoring Mel Payton of Tulane, one of the leading pointmakers in the Southeastern Conference, was held to ten points.

POSTPONED

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 10.—(AP)—The National A. A. U. two-man bobsled races were postponed today until tomorrow. Below-zero weather for the qualifying runs yesterday kept drivers from the mile-course on Mt. Van Hoevenberg.

Penn State's baseball team had six .300 or better hitters last year, of whom four are back for 1950.

Tom Bishop's Basket As Buzzer Sounds In Margin Of Victory

Ruston, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Mississippi Southern made a hard drive in the last half of play here tonight to take a 55-53 verdict over the Louisiana Tech Bulldogs.

With the Gulf States Conference game tied at 53-53 in the last second of play, Southern Forward Tom Bishop made a try at the bucket and while the ball was in the air the buzzer sounded to end the tilt just as the ball slipped through the mesh for the victory.

Bishop was the high pointer for Southern, collecting 11 field goals, for 22 points. Robert Bertrand of Tech scored 15.

Tech held a 27-21 edge at the half, and set the pace in the second half with the exception of the last few minutes with the Southern surge netting the visitors a victory.

DEMONS UPSET S. L. I., 71 TO 52

Natchitoches, La., Feb. 10—(AP)—Northwestern State College upset Southwestern Louisiana Institute 71-52 here tonight.

Center John McConathy, leading scorer in the Gulf States Conference, led Northwestern with 17 points, boosting his season's total to 422.

Bill Moody, S.L.I. center, topped his team's scoring with 14 points, making a battle of centers out of the game. McConathy, who has averaged more than 21 points a game, was held in check well by Moody.

Northwestern took a ten-point lead after ten minutes. The nearest S.L.I. came to tying the game was at halftime, when they cut Northwestern State's lead to 33-27.

Jim Yergler, Northwestern forward, paced his team under the backboards and on the floor, paving the way for many of his team's points. He accounted for 16 himself.

FORD HOLDS LEAD IN TEXAS OPEN TOURNEY

BROSCH WRITES NEW MARK WITH 11-UNDER ROUND

Field Trimmed To Low 60 For Today's Final Session Of Play

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Doug Ford of Briarcliff, N. Y., rolled in as the shadows fell with a seven-under-par 64 today to snatch the lead in the $10,000 Texas Open away from the man who played the greatest round of golf in P. G. A. tournament history.

Ford's total of 197 for 54 holes was a stroke better than Al Brosch, red-haired veteran from Garden City, N. Y., had posted although Brosch fashioned an unbelievable 60—11 under par—over the 6,400 - yard dusty, battered Brackenridge Park course.

Par was as easy to break as a baby's doll. 63 in a field of 95 cracking regulations figures.

Brackenridge Park had never seen anything like it, particularly that great round by the wisecracking, laughing Brosch. Last year in the St. Louis open Dow Finsterwald, an Athens, O., amateur, did 61., that was the record Brosch smashed today.

It also was a new competitive course record and, of course, the greatest round in Texas Open history.

But Ford, who was the leader at the end of the third round yesterday, had a fine 18, too. And he was not to be denied.

Ford clung to his lead as the field was trimmed to the low 60 and ties for tomorrow's final 18-hole round.

When Brosch came in at 3:30 p. m. (CST), everybody figured he had taken over the lead—making three different leaders in three days. Lionel Herbert of Verona, Pa., was the first-day pacesetter.

But Ford, playing in the last three-some of the links, whipped in to set a new 54-hole record for the Texas Open.

Brosch came in right behind Harry Todd of Dallas, who had shot a 62 to tie the competitive course record set in 1947 by Jimmie Demaret of Ojai, Calif., but Todd's round became almost commonplace after Brosch.

In three days of shooting on two courses here par has been bettered 168 times. Part of the first two days play was over the 6,426-yard par 71 Fort Sam Houston Country Club course.

Tomorrow, when the final round begins, two fellows who never have won a major tournament will be in front. Brosch has been only a part-time player on the P. G. A. tour. Ford is finishing his first year on the tour.

Back in third place was Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, one of the "names" of the tournament trail. Burke had a 63 today to make his total 200.

Tied at 201 were Todd, E. J. Harrison of St. Andrews, Ill.; Glen Teal of Jacksonville, Fla., and Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C.

All Ford will have to do tomorrow to set a new Texas Open record is shoot a three-under-par 68. The record is 264 for 72 holes, set by Ben Hogan in 1948 and equalled by Sam Snead in 1948.

The leaders:

Doug Ford, Briarcliff, N. Y., 67-66-64—197.

Ellis Bashara Returning For Twin Feature At Kallio's Tuesday Night

'Old Professor' Meets Steddum; Mobley Will Battle Estes

Ellis Bashara, wrestlings "old professor" and master showman of the ring, returns to Gus Kallios Arena next Tuesday night to show his wares against villainous "Wild Bill Steddum in one half of a double main event card.

Getting equal billing with the Bashara-Steddum scramble will be the scheduled meeting between Balk Estes, Elk City, Okla., and Rex Mobley, Texas City, Tex., both former holders of the worlds light heavyweight championship belt now worn by Jack Curtis.

Promoter Kallio last night said both matches will be assigned time limits of 90 minutes, the first time he has ever listed such distances for two matches on the same program. The time is standard for a single event, and Kallio's usual double main distance is an hour and 15 minutes for each.

"We've been able to arrange what looks like a top notch card, Kallio declared, "and have decided on the full distance for both matches.

Bashara first won fame as a wrestler in 1932 as a national amateur champion for Oklahoma A. and M. Upon turning pro after his college days, he developed into one of the ring's roughest bruisers and a No. 1 villain. In later years, however, Ellis, with his well-earned ring wisdom, has been sticking to the prescribed code and earned the title of "professor" for his lessons in the art of catch-as-catch-can to younger opponents.

The Estes-Mobley scuffle is a rematch of a show called off last week when Kallio cancelled his card because of threatening weather.

Kallio also announced last night that John Fulton, the nationally known trainer who worked with such former champions as Jack Dempsey of boxing, Jim Londos of wrestling, and Kallio himself when the latter was middleweight king of the mat, will be on hand to referee Tuesday night. Fulton, whose home is in North Carolina, is currently working out of Hot Springs, Ark., and is in Monroe visiting with Kallio.

BILL MEEK NEW K-STATE COACH

Ex-Tennessee Star Drafted From Maryland Assistant's Post

Manhattan, Kans., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Bill Meek, trained in the split-T system as assistant end and backfield coach at Maryland University, today was named head football coach at Kansas State College.

Meek, former University of Tennessee star quarterback, said he did not know what system he would use at Kansas State.

"It depends on the material we have," Meek said.

He will succeed Ralph Graham who resigned last fall after his Wildcat teams had won only one of their 17 Big Seven conference games.

Larry (Moon) Mullins, new athletic director, and the college athletic council, unanimously recommended Meek's appointment. It was approved by Lester McCoy, chairman of the state board of regents and chairman of the board's athletic committee.

As infantry captain, Meek coached the Ft. Benning (Ga.) doughboys to the National Service championship in 1946. He then joined Jim Tatum's Maryland University staff as assistant coach. There he was given major credit for developing Maryland's most explosive backs, Bob Shemonski, 1950 Southern Conference scoring champion with 97 points, and Ed (Mighty Mo) Modzelewski.

Meek was chosen All - State quarterback at Birmingham (Ala.) West End High School in 1938.

Then he went to Tennessee where he quarterbacked the Volunteers to two Sugar Bowl games under Robert R. Neyland. Meek was named All-Southeastern Conference quarterback in 1942, the year he graduated. He also was a quarterback on the Chicago All-Star game in 1943.

"I was really fortunate to get training under General Neyland and John Barnhill at Tennessee, Meek said, "and then to get the split-T training under Jim Tatum at Maryland.

"I consider the Kansas State head football coaching job as a great opportunity and a great challenge."

POLLY RILEY 1ST AT PALM BEACH

Beats Out Betty MacKinnon, 2 And 1, In Women's Golf Finals

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 10—(AP)—Polly Riley won the 26th annual Palm Beach Women's Golf Tournament today with a short lead that went a long way.

She defeated Betty MacKinnon 2 and 1 after taking the lead on the third hole and holding it around the 6,008-yard Palm Beach Golf Club course.

Both girls are Texsan, Miss Riley from Fort Worth and Miss MacKinnon from Mount Pleasant. The victor had reached the finals of the tournament twice previously, both times with Peg Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, but it was the first time she won it.

Miss MacKinnon won the first hole but lost her lead on the third. She was three down on the 7th, but made good recoveries and kept the match alive.

Putting turned the trick for Miss Riley. Her hand was steady, while Miss MacKinnon was shaky on the greens. A missed putt put Miss Riley ahead. On the fifth and seventh her opponent three-putted, giving Miss Riley a 3-up lead.

They made the turn with 38 strokes for Miss Riley, 41 for Miss MacKinnon. Par is 35.

Miss Riley was 4-up on the 10th, but on the 13th her opponent cut it to a 3-up lead with a good recovery from a trap. The next two were halved and Miss MacKinnon won the 16th with a birdie. The tournament ended when the 17th was halved.

Ruth Lily paid $6.60, $3.10 and $2.60; Sickle's Image $3.20 and $2.60, and Sweet Talk $3.50.

GANGWAY COPS M'LENNAN 'CAP

Favored Three Rings, Bumped At First Turn, Finishes Tenth

Miami, Fla., Feb. 10. — (AP) — Paul Kelley's bay horse, Gangway, running last at the half-mile mark, roared up the outside in a great finish today to win the 16th running of the McLennan Handicap at Hialeah race course and collect a record purse of $27,050.

In sixth place as the 15 swift thoroughbreds turned into the stretch, Gangway pulled steadily to the front and in a final burst of speed shot past C. V. Whitney's Mount Marcy to win by a length and a quarter. Brookmeade stable's Sun Glow was third by a head.

The heavily favored but temperamental Three Rings, owned by Mrs. E. L. Hopkins, was bumped on the first turn by Shy Guy and made a poor effort to get back in contention as he finished 10th to suffer his first Florida defeat in two years.

Gangway, who was a $9.40 to one shot and might have been an even longer price horse had he not been coupled with four others in a tote field, covered the mile and a furlong in 1:49 2-5 and rewarded his backers with a payoff of $20.80, $8.20 and $4.50.

Mount Marcy paid $10.30 and $5. Sun Glow returned $5.50.

Today's victory was the first in a major Florida race for the six-year-old Gangway. A son of Gallant Fox and Humility, he was purchased by Kelley at Hialeah two years ago for $10,000.

Italians More Numerous In France Than Florence

Yankees in France: American students, part of the U. S. colony of 13,000 in France, study in the library of the U. S. center at Cite Universitaire, Paris. It's one of two libraries, plus two churches, a school and a hospital catering to Americans.

By Rosette Hargrove
(NEA Service Staff Correspondent)

Paris—(NEA)—In France, there are more Italians than there are in Florence; more Poles than in Lwow; more Spaniards than in Balbao—and there are more Americans in Paris than in Plymouth, Mass.

There are, in fact, 1,938,536 foreigners officially resident in France today. Although France has long been Europe's haven for refugees, there's more to it than just hospitality these days.

Since France was liberated, French authorities have recognized that immigration is a vital necessity. It is now a definite policy. France needs workers to replace the men she lost in the wars which twice ravaged the country.

Of the nearly 2,000,000 registered foreigners, the Italians, Poles and Spaniards are the largest groups numerically. But there are sizable colonies of Swiss, Britons, Yugoslavs, Czechs, Greeks, Hungarians, Dutch and Armenians. And even two are registered from Yemen.

The American colony numbered 13,785 in 1950. That represented a two-year increase of about 3,000, explained by the staffs employed in Marshall plan agencies and ex-servicemen studying in France under the GI bill.

Most of France's Americans live in Paris. Most of them are there on business or for education. Few are applying for citizenship. To cater to the Yanks in Paris, there are two churches, a school, two libraries, a businessmen's club and a luxurious hospital, all run by and for Americans.

Today's U. S. visitors are finding things different from the '20s, when many Americans retired to Paris because the dollar went further. Now rents are high, an average meal in an average restaurant costs $2, and clothing is expensive. Only amusements and taxis are relatively cheap.

While the Americans congregate in Paris, the other nationalities are spreading all over France. The Poles are working in the coal mines, the Italians in reconstruction work, the Spaniards on the farms.

France is also home to many refugees from behind the Iron Curtain. At last count, there were 8,147 Russians, 8,971 Romanians, 20,000 Czechs, 12,085 Hungarians, besides the Poles.

Figures reveal that there are close to 88,000 Germans in France. These are fugitives from the Nazi regime and ex-prisoners of war who elected to remain in the country after they were liberated.

All foreigners must have working permits or resident identity cards, the latter required of every person staying in the country more than three months. Foreigners who have lived in France more than 20 years are entitled to a "privileged" identity card, good for ten years. These are issued only after a thorough police check.

Doc Can't Stop Writing

(NEA Special Correspondent)

New York —(NEA)— A sonnet may be a 14-line poem to other people, but to Dr. Merrill Moore it's a "compulsion neurosis."

Which means, the Boston psychiatrist-poet explains, that writing sonnets is something he can't stop.

"Other men may dream of trout casting all day long," he says, "but my constant preoccupation is writing sonnets."

Now 47, the tall, sandy-haried, ruddy-cheeked doctor has been in the department of sonnetation for 30 years. He thinks he's written "well over 100,000" of the 14-liners in that time.

He wrote them in college, medical school, a five-year army stint and sandwiched them in between patients. It only takes him from one to three minutes to dash one off. But that initial writing is only a first draft. His usual practice is to keep them for a year, then revise each one 30 or 40 times.

Dr. Merrill Moore: For others trout; for him, sonnets.

He has developed a dislike for the strict rules of the old-established Italian and English types.

"Some authorities feel that if it ain't got an octet and a sestet it ain't a sonnet," he says.

In his American, or garden-variety sonnet, he doesn't bother with forms and formulas. He may write eight lines and six lines, or maybe 7-3-4, or 5-5-3-1, or whatever he feels like. But they are still an outgrowth of both the old types.

Because of their mixed parentage, he calls his newest book "Illegitimate Sonnets." It is his nineth work. One of his earlier ones was a collection of 1,000 of his sonnets, making it the largest book of sonnets by a single poet ever published.

"Anything at all can make a sonnet subject," he says. "I'm more interested in people, than anything else, and especially in people's minds. Most of my sonnets deal with people and what they do and say."

Poetry, he thinks, often helps people that are depressed mentally. He keeps copies of Kipling's inspirational "If" around for patients with the blues. He feels that medicine and the muse can mix.

Revolt Against Milk Price Boost

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Uncowed public school officials today stuck by their ultimatum. No milk—and the kids were delighted.

Rather than accept a half cent increase in the wholesale price, a committee of schools principals said fruit juices and soft drinks would be served.

The half cent hiks from 6¼ cents was approved by the state milk control board Jan. 16 and the principals announced that pushed the price beyond the break even point.

A last minute compromise effort by the milk board to permit wholesalers to cut the price from 6¾ cents to 6½ cents was ignored by the principals.

At a board meeting today Mrs. Crances W. Meeks, city-county supervisor, said the children consumed 9,493 half pints daily and that the milk bill runs almost $11,000 monthly.

"You should have heard the children when we told them they would not have milk Monday" she said. "They shrieked and roared with delight."

Negro Struck By Dual Truck Wheel

A 30-year-old Negro was in the Charity Hospital last night in serious condition following an accident on the Loop Road.

Joe Richards, a resident of Cole Plantation, was hurt when he fell under the rear wheels of a lumber truck on which he had been riding.

Witness said the driver of the truck, T. J. Treston, slowed down to let Richards off, and that Richards jumped before the truck came to a stop. He was said to have slipped under the dual wheels, suffering arm, leg and severe head injuries.

CHINESE AVOID HONG-KONG

Singapore —(AP)— Chinese from Malaya are visiting Communist China through Portuguese Macao to avoid difficulties in landing at Hong Kong, where the British have tightened visa laws.

The chancellor-in-charge of the Portuguese consulate here, Jogse Manhao, said some 150 Chinese applications to land at Macao have been approved. Manhao said the travellers had to provide evidence that they can obtain food and lodging in Macao, where they are allowed to remain only 48 hours.

30-Year-Old Floorboards A Gold Mine

There's no gold in the streets of Fort Madison, but there's $20,000 worth of it in the floor of a factory here.

The gold has been accumulating in the floorboards for 30 years in a pen manufacturing plant. Now that the plant is getting ready to move into a new building, a metals-reclaiming concern eagerly made the big bid for the 10,000 feet of old flooring, which will be "mined" to retrieve gold chips and dust.

Prospecting would have been a lot richer, however, if it weren't for the elaborate precautions taken every day by the W. A. Sheaffer Pen Company. The gold-working departments are given special night-time vacuum cleanings, and all aprons and smocks used by gold workers are laundered on the premises.

Laundry water is put through settling tanks, and the winnowings are combined with the sweepings and dust. The blended dust—assaying as high as $60 a pound—is stored in ordinary garbage cans until it's shipped away for reclaiming.

Otherwise, say company officials, $100,000 worth of gold would vanish in the air or down the drain every year.

Her News Is Off The Shoulder

By Brooks Honeycutt
(NEA Service Staff Correspondent)

They're getting it from Palma Shard, 21, a former model and musical comedy understudy who is now a newscaster with oomph.

Miss Shard, a dark-haired lass from West Pittston, Pa., has another video trick besides her strapless gown. She looks her audience right in the eyes all the time she's broadcasting the news. She does it by listening to herself talk, and thus doesn't have to read from a script.

Palma Shard: She has to listen while she talks.

Fifteen minutes before she goes on the air, Palma makes a recording of her newscast. Then, while she's looking into the camera, the recording is played back to her through a tiney hearing-aid speaker concealed in her hair.

She keeps a copy of the news script beside her in case something happens to the recording she's listening to, but she hasn't had to use it yet.

"I'm about one phrase behind all the time," she explains. "Getting any further behind than that makes me lose the train of thought. Obviously, if I did I would look mighty silly."

There is always the possibility, however, that if Palma lost the train of thought she wouldn't lose her audience. In her low-cut gown, they probably would figure she looks anything but silly.

CANTEEN DRAWS FIRE

With The First Marine Division In Korea — (AP) — Marine Private First Class Robert Dale Savage, 21, of Deerfield, Ill., says he felt like a walking shooting gallery during recent action against Chinese Communists in Korea.

In this case the clay pigeon was the cap on Savage's canteen which was sot off not once, but four times. First it was the regular black plastic cap; the other three Savage had fashioned from pieces of wood. All were shot off by enemy riflemen during a two-week period.

Top U. S. Builder Sees End To Home Construction

Levitt Warns Against Return Of 'Defense Slums;' Change From Peace To War Preparedness Must Be Swift And Broad

By William J. Levitt

Manhasset, N. Y.—(NEA)—Home building, except for defense purposes, is skidding to a fast halt. Until America returns to a peacetime economy it will not start up again.

That generality belies the hammering heard in hundreds of urban and rural areas today as supplies on hand are used up and commitments filled. It also contradicts the optimistic predictions of some industrial leaders and government spokesmen, who are talking in terms of a mere 50 per cent cutback this year from 1950's home building record.

The rivers and reservoirs of materials, manpower and credit were flowing and full when the Chinese Reds turned the military tables in Korea last fall. Those rivers and reservoirs will dry up, or be diverted more rapidly than most people predict.

The credit spigot already has been given a quarter turn. Controls of brass mill products—a must in permanent housing—are completely applied, at least for the present. If and when those vital controls are eased ,we cannot expect they will much more than accommodate defense and military housing demands unless we are extremely fortunate.

Other items on the shortage list are being added weekly, and Dad might as well resign himself to putting those blueprints back in the desk for a long time to come, like it or not.

Meanwhile, he would do well to concern himself with how well this country applies itself to this part of the job at hand—supplying homes for thousands who will turn their efforts to manning the new or reconverted plants of the defense machine.

The change from peace to war preparedness in housing must be both swift and broad—as swift as possible, but only as broad as necessary to meet the demands of national security.

Now, while this change is in the planning stage, is the time to face up to a problem we failed at in World War II. The question is: do shortages of materials demand sub-standard housing in defense areas, or can we build permanently and creditably while we do the job forced upon us by the Communist threat?

In seeking an answer, we must consider that the Communists would not mind defeating us on the battlefield, but would prefer to watch our ruin in the slower war of economics. Therefore, it is logical to ignore the fact that bad living conditions provide the fertile ground for discontent upon which communism thrives? And to what extent can we afford to waste the billions in defense housing that can result from jerry-building, poor planning, or no planning?

The defense housing measures, now before congress, provide the basic legal structures for government financial aid and power to channel building efforts into defense areas. Debatable details will be threshed out in both houses. The defense housing and community facilities act of 1951 properly calls upon private industry and private financing to perform the major part of the job.

Government administrator, however, will have to determine the pace and quality of that task. Will they, at our insistence, avoid the mistakes of World War II?

Too late and too little describe the pattern of those mistakes.

Those multitudes who lived in trailer camps, shacks, high-priced attics and suffered separations from families because decent homes were not available know the human price paid for "too late." Social agencies have long files on the rips in our moral fabric because of this shortcoming. Revolutionary improvements in construction speed should eliminate this problem, if proper planning is applied.

The product of "too little" need not be measured by the dollar waste of jerry-building alone. It pockmarks the country today with physical eyesores that stand as monuments to haste, panic and indifference. Our company built some of those war housing communities in 1943—to other people's specifications designed to save critical materials which I saw piled mountain-high a year later when I served as a Seabee in the Pacific.

Many other builders had the same experience. We are not proud of those war houses. We are proud of the communities we built in the past five years, and know how to build both types.

Which kind will be build now?

That can be safely answered after it is determined, first, how much critical material will be needed by the military for defense on the adjustable scale of a cold, warm or hot war basis. Those needs must be compared with our overall production capacities.

Then, Washington will have to decide what part of those materials, if any, could be used for defense housing, fully realizing that migrating workers will create demands for new homes which are vital to defense production.

The entire war housing bill was less than two per cent of the cost of licking Japan and Germany. The amount of critical materials needed to make that two per cent expenditure a lasting credit to the nation would have been a minute part of the total production for war.

Because those materials were not allocated for defense housing —and sound planners urge only that they be allocated where such housing will have a post-war use and value—vast communities of sub-standard houses were built to create new blights on industrial and military areas.

Permanent homes of lasting value can be built only by using some materials also needed by the military in the primary war pursuits.

If enough of those materials can be used to supply the needs of defense housing, then let's build good houses in those areas. If they cannot be spared, then let's call on American resourcefulness to build the best that can possibly be built, and not just be content with slums.

But first, let's have facts and figures on which to base the best possible plans.

Radiologists Have Many New Ideas

By Jack Harr
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

Chicago —(NEA) — Dr. Richard Chamberlain of Philadelphia took a long look around the exhibition hall and said: "When you come to one of these meetings, you begin to feel like a one-eyed boy at a three-ring circus."

That is how a radiologist with 12 years of college and advanced training feels when his colleagues from all over the country gather to describe to each other the latest in their field.

Any one of the 2100 radiologists assembled at the convention in Chicago would concur with Dr. Chamberlain. Their science, vastly important not only in combatting disease, but also in controlling radiation effects in a potential atom bomb attack, has grown tremendously since the days of Madame Curie and Konrad Roentgen.

And yet, as Dr. Warren Furey, outgoing president of the Radiological Society of North America, puts it: "We're only in the kindergarten stage. We're just on the threshold of a whole new world in medicine."

According to 36-year-old Dr. Chamberlain, the convention was like going back to school—"a week-long, concentrated, intense school with dozens of new developments tossed at you."

"A radiologist," he explained, "Is a combination doctor, radiology specialist, physicist, chemist, photographer and mechanic. So new trends can come from almost any quarter. If you've absorbed a fraction of it when you go home, it's been a week well spent."

A few of the developments brought up at the recent meeting will illustrate his point:

Cobalt 60: A man-made radioactive substance for internal use, it is cheaper than radium, less irritating to the patient, and easier to control.

The Westinghouse tube: It amplifies and enlarges X-ray images, making for better diagnoses.

New high-speed X-ray machine: It enables the technician to photograph a portion of the body from two angles at the same time. This was developed by Dr. Wendell Scott of St. Louis, who got the idea from observing the Fairchild aerial camera during World War II.

Treating heart disease with radioactive iodine: This was Dr. Chamberlain's paper, which showed how treating the thyroid gland with radioactive iodine relieved patients suffering from angina pectoris, a heart ailment characterized by crippling pains.

Crystal dosimetry: Still in the experimental stage, this is a new type of radioactivity detector being developed by the navy.

On top of the customary deluge of new ideas, the big discussion among the doctors was about their prospective role in atom war.

They will probably be the key men in the medical units which will treat the thousands of refugees from any atom-blasted area. Under the expanding civil defense set-up, the estimated 4000 radiologists in the United States will be ready to fight the devastating effects of their science—same science which they are now employing in beneficial manner.

The last big rail disaster in the metropolitan New York area occurred Thanksgiving eve at Kew Gardens, N.Y., when 79 persons died in a Long Island railroad train wreck. Thirty-two Long Island passengers were killed at Rockville Centre last February 17. and operated the Long Island. However, the Long Island went into bankruptcy before the wrecks and since has been operated under the supervision of a New York federal court.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Boeing staged its own private bull market today with a jump of more than $5 that was the top feature of a rising stock market.

Boeing was up 1½ yesterday after it was disclosed that military orders had been placed for the company's new small gas turbine engine.

And today new buying piled in to push the stock forward rapidly. The demand spilled over into the other aircraft issues, especially Douglas which advanced around $4.

Otherwise the stock market put on a quiet demonstration of strength that took it to another new high for 1950-51.

The volume of business, however, amounted to 1,060,000 shares, down considerable from the total of 1,390,000 shares posted a week ago.

Deaths Termed Murder, Suicide

Berkeley, Calif., Feb. 10.—(AP)—The bodies of an attractive model and her husband were found in their apartment here last night, and Police Inspector A. R. Frock said it was murder and suicide.

The victims were David E. Cary 30, an instructor at the L. Ron Hubbard Dianetics Institute in Los Angeles; and his wife, Helen, 28, a model at the California College of Arts and Crafts.

Police theorized that Mrs. Cary shot her husband once in the chest, then turned a .38 caliber pistol on herself. She had been shot once through the roof of the mouth. Frock said the pair apparently had been dead 10 days or more.

Police said they knew of no motive for the shootings.

STOKE RETIRING CAUSES ACTION

Georgie Tucker P.-T. A. Passes Resolution Deploring Situation

Pressure alleged to be exerted in connection with the resignation from the presidency of L. S. U. of Dr. Harold W. Stoke was deplored by the Georgia Tucker P.-T. A. at their meeting the past week. Mrs. DeWitt Henry, legislative chairman, introduced the resolution which was as follows:

Be it resolved: That the Parent-Teachers Association of the Georgia Tucker School (Monroe, La.) endorses the action of the Louisiana State Parent-Teachers Association, which recently condemned the procedure and conclusion of the board of supervisors of Louisiana State University in its acceptance of the resignation of Dr. Harold W. Stoke as president of the university.

Be it further resolved: That in its endorsement of the action of the state association, this association expresses its deep regret for the resignation of Dr. Stoke, viewing his loss to Louisiana State University as the loss of educational progress in the state of Louisiana and as an indication of lack of vision on the part of those members of the board of supervisors who urged the acceptance of his resignation.

Be it further resolved: That the sharp cleavage within the board of supervisors and its lack of coordination with any expresssion of faculty sentiment concerning the office of president of the university are deplored by this association as detrimental to the best interests of higher education in the state of Louisiana.

Be it further resolved: That the local member of the board of supervisors of Louisiana State University be commended for the forthright action on exemplyfying and upholding the ideals of higher education.

Be it further resolved: That copies of this resolution be addressed to appropriate officials of the Louisiana State Parent-Teachers Association, the board of supervisors of Louisiana State University, and Dr. Harold W. Stoke.

Mrs. Darwin Nichols, president, opened the meeting with the P.-[illegible]. The P.-T. A. gave a vote of thanks to the teachers [illegible] part in the supervision of the lunch program during the lunch hour.

The program this month was in charge of the teachers and Miss Rodgers, principal, presented Mrs. Cummings, the kindergarten teacher. Mrs. Bob Burns first grade teacher Mrs. Willard, second grade teacher and Mrs. Miller, third grade teacher. These teachers told how the child develops from the kindergarten through the third grade, how the child learns to adjust to the group and when the intellectual growth begins. Through these grades the teachers strive to give the child a knowledge of the communiy in which he lives and to begin the educational development which is carried on through the higher grades.

Miss [illegible] next introduced Mrs. Hammond, fourth grade teacher, Mrs. Uglesby, fifth grade teacher, Miss McDonald, sixth grade teacher. These teachers explained the growth from a small child to adolescence. How they can acquire skills, and begin to develop their own special interests in the various subjects of study. During these school years they begin to study geography and to learn of the outside world. It is in the sixth grade that they begin to read the great classics, and understand the contribution to the culture of the world from the various countries.

Mrs. Abbot's first grade had the largest number of parent attendance, and Mrs. McDonald's sixth grade had the largest number of parent attendance for the elementary grades.

Mrs. Walter Crow and her committee served coffee and cookies after the meeting.

SEARS EMPLOYES GET STATEMENTS

Many Participate In Savings And Profit-Sharing Fund Here

Seventy-five employes of Sears Monroe store have accumulated $158,033 in the "Savings and Profit Sharing Pension Fund of Sears, Roebuck and Co. Employes., C. D. McAdams store manager, announced Saturday at a meeting of the store's fund members.

The employe - members were called together to receive their annual individual statements. These statements show the extent to which each member is sharing in the company s 1950 profits.

According to Mr. McAdams, this local employe group has to its credit in the fund 2332 shares of Sears stock plus a cash balance of $35,603. Based on a year-end market value of $52.50 per share for the Sears stock, this group now has a total investment worth $158,033.

Total current assets of the fund have reached $349,400,000 (based on a year-end market value of $52.50 per share). of this amount, only $55,200,000 represents deposits from the wages and salaries of the 104,104 employe members in the fund.

The total holdings of the fund now approximate 23 per cent of the company's stock, Mr. McAdams revealed.

The Sears fund—which was started thirty-five years ago—has a two-fold purpose, Mr. McAdams explained. One is to permit employes to share in the company's profits and the other to assist them in creating a financial reserve which will help take care of their needs following their eventual retirement from business.

All regular Sears employes are eligible to join the fund after one year with the company.

Employe members of the fund deposit five per cent of their salaries up to a $250 maximum deposit into the fund each year. Sears annual contribution into the fund is based on an established percentage of its profits. This sum is credited to employe - members on a length-of-service basis.

WOMEN SENATORS ABSENT

New Haven.—(AP)—For the first time in ten years, there are no women members in the Connecticut state senate. Another oddity of the current session is that not one of the 17 Republican members of the chamber is a lawyer, although there are several of that [illegible]sion among the 10 Democrats.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By Oswald Jacoby

Discussion today of a reader's question draws out an old maxim: "Make hay while the sun shines.'

Q—The opponents need 120 for their first meld, and we need only 50 points. We make our meld, and the opponents have trouble. Should we play for a fast out or should we play for a big score on such a hand?

A—Play for a big score. This is your big chance to even matters up, so why settle for less? The chances are that you and your partner can each pick up a real fistful of cards, and that you can then control the discard pile for the rest of the hand.

This situation and the question remind me of a story about Canfield, owner of a famous gambling house a generation or two ago. He ran one game in which the "house" had very little advantage, and was asked why he bothered with it.

"That's easy, said Canfield, "The average man will stay and lose more than he'll stay and win. Take that mano ver there," and he pointed to a customer, "hes often had a run of bad luck and dropped $1000. But if he has good enough luck to win $500, he quits for fear that his luck will change. I'm bound to wind up a winner against him, and most players are just like him."

Of course, Canasta is not a gambling game—I know many pillars of the church who enjoy playing an innocent game of Canasta (and some of them are pretty good players)—but the story still applies. The average Canasta player is too timid to take full advantage of his good luck. He's bound to lose to a more courageous opponent (provided that skill is otherwise equal).

Q—We are a "club" of six women, who meet once a week to play six-hand Canasta. We want to arrange a different set of partners each week so that everybody eventially gets to play with everybody else. How can this be arranged.

A—There are 20 different arrangements, so it will take 20 weeks to exhaust all the possible combinations. By that time, you will surely have a few absentees and other interruptions of the schedule.

The best course for any club is to write down a few different partnerships in advance and choose one of them out of a hat each week. Keep a record of which people played together, so that you can keep changing if the idea continues to appeal to you.

The simplest method is to give each player a number, and then write down just a string of numbers to show what the arrangement is. For example write down 1-2-3 against 4-5-6 for one week; 1-2-4 against 3-5-6 for another week; and so on. If somebody drops out, give her number to the player who takes her place.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

INSECTS RAVAGE TIMBER

New York—(AP)—America has cut its timber losses by fire to about one-third of what it was 30 years ago, but in the same time insect damage to forests has risen until it kills more than twice as many trees as fire.

Coordinated insect control was not started until 1947, partly because there was little with which to combat the tree pests. Today new insecticides sprayed from helicopters and planes promise to reduce this great loss.

EWING TO HEAD OSCHNER BOARD

Foundation Officers Launch Drive For Two Million Dollars

New Orleans, Feb. 10.—(AP)—John D. Ewing editor and publisher of the Shreveport Times, was elected chairman of the board of governors of the non-profit Alton Ochsner Medical foundation here as a drive was launched to raise $1,995,000.

The fund, along with government money, will be used to erect a $3,320,000 hospital here.

Others elected included Edward Reid, Andalusia, Ala., vice-president, and Dr. Guy A. Caldwell, New Orleans, secretary.

A kickoff dinner for the drive was held tonight, with Ben Hogan, Texas golfer, as the prinicpal speaker.

Officials of the Ochsner clinic said the new hospital will be used in a current educational program designed to train medical specialists.

The new building also will replace the present foundation hospital, said Dr. Alton Ochsner, for whom the clinic is named. $1,325,000 will be furnished by the Louisiana state hospital board.

Dr. Ochsner told the drive workers that the remaining amount must be raised by public subscription.

Members of the foundation said they hoped to find southerners willing to support the project "as a great civic enterprise which enhances the prestige of New Orleans and the South."

Since the foundation was formed seven years ago, 137 professional men have completed fellowships in the institution.

"CRAVENETTE"
WATER REPELLENTS

Sometimes we forget there is not just one kind of weather — there are two kinds. Wet and dry. That is why it is good sense, when you send us garments for cleaning, to ask us to treat them, too, with "Cravenette" water repellents. This service will refresh and renew your topcoats, raincoats, overcoats, jackets, suits, and other outer wear; not only will you get protection in wet weather as well as dry, but your clothes will keep their shape and stay pressed better. It is an economy because it is a long-life treatment for your clothes.

Miss Jane McClendon And William Humble Exchange Marriage Vows

Wedding Of Calhoun Couple Solemnized In Methodist Church, January 27

Of sincere interest to friends in this area is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Jane McClendon, dautghter of Wade Bryan McClenddon, of Calhoun, too Mr. William Jefferson Humble, son of Mrs. Jake Humble and the late Mr. Humble of Calhoun. The Reverend T. O. Rorie, Jr., performed the double ring ceremony at seven o'clock on Saturday evening, January 27, in the Calhoun Methodist Church. The vows were made under a white arch entwined with southern smilax and white satin streamers. Tall white tapers gleamed in the background from a smaller triple arch. Tall baskets filled with white gladioli and fernery flanked the sides of the altar.

Prior to the ceremony, the candles were lighted by Sam Boyd and Louis Pipes. A program of nuptial music consisting of "The Lord's Prayer" and "Clair de Lune" was rendered by William Boyce Humble Jr., and he accompanied Irving Zeidman of Monroe as he sang "Yours is My Heart Alone" and Because." The traditional marches were played for the processional and recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of white satin and imported Chantilly lace The bodice was tightly fitted with tiny satin covered buttons to the waist, long sleeves ended with calla lily points at her wrists; and the skirt was full with the traditional train. The fingertip veil of illusion fell from a coronet of white satin and lace trimmed with tiny seed pearls which fitted close to her head. She carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid from which cascaded satin streamers looped with lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Joann McClendon, sister of the bride, was wearing a deep aqua gown with full skirt, a matching cap with a ruffle of pink net at the back and elbow length mitts of pink net. She carried a bouquet of pink Marconi Daises.

The bridesmaids, Miss Betty Humble, sister of the groom, and Miss Loraine McClendon, cousin of the bride, both of Monroe, wore identical gowns of fuschia tafetta with matching caps and carried bouquets of pink Marconi daisies with cascades of pink ribbon. They wore elbow length mits of pink net Little Misses Marsha Ann Bodenhammer of Mason, Texas; and Ellen Ferguson, nieces of the bride, dressed in blue and pink net and satin, the flower girls, carried white baskets of pink daisies.

Robert Perkins Humble served his brother as best man. Ushers were Herman DeLoach, West Monroe, Louis Pipes and Sam Boyd.

Mrs. James Ferguson, sister of the bride, chose for this occasion a lovely black crepe model with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Humble was becomingly attired in a black wool suit with which she wore black accessories and a corsage of white baby mums.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Calhoun school cafeteria. The guests were greeted by the wedding party. The bride's table was covered with a beautiful white imported linen cloth with crystal candelabra and slim white lighted candles. The centerpiece was a lovely crystal bowl of Marconi daisies and candytuft. At one end of the table was the three-tiered bride's cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. At the other end was the crystal punch bowl, with Mrs. Edward Wilburn Patrick of Lake Providence presiding. Mrs. Kelso McClendon and Mrs. Claude Roberts served the cake. Assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. Dot Johnson and Miss Eleanor Wilder.

Miss Eleanor Humble, in a strapless blue satin and net ballerina length gown, was in charge of the bride's book.

For the wedding trip the bride changed to a blue gabardine suit with matching accessories. She wore a white orchid.

The bride and groom are graduates of Calhoun High School and attended Louisiana Tech at Ruston. Mr Humble is a veteran of World War II, having been stationed in Korea. He is employed in Monroe, where the couple will make their home.

Cans Can Be Used For Mailing Food

"Save those baking powder cans and any others that seal in a similar way," is the advice given by Mrs. Mildred Swift. "I talked with Miss Estelle Fournet, state food preservation specialist and she says these cans are excellent for sending food overseas to the boys."

The agent states that when making candy to ship, pour it directly into this greased can. There will be less chance of mold if the can is filled. Cut a piece of wax paper or aluminum foil just the size of the can and place on top of the candy.

The agent states that crisp cookies keep well when shipped. Let the cookies cool then put them in air tight cans. Fried chicken must be prepared as for canning, using a can that is sealed. Then it must be processed in a steam pressure cooker.

Mrs. Swift warns against sending chicken and other foods containing moisture, unless they are prepared properly. These foods spoil, ruin all other foods in your box and often the contents will drip through and cause food spoilage in other boxes, too.

Prentice, Mrs. A. F. McMullen, and Mrs. R. J. Wills assisting as co-hostesses. Mrs. DeWees home was decorated with beautiful spring flowers arranged by Mrs. McMullen.

Those members who braved the elements found it well worth their trouble, as Mrs. Mildred Swift gave a most timely and informative talk on "roses." In her introductory remarks, Mrs. Swift pointed out that the rose is the queen of flowers, even being used as a badge of royalty in the olden days. Many songs and poems have been inspired by this lovely flower.

Mrs. Swift emphasized that rose growers should stick to those which have been tested for this climate and proven successful. In naming varieties recommended by the Louisiana State University experimental department, she included the Radiance, Editor McFarland, Etoile de Holland, Peace, Eclipse, Lowell Thomas, Forty Niner, Countess Vandal Charlotte Armstrong, Mirandy, Tallyho, and Crimson Glory.

Mrs. Swift stated that the cardinal rule in buying rose bushes is to get two-year old, number one field grown plants from a reliable dealer. Never sacrifice quality for price. These plants should be set out the last of January or during the month of February. Roses require good drainage and at least half a day in the sun. For fertilizer, she recommends well rotted stable manure, but pointed out that this must be placed well beneath the roots to avoid burning them. If a commercial fertilizer is used put two pounds to each one hundred square feet on top of the soil

When planting the bushes, Mrs. Swift said it is best to cut off bruised roots and to avoid crowding the roots. Allow three feet between plants. Never set out when the soil is muddy but water after the bush has been planted.

In regard to cultivation she stated this was necessary during the summer to avoid packing of the soil, but not over a depth of two or three inches. A good mulch will eliminate to a great extent the necessity for cultivation.

Mrs. Swift demonstrated the correct way to prune, which is to an outside bud. This prevent branches from growing inward and causing cross-caning. She concluded her talk with pointers on leaf spot control. These include raking up dead leaves and burning them, also all spotted leaves, and spraying with a Bordeaux mixture.

Mrs. Swift passed out bulletins on "How to Grow Roses" to each member. She also introduced her associate, Miss Barbara Gwinn. Mrs. E. L. Hoskins presided over the business session, while Mrs. W. E. Young acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. S. D. Burnett. A quorum was declared and a report from the nominating committee was read by Mrs. A. F. McMullen and accepted. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. John A. Peters; Vice President, Mrs. Gerald Frasher; Second, Vice President, Mrs. G. C. Williams; Recording Secretary, Mrs. W. E. Young; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. H. O. Hartman; Treasurer, Mrs. M. R. Hausherr; Historian, Mrs. Aline Banister; and Parlimentarian, Mrs. H. F. Madison, Jr.

Mrs. W. E. Young read a report from the executive committee containing various recommendations. After these were voted upon, the meeting was adjourned.

Mrs. DeWees and her co-hostesses served delicious refreshments which carried out the Valentine motif to the following members: Mesdames Aline Banister, R. N. Dozier Gerald Frasier, M. J. Hortman, M. R. Hausherr, E. L. Hoskins, M. W. Montgomery, Jewell McQuiller, John A. Peters, F. V. Reitzell, and L. R. Harrison.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Did all you Scouts enjoy the snow last week? It is fun for awhile, but after all, isn't it good to be back in routine of school, scout meetings and the like and to know that such weather isn't likely to come again for a long time?

The meetings that must be held indoors during the worst of the winter weather are the very time to be planning for outdoor activities the very first peep of spring Judith Turpin tells us that Troop 11 has planned a cookout on the banks of the bayou the first pretty Wednesday. Last year third-grade Brownie Scouts learned about kaper charts and one-pot meals and other out of door skills, making what Scouts call campfire stew. The girls are anxious to do it again, now that they are a year older, just to prove that they can do a more grown-up job.

Last week we wrote of several trips taken by Brownie Scouts in order to learn about their community and to learn to appreciate the way other people help to make our lives safer and more comfortable. We've heard of two more such trips, one accomplished and one planned.

Girls of Troop 44, report Mrs. James Wyatt and Mrs. Lea Thompson, their leaders, had the time of their lives when they visited the fire station on a recent meeting day. The cooperative firemen not only explained about all the equipment, but demonstrated jumping into their boots and sliding down the pole, much to the delight of their audience And we hazard a guess that the girls learned more about fire prevention from the trip than they would have in any other way.

Frances Brady and June Strausser report that Troop 34 is planning a visit to the postoffice next week to mail boxes of Christmas cards which they have collected. It seems that the cards are wanted by an institution for paralytic children.

We are glad someone has found a use for the cards; it always seems a shame to throw them away. When the girls go to mail the packages they will learn what happens behind the windows at the postoffice and along the line until the packages reach their destination.

A couple of Saturdays ago we saw a line of uniformed Brownie Scouts with their leaders, also in uniform, crossing a downtown street. Curious to know just what they were up to, we questioned Mrs. Irving Zeidman, their leader, and found that girls of Troop 22 like to do things together aside from regular meetings and this time had attended a well-known children's program at the recreation center. On this Saturday morning the girls had been particularly interested in seeing the mother of Kay Field, a member of the troop, awarded an orchid because of a prize winning letter written by Margaret Field, her Girl Scout daughter. Congratulations, Mrs. Field, we think you deserve an orchid as leader of Troop 33

Seems to be all Brownies in the news today. We haven't kept account, but we suspect that some weeks the news has all been of IntermediatehScouts.

COOK SPURNS MEMOIRS

Rome—(AP)—The man who was Benito Mussolini's cook for 18 years recently got his picture in the newspapers for refusing to write his memoirs.

The cook, 47-year-old Mario Ercoli, turned down a publisher's offer with a shrug and the remark that he could cook the best plate of macaroni and cheese ever tasted.

Ercoli is alive today because an American army officer kept partisans from executing him when Il Duce was shot and strung up by his heels.

THE WEEK IN BOOKS

Angel of Gaiety by Joseph Hitrec, begins with the attempt to explore the east-west problem in India through the plight of a young woman named Stella, whose father was an Irishman and whose mother was an Indian. It gets off to a pomising start with a certain segment of British society in Bombay twisted in its attitude toward the Eurasian woman, herself torn by loyalty to her dead Indian husband and an avid desire to ape the Europeans who have so long snubbed her

But before too many pages have run their course, "Angel of Gaiety" loses ground. Although the tragic consequences of Stella's confusion seep through the narrative, too much of her character is too vague and unreal to create the concern it should.

The most carefully-sculptured character in the book is a simple little peacock of an Englishman, Bert Wheeler, who viciously condemns Stella for an enterprising woman of the streets while rationalizing his own activity with a German widow who "reminds him of his wife."

Mr. Hitrec is a good writer. Whether probing into the sordid affairs of men and women or describing a sunset on a Bombay river, his narrative is compelling. In addition, there is a sharp understanding English snobbery and sex, but Stella, as the east-west pivot, deserves keener imagination. (ANGEL OF GAIETY. By Joseph Hitrec. 246 pp. New York: Harper & Brothers. 3.00).

Home Is An Island. Alfred Lewis's epitaph to childhood in the Azores Islands, is the incredibly simple story of scattered events in the life of Jose, who grows up on the isle of Beira and dreams of the American life. If it is remarkable at all, it is because Mr. Lewis himself was an island lad who came to America, longed to write a book in English, and taught himself the language. Otherwise, "Home Is An Island" is a harmless sentiment. (HOME IS AN ISLAND. By Alfred Lewis. 308 pp. New York: Random House. $3.00)

OUT OF THE PAST

Once in awhile when such a series as Victor's "Treasury of Immortal Performances" reaches the public, one feels like thanking Mr. Edison on bended knee. This week we discuss two of this series one with Enrico Caruso singing his famous operas and the other, entitled "Golden Voices Sing Light Music," and starring such steller delights as Galli-Curci, Feodor Chaliapin, Rosa Ponselle, Schumann Heink and John McCormack.

The Caruso selections in the one album range from L'Elisir D'Amore to his best-remembered role in I Pagliacci. It is common practice today to hear oldsters damn a rising new tenor with the deadly verdict, "He's no Caruso." Perhaps that seems an unfair decision but after listening and re-listening to his Boheme, Aida and incomparable Pagliacci—recorded as early as 1907—one must necessarily wonder if any tenor can ever match it

As for the album of light selections, it, too, contains invaluable collectors' items. Amelita Galli-Curci singing "The Last Rose of Summer"; Chaliapin's healthy bass in "The Song of the Volga Boatmen"; John McCormack and his Irish tenor with "Love's Secret"; Louise Homer's "Oh, Promise Me," and others in the same romantic vein. Were one to distinguish them by all the good's, better's and best's in the language, he'd come to an abrupt dead end. It remains merely to recognize one's favorites. In this instance, Chaliapin's Boatman is rare and Schumann-Heink's "Danny Boy" inimitable. (A TREASURY OF IMMORTAL PERFORMANCES. 1. Caruso. 2. Golden Voices That Sing Light Music. RCA Victor. 33, 45, 78.)

BOOKS THAT SING

With new and tested methods of combining education with entertainment for the child's growing-up, many novel plans have been introduced to the parent. One of the best is the combination book-sheet-music which the Boston Music Company produces. In two such works, "Stories That Sing", and "Songs And Stories About Animals." Ethel Crowninshield has combined very readable stories with short and simple ditties for piano and the voices of tots. To illustrate each story and song are pictures drawn by kindergarten child reproduction.

As for the stories, they can be read by an adult or a child in the first pangs of reading. An example: "Mary had a new red dress. She wore it to school. This is the song she sang about." Then the child's song, "Do You Like My New Red Dress? The animal songs and stories are probably better ranged. Such favorites as the penguin crocodile, whale and monkey are given pleasant treatment.

Since children's record albums, with narrative and song, have become a nation-wide favorite, such appearance in book-and-music is all the more appropriate. (STORIES THAT SING AND SONGS AND STORIES ABOUT ANIMALS. Boston: Boston Music COMPANY. $2.00.)

Mrs. William F. Trieschamann Hostess At Tea Complimentary To Miss Richards

First and largest of a number of lovely parties complimenting Miss Joan Richards, bride-elect of Mr. Charles Lyle Cormack of Little Rock, Ark., and Muskogee, Okla., was the tea at the Legion home in Lake Providence on Monday afternoon from four to six with Mrs. William Frederick Trieschmann as hostess.

BRIDE AND GROOM

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McDaniel shown cutting their wedding cake following their marriage on January 20. The bride is the former Miss Joan Thompson, daughter of Mrs. Cora E. Thompson of this city, The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McDaniel of Calhoun.

MISS JOAN THOMPSON IS BRIDE OF GERALD M'DANIEL

Against a background of white gladiolas and glowing candles Miss Joan Thompson, daughter of Mrs. Cora E. Thompson of this city, became the bride of Mr. Gerald McDaniel, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McDaniel of Calhoun, Louisiana on Saturday, January 20, at seven in the evening at her home at 618 Oak street. Reverend A. T. Mitchell of the Ridge Avenue Baptist Church performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride was lovely in a pale blue wool jersey frock, sequin trimmed with Chinese collar and rhinestone buttons to the waist. Her accessories were navy, accentuated by a plumed winter white flet hat. An orchid corsage completed her wedding attire.

Miss Betty Jean Vaughn, the maid of honor and only attendant, was accompanied by J. T. Kelly of Shreveport, best man and long-time friend of the groom. Miss Vaughn was becomingly attired in light brown satin with brown accessories. She wore a pink camellia corsage.

Preceding the ceremony the candles were lit by Mrs. Jimmie Elmore and Miss Mary Francis Griffin.

A reception was held during which time cake and punch were served to close friends and guests. Miss Mary Francis Griffin presided at the punch bowl, assisted by Mrs. Elmore and Miss Vaughn. The three-tiered wedding cake, attractively decorated with white and green with pink camellias placed around its base, was placed on a lace covered pink cloth, which adorned the bride's table.

The bride's going-away suit was of black gabardine with white accessories. They chose a New Orleans trip as their honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside at 618 Oak street.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Kelly of Shreveport, Mr. and Mrs. T. N. McKee of Victoria, Missouri, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Clack and daughter, Cascille, St. Joseph, Mrs. Irvin McDaniel, Miss Mary Louise McDaneil, Mr. Louis McDaniel, and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McDaniel, all of Calhoun, and Mrs. Dutch Keltner and her mother, Mrs. Anthony of Bastrop.

MRS. CREDILLE CALHOUN HOSTESS TO LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS GROUP

The Sherrouse Group of the League of Women Voters met in the home of Mrs. Credille Calhoun in Edgewater Gardens, Wednesday at 10:00 a. m.

After Mrs. Calhoun served the group coffee and miniature mincemeat pies, Mrs. DeWitt Henry began the discussion on the league's stand on U. S. participation in world afairs.

Mrs. Henry said that economically and from a standpoint of friendship and morale, it would hardly be practical to follow the Hoover plan. Such a course would mean breaking our treaties and falling down on all our foreign commitments. The U. S. would stand alone against a Communist world.

Mrs. Henry read a letter from the national league headquarters affirming a belief in the interdependence of nations and pointing out the league's long record of support of collective security. The League of Women Voters considers the United Nations and the North Atlantic Pact essential to forging unity and peace.

Then Mrs. Henry began a very active discussion on inflation. She pointed out that, based on the 1939 dollar, our present dollar is worth less than 60 cents, but also personal incomes and consumer credit are at the highest level in history. Civilian and military demand is partly responsible for wage and price increases. But prices and wages can't rise indefinitely without economic collapse — a depreciated dollar, destruction of capital, poverty and unemployment. To date indirect inflation controls through credit restrictions and taxation and the direct control of price stabilization have been invoked. Credit restrictions and taxation reduce spending power and strike at the cause of inflation, but the direct controls of price stabilization and rationing are recognized as necessary to suppress immediate inflation though they are difficult and expensive to administer.

Mrs. Henry will continue the discussion on inflation at the next meeting. Those present were Mrs. Jack Rushing, Mrs. Cotham Haddad, Mrs. Credille Calhoun, Mrs. DeWitt Henry, Mrs. George Forman, Mrs. William Roy, Mrs. A. E. Weidie, Mrs. John Reitzell and Mrs. J. C. Brown.

ballroom was gayly festooned with carnival colors of yellow, purple and green for the dancers who frolicked through a maze of confette and crimson alloons. Gay carnival faces drawn and painted by Miss Marion Guerriero, sister of the honoree, and balloons, outlined the ballroom.

The orchestra played a medley of patriotic tunes while Joe D. and Miss Kay McCue in gay carnival hats led the grand march.

Placed at the far end of the ballroom was the gayly decorated table in colors of yellow, purple and green centered with the unique birthday cake shaped in the form of a Mardi Gras float. The purple float was topped with the birthday cake drawn by six white small horses and candles in the form of footmen, carnival queen and king and soldiers. News From Public Library

One of the effects of the cold wave last week has been a reawakening of the people of Ouachita parish to the pleasures of reading and unpleasantness of being out of reading material. During the snow many people read all the books they had on hand and were unable to get to one of the branches of the library to borrow more. For the past week large numbers of people have been at the library all day long borrowing books, so that they would not be caught by another cold spell without reading material on hand.

Because of the railroad tie ups in the east only a few new books have been added to the library collection in the last few days. Mystery stories are always popular. Elizabeth Daly is one of the most competent writers in this field. Her new book is called "The Book of the Crime". In this story we meet again Henry Gammadge, the loving detective. This story has an unusual plot and solution, but you will want to read it for yourself. Another new book by a popular woman's writer is "The Whole Armor" by Faith Baldwin. This book is more penetrating than her usual story. It is a story of a young minister and one year in his life. It is the story of his struggle to become a human being. It is a warm and sensitive story and one with a deep spiritual significance. Stories about ministers have been popular in recent years and this one should be no exception. Readers who enjoy reading plays will be glad to know that the library has recently acquired a copy of the Broadway success "Bell, Book and Candle" by John Van Druten. It is interesting to read.

At this season when so much time has to be spent indoors, it is a good time to go back to the popular books of last year and see which ones you missed and which ones you would like to read now. In February of 1950 the books listed below were the most popular ones in the large libraries of this country. Today they are no longer in great demand, so if you have not read them, this a good time to do so. Leading the list was "The Egyptian" by Miki Waltari. This is a long novel dealing with life in ancient Egypt. Mr. Waltari has such a good sense of feel of the period, that it comes alive for us. It is a much better book than his recent one "The Adventurer." Second on the list is "Mary" by Scholem Asch. This is a ficitional story of the life of the mother of Christ. "Let Love Come Last" by Taylor Caldwell is the novel in third place. It is rather a poor story, but Miss Caldwell has a great many loyal followers. "The Naked and the Dead" by Norman Mailer was the book in fourth place one year ago. This war story was extremely popular and much talked about last year. Today no one seems interested. "1984" by George Orwell is a novel that should be read by every thinking American. It is not a pleasant book, but it certainly paints a depressing picture of life under a Communist form of government. If you have any doubt about the blessings of democracy, be sure to read this book. Next on the list was "The Way West" by Alfred B. Guthrie is a fascinating story of the westward movement in this country. It is a beautifully written story and received the Pulitzer prize last year. "The Mudlark" by Bonnett was aiso popular last year. This is a delightful story of the London waif who wandered into Victoria's castle. "The Big Fisherman" by Lloyd C. Douglas is the beautiful story of Peter and his fellow diciples.

Continuing our research into the popular books of one year ago, we find that in the non-fiction field "The Mature Mind" by Overstreet led the list. This is a book that should be read by every person who considers himself mature. "This I Remember" by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is a book of reminiscences of her life as the first lady of our country. "American Freedom and Catholic Power" by Paul Blanshard is still in great demand. Next to it in popularity last year was "Seven-Story Mountain" by Thomas Merton. This is the story of Merton's conversion to Catholocism and his entrance into a Trappist monastery The fifth book in popularity was "Cheaper by the Dozen" by Frank G. Gilbreath and Ernestine Gilbreath Carey. The sixth, seventh and eight places were taken with religious books "The Waters of Siloe" by Fulton Sheen. Quite different was the next book on the list "The Aspirin Age" by Isobel Leighton. This book is a picture of life in the United States between the last two wars. Next on the list was Harnett Kane's "Queen New Orleans" and following it in popularity was "The Roosevelt Myth" by John T. Flynn. These books are available at the Ouachita Parish Public Library and if you did not read them last year, you will enjoy them now.

WEDS IN JANUARY

Mrs. Talmadge E. Foster was the former Miss Vera Rawls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Webb Rawls, of West Monroe, before her marriage in Yuma, Arizona, January 7th. Sgt. Foster is the son of Mrs. G. L. Hagler of Los Angeles, California.

Vera Rawls Weds Marine Sergeant In Yuma, Arizona

Of interest to friends in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Vera Rawls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Webb Rawls of West Monroe, whose marriage to Sgt. Talmadge E. Foster, son of Mrs. G. L. Hagler of Los Angeles, Calif., was solemnized in Yuma, Arizona, January 7th.

The impressive double-ring ceremony was performed in the Gretna Green wedding chapel before an alter beautifully decorated with carnations and greenery and branched candelabra holding slender white tapers. Soft organ music was played during the ceremony.

The bride was lovely in a plum suit with accessories of black. She was wearing a shoulder corsage of pink carnations tied with pink ribbon.

Mrs. A. L. DeLoach, Jr., sister of the bride and only attendant, wore a black suit with matching accessories. Mr. G. H. Hoggard, of Alpine, California, uncle of the groom, served as best man.

Following the ceremony an informal dinner was held for friends and relatives present.

Sergeant Foster, U.S.M.C., until recently was stationed in Oceanside, Calif. He has now sailed for overseas duty and the bride is residing at the home of her parents in West Monroe.

For a new salad combination add diced oranges and onion to shredded cabbage; mix with a well- seasoned mayonnaise- type dressing. Garnish with water cress if it is available.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY TO LOUISIANA STATE MEDICAL SOCIETY MEETS

The 1950-51 mid-year board meeting of the woman's auxiliary to the Louisiana State Medical Society was held Tuesday at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club in Monroe, with Mrs. DeWitt T. Milam, president, presiding.

Twenty three members were present, representing all sections of the state. Routine business was transacted and the various projects and programs of the state auxiliary were discussed. Reports were given by all officers, councilors, and committee chairman who were present.

Mrs. Milam announced that Gov. Earl K. Long had signed the proclamation declaring March 30 as doctor's day, and that he had also endorsed the resolution opposing compulsory health insurance.

The promotion of the magazine "Todays Health' published by the American Medical Association for the general public was discussed. The large number of subscriptions this year showed an increased interest in this medium of disseminating health information to the public. The reports of work done by the parish auxiliaries throughout the state in Red Cross, cancer drives and civil defense plans, were most outstanding.

Members of the board living in Monroe entertained the out-of-town guests at a breakfast at the lovely home of Dr. and Mrs. C. U. Johnson on Forsythe Ave. At the close of the morning session there was a luncheon at the Country Club.

Mrs. Milam invited all the members of the board to an open house at her home on Island drive following the afternoon session. In spite of the ice, snow and freezing weather all accepted her invitation. The open house was followed by a buffet supper given by Dr. and Mrs. Milam.

The following members were present: Mrs. Edwin R. Guidry, Mrs. John S. Dunn, Mrs. George Feldner, Mrs. Jules Myron Davidson, Mrs. Edwin A. Socola, Mrs. Theodore Simon and Mrs. Grenes Cole from New Orleans; Mrs. Roy Carl Young, Covington; Mrs. Rhodes Spedale, Plaquemine; Mrs. M. C. Wiginton, Hammond; Mrs. E. B. DO YOU KNOW PIANOS?

Consider carefully the following question (and weekly questions to follow) before you select your new piano. No matter how attractive a piano may LOOK, it is the HIDDEN musical and mechanical qualities which make it a fine instrument, or an unsatisfactory one.

Q. Is direct-blow action an important feature to insist on?

A.

Yes, because it insures getting the very finest brisk, fast, and easy key action with fast repeat on every note. Only in direct-blow action does the key sit directly under the "jack." The result gives the small modern piano new power, new sensitivity of touch, and new high speed in repeat playing. The piano's action - - the moving parts that turn the pressing down of the keys into musical tone - - is an amazing combination of strength and delicacy. It must operate smoothly and noiselessly, and must repeat as speedily as the finest musician can play . . . yet it must also be strong enough to stand long and hard usage. Direct-blow action means mechanical excellence and the fewest moving parts.

COMING TO PARAMOUNT

Alan Ladd Starred In 'Branded,' A Technicolor Epic Soon At Paramount

Mona Freeman And Charles Bickford Also In Film Here Wednesday

Filmer largely amid the awesome splendor of massive Salt River Canyon in Arizona, Paramount's "Branded," which comes to the Paramount Theater on Wednesday has been hailed as a dazzling adventure spellbinder that matches the brilliance of its rich natural settings with the histrionic glitter of such top stars as Alan Ladd, Mona Freeman and Charles Bickford.

In color by Technicolor, the striking rock formations, ragged peaks and sheer cliffs that drop thousands of feet to the tortuous river bed below serve as a vivid background for the sizzling action and nerve-fraying suspense that makes this big-scale outdoor thriller one of the major film treats of the year.

Alan Ladd reportedly tops his great portrayal in "Whispering Smith" with this role of a trouble-loving gunfighter who tries to steal a ranch by posing as a wealthy cattleman's long lost son. He abandons the scheme when he falls in love with the rancher's lovely young daughter, and crossing over to the right side of the law, he rides into Mexico to find the real heir to the cattle empire.

Such is the core of the plot around which screen writers Sydney Boehin and Cyril Hume have fashioned a high tension story that tingles with excitement from the pistol crack of the opening scene to the final blasting climax.

Ladd is said to handle his role with all the vigor and assurance that have made him a top-ranking favorite with millions of moviegoers, and it seems a good bet that he'll be slated for many more western dramas. Mona Freeman, who has happily graduated from adolescent roles, shows that the change was warranted. As the rancher's daughter who tames the ruthless gunman, she is adult and bewitchingly provocative.

Charles Bickford is seen as the cattleman who turns heaven and earth to find his missing son, and Robert Keith appears as the desperado who guns for him. Capable support is also given by featured players Joseph Calleia and Peter Hanson

Rains Starred At Joy Drive-In Now

Fifteen years ago Claude Rains made his first screen test and proved a spectacular flop. It's reported the kindest comment heard was, "He's awful." Yet, despite that less than enthusiastic response, the test won Rains his first screen role and marked the beginning of his spectacularly successful motion picture career.

Veteran observers agreed he looked terrible, but to a man they acclaimed his beautiful speaking voice. And since the role he was being tested for was that of the "invisible man" in the picture of the same name, Rains got the part. Although moviegoers didn't see him, they heard him, liked him and clamored for more. Never slow to take a hint, the major movie companies soon beat the proverbial well-worn path to his door and Rains "the voice" became Rains "the star."

Currently appearing in Paramount's "Song of Surrender," now at the Joy Drive-In Theater, the distinguished character actor served his theatrical apprenticeship in London. Within a few years he was appearing in stage successes, delighting audiences on both sides of the Atlantic.

After his memorable screen test, he devoted himself exclusively to films. Rains considers motion pictures a far superior medium for drama than the stage and a more challenging one for the actor. Unlike many of his fellow thespians, he harbors no secret ambitions to be a director or a producer. He's content to perform in front of the cameras.

Part of his continuing success is due to the fact that he loses himself completely in a role. Cast him as a man who has a cold, and he's sneezing and coughing all day long. On one occasion this passion for realism made him wonder aloud what would happen if he were playing an expectant mother. "I'd probably have the baby there before the cameras," he is quoted as saying.

Harrisonburg Youth Leaders At Banquet

Jonesville, Feb. 10.—(Special)—Catahoulas local leaders in 4-H work were honored Wednesday night at a banquet at Harrisonburg school, and the importance of their work with youth was emphasized by the main speaker, G. C. Shirley, assistant state 4-H Club agent.

"The average local leader in this country gives 11 days of time each year to assisting with 4-H work, Shirley pointed out. "This means that 50,000 free days of work are given to 4-H youth, so you can see where we would be without the help of folks like you.

"Extension agents can get the ball rolling, but it is you adults who keep it rolling, he said. "The local leaders are largely responsible for the success of 4-H work.

STARTS THURSDAY AT JOY

Nightime and fight time for Van Johnson and Kathryn Grayson in this scene from MGM's comedy, "Grounds for Marriage."

Stars, Romance, Laughs And Songs Highlight 'Grounds For Marriage'

Van Johnson And Kathryn Grayson Starred In Film Coming To Joy

Romance, laughs and song are adroitly combined in "Grounds for Marriage," M-G-M's merry marital mix-up, starting Thursday at the Joy Theatre, with Van Johnson and Kathryn Grayson teamed as a respective doctor and songstress who find that operas and operations do not mix.

Miss Grayson enacts the alluring young singer who returns to New York from a triumphant European tour determined to recapture the doctor-husband whom, in a fit of temperament, she had divorced a few years previously. The fact that he has meanwhile become enamoured of Paula Raymond, attractive daughter of a medical associate, does not deter the ex-wife from using every wile at her command to break up the new romantic attachment. When all else fails, she contracts a curious ailment, known as "Functional Aphonia," and loses her voice. Johnson is informed by the best medical advice that unless he wishes to ruin his former wife's opera career he must co-operate in restoring her "emotional security," a restoration which will insure the return of her voice. When the young doctor, therefore, does his best to aid in Miss Grayson's recovery, Miss Raymond is brought to feel that his "co-operation" goes too far. The resulting three-fold dilemma brings about a series of hilarious romantic complication ending on a high note of laughter and song.

Van Johnson again reveals his flair for light comedy in an ingratiating portrait of the young doctor caught between his ex-wife and fiancee, the new role also giving him an opportunity to reveal his skill at dancing a snappy Charleston. Miss Grayson is delightful as the glamorous and flirtations diva, who offers her glowing voice in excerpts of "La Boheme," "Carmen" (this is done in a fanciful dream sequence with Johnson also participating), and Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Hymn to the Sun."

Paula Raymond gives a spirited performance as the jealous fiancee. Barry Sullivan plays the debonair brother who attempts to switch places with Johnson in the affections of his ex-wife. Other top-notch portrayals are offered by Lewis Stone, cast as Miss Raymond's sagacious father, and Reginald Owen, playing the harried opera company manager.

PTA FOUNDERS TO BE HONORED

Selman Unit To Have Important Session; 5th Grade Mothers Hostesses

Mrs. Floyd Parker, Founders Day chairman for Selman Parent-Teacher Association is planning an informative and entertaining program commemorating the fifty-fourth anniversary of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. Emphasis will be placed upon the lives of the early founders—especially Alice McCellan Birney and Phoebe Apperson Hearst.

It was the dream of Alice McLellan Birney made into a reality by the help of her friend Phoebe Apperson Hearst back in 1897 that gives to us today the organization known as the National Congress of Parents and Teachers—the State Parent-Teacher Associations, our district set-up, our councils and, to us the most important of all our own local units.

It is a privilege to be able to pay tribute to these fine women, who met, and surmounted many obstacles in order that the children of our nation would have their opportunities in life. Mrs. J. H. Alford, president of Selman P.-T. A., joins Mrs. Floyd Humble in urging all parents, members and friends to attend this Founders' Day meeting.

The fifth grade mothers will be hostesses at this occasion, which will be held at Selman cafeteria Thursday, February 15, at 3 p.m.

Lent is a time for quiet preparation and planning. A time of self-denial and sacrifice. A time when we should seek to add to our spiritual life, which involves much time for prayer, worship and service on the part of every church member. Bible Comment
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

It was as the Savior of men, the Redeemer, that Jesus fulfilled His earthly mission, but the Gospels reveal on almost every page how the Savior of Men was also teacher, healer, and friend.

It was Paul who admonished his fellow-Christians to "rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep," but this was among the many things that Paul had learned from his Master.

For Jesus was the great Sympathizer, entering into the joys and sorrows of life, weeping with those who wept, but sharing the joys of a wedding feast. He freely accepted hospitality and mingled with men, especially with the common people "who heard Him gladly." In innumerable ways He revealed His true humanity.

We call Him "the Man of Sorrows," and it befits one who bore the world's sins, and invited the heavily laden to come to Him for rest. But back of the sorrow, and the tragedy of the sin that crucified Him, was One who was neither recluse, nor ascetic.

If we would see Jesus as He was, let us read into the nicknames that He gave to some of His followers—the wavering Simon, whom he called Peter, a Rock, and the flaming and ambitious zealots, James and John, who He called the "Sons of Thunder."

It is this humanity of the divine Christ that must be experienced, if we would know in its fulness the continuing Presence of the Master.

He is not only our Savior, but also our Friend. He called His diciples "friends," and He is the friend of all who would be His disciples.

This continuing Presence and Friendship of Jesus is not a myth, nor an imagination, nor an emotional illusion. Nothing is more sure than that thousands have felt, and feel, the reality of that spiritual Presence.

It brings into daily life and experience the warmth and tenderness, the faith and hope, the uplifting word, that helped and inspired and blessed those who met the Master in His earthly life.

But if one would have that experience of the present Christ today, he must know that Master in His earthly life. We cannot have spiritual communion with those whom we do not know. To those who would know and feel the presence of the Christ, as Friend, Inspirer, and Helper, I commend the reading of the New Testament, and especially of the four Gospels.

It is not enough to read a chapter, or an incident, here and there. One should read it as one would read a book that he wished to know in its heart and in every part.

To one who thus reads the Gospels the New Testament will, I believe, undoubtedly reveal its message, and make the Christ not only a great Savior in an ancient Holy Land, but a living Presence, a Companion, and Friend in life's daily way.

BOY SCOUT WEEK FEB. 6th to 12th

DEDICATING THEMSELVES TO THE IDEALS OF AMERICA - - - -

As Expressed In The Declaration Of Independence And The Constitution—And Symbolized By The Statue Of Liberty.

Article IV—Declaration Of Religious Principle

"Section 1—The Boy Scouts of America maintains that no boy can grow into the best kind of citizenship without recognizing his obligation to God. In the first part of the Boy Scout's Oath or Promise the boy declares, 'On my honor I will do my best to do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Law.'" The recognition of God as the ruling and leading power in the universe, and the grateful acknowledgement of His favors and blessings, are necessary to the best type of citizenship, and are wholesome things in the education of the growing boy. No matter what the boy may be—Catholic or Protestant or Jew—this fundamental need of good citizenship should be kept before him. The Boy Scouts of America therefore recognizes the religious element in the training of the boy, but it is absolutely non-sectarian in its attitude toward that religious training. Its policy is that the organization or institution with which the Boy Scout is connected shall give definite attention to his religious life.

"Only persons willing to subscribe to this declaration of principle shall be entitled to certificates of leadership in carrying out the Boy Scout Program."

OUACHITA VALLEY COUNCIL LEADS SOUTH

Scouts And Leaders Of Ouachita Join In Observing Anniversary

Scouts and leaders of the Ouachita Valley Council are joining the nation's 2,750,000 Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Explorers and their adult leaders in observing Boy Scout Week, February 6-12, by engaging in a nation-wide clothing collection to meet emergency needs abroad, by strengthening their efforts in civil defense, and pointing up the need for conserving the nation's natural resources.

The anniversary is observed in all parts of the nation by over 75,000 units. During the week, many store windows will be given over to the Boy Scouts to demonstrate some of the useful skills they acquire at their meetings and in Scout camps. There will be displays of handicraft and special exhibits calling attention to the conservation efforts of the organization, its appeal for spare clothing, and its training in civil defense.

The civil defense staff of the national security resources board has recognized the role that the Boy Scouts of America play in working with state and local civil defense agencies.

In a statement the board said that the Boy Scouts, nation-wide in scope and operating under a federal charter granted in 1916 by congress "has the responsibility of maintaining a program for training boys and young men in Scoutcraft, outdoor skills, physcial fitness and citizenship responsibilities, and in developing character."

The Boy Scouts of America, the board recognizes "has long been active in developing and carrying out a program of service in time of emergency. Its regular activites include first aid, firemanship, lifesaving, communications, sanitation, safety and similar skills that prepare for service. Its participation in the work of state and local civil defense agencies should be encouraged."

The Boy Scouts of America is prepared to assist by furnishing a civil defense messenger service, help the Red Cross in first aid training and cooperate with other organizations responsible for providing food, clothing, and shelter during emergency periods, and aid rescue units and ambulance services when requested.

In addition, when requested by state and local civil defense agencies, members of the organization will be trained and made available to work with civil defense leaders in organized self-protection programs, and such auxiliary programs as aircraft observers.

If conditions require it, the Boy Scouts of America is prepared to make available and operate its 831 Boy Scout council-owned camps for evacuees, provide activities in such centers and train its members for operating other evacuation camps.

President Truman and civil defense leaders have indicated that Scout leaders, directly related to the leadership of boys and young men should continue in Scouting as their major contribution to civil defense programs. Boys and young men can serve well only under trained leadership.

"I hope you will encourage your adult volunteer leaders," said President Truman in a message to Dr Arthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive, " to keep on with their work in their units. Boys will then continue to receive the benefits of Scouting's character-building and citizenship-training program, and to acquire the skills which fit them for emergency service."

Training for emergency service will include test mobilizations to see how quickly Scouts can assemble, fully equipped, to help in emergency situations. In some communities Scouts will make a "lost persons search" and in others they will be tested through "emergency scavenger hunts" to round up needed supplies should a disaster strike the community.

Other training includes atomic preparedness demonstrations presenting the steps necessary by an individual to protect himself in case of an attack, and demonstrations centering about household safety.

A. B. CLARKSON

PROMINENT MEN SCOUT LEADERS

Outstanding Citizens Are Deeply Interested In Boys' Welfare

Some of northeast Louisiana's most prominent citizens are actively engaged in leadership positions of the Scouting program. These men and women realize the importance of Scout training for youth and give much time in unselfish service to see that the program is carried out effectively.

Leading the large group of 1,000 volunteer leaders in the Ouachita valley council is A. B. Clarkson of Monroe who was recently elected to serve his 13th year as president of the council. Throughout the years Mr. Clarkson has been one of the most outstanding Scouters of this region. In addition to his service as council president, he has served for many years on the national Boy Scout council and on the region five executive board. He has received both the Silver Beaver and Silver Antelope awards for distinguished service to boyhood. Since Mr. Clarkson was first elected as council president in 1939, the council membership has tripled and other phases of the program have progressed accordingly.

Re-elected to serve as council vice-presidents in 1951 are L. L. Price of Monroe; Floyd B. James of Ruston; L. E. Matthis, of Monroe; and W. H. Farmer, of Delhi. All of these men are veteran Scouters with many years of experience in various Scouting capacities. J. W. Webster of Monroe was also relected to serve as commissioner for the council.

The council is now entitled to three representatives on the national Scout council. Men elected to fill these positions in 1951 are Phillip J. Hannan, of Hodge; James Madison, of Bastrop; and Ken Elliott, of Ruston.

District chairmen of the seven districts in the council are L. L. Price, Monroe; Warren Hunt, Rayville; Dr. Don Davis, Lake Providence; G. D. Babin, Jonesville; Mack Barham, Bastrop; Dr. M. T. Green, Ruston; and John McCloy, Winnfield.

Operating committee chairmen which were approved by the council president and the executive board are: organization and extension, A. J. Ensminger, Wisner; leadership training, Dean Burton

Ouachita Valley Council Has Celebrated 25 Years Of Service

The Ouachita Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America, which was organized in Monroe in 1925, has been one of the greatest forces in molding the lives of the thousands of northeast Louisiana boys who have been members of this popular youth organization for the past twenty-five years. 1950, the silver anniversary year of the council, was a peak year of achievement. Almost every phase of the program reached its peak.

The council was first organized in 1924 under the name of "Fourth District Council Louisiana, Boy Scouts of America". As first set up, the council was divided into four districts, comprising the same parishes which now constitute the council. The first charter was issued to the new council by the National Boy Scout council in 1925.

The first organization had an executive board of thirteen men, headed by T. L. James, of Ruston, as president. Jack J. Keith was the first Scout executive. There were 63 members of the council and the first year's budget was $5,150.00. At the end of the first year's operation, the council had 32 troops with a membership of 641 Scouts.

One of the most progressive steps taken by the council in these early days was the providing of an ideal campside for the Scouts of the council. Camp Ki-Ro-Li was purchased in October, 1925, and has been a summer program highlight for thousands of Scouts since that time. Since 1925, the camp has been greatly developed and become one of the leading Scout camps in this area.

During the early years of the council, a great amount of emphasis was placed on camping. The council led all councils in this region in this field. In 1927, 741 Scouts attended Camp Ki-Ro-Li for a record which has never been exceeded. Scouts also did a great amount of emergency service work during this period when a great portion of the council area was flooded.

By 1930, the organization had grown considerably, serving a membership of 1,439 Scouts in 78 units. At this time, the council was led by C. E. Faulk, as council president, and L. R. Simpson, as Scout executive. Two Field

PRESIDENT GIVES B. S. A. PRAISE

Message To All Scoutdom Lauds Character Building Group

President Truman, in a message to the Boy Scouts of America on its 41st anniversary, said that "in the days ahead we will need, as never before, men of high character, resolute purpose and unflinching courage to meet successfully the problems of a challenging future."

In his message to the 2,750,000 members of the Boy Scouts of America, of which he is honorary president, Mr. Truman said that he speaks "for all patriotic citizens who believe Scouting is a bulwark against the evils of our times."

President Truman's message for Boy Scout Week was made public last night (Mon.) by Dr. Arthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive. The message follows:

"The White House
Washington

To the Boy Scouts of America:

In sending you warm greetings and hearty congratulations on the occassion of Boy Scout Week, February 6 to 12—your forty-first anniversary—I speak for all patriotic citizens who believe Scouting is a bulwark against the evils of our times.

Scouting's determination to give to every boy the chance to absorb the benefits of the movement's program for physical, mental, moral and spiritual development promises well for our Nation. In the days ahead we will need, as never before, men of high character, resolute purpose and unflinching courage to meet successfully the problems of a challenging future.

Your enrollment of 17,500,000 members since 1910 and your present active membership of 2,750,000 as disclosed in official records is a great achievement. It speaks eloquently for our democratic way of helping boys through devoted volunteer leadership.

Your determination to continue with your campaign to "Strenghten the Arm of Liberty" is most reassuring and merits sustained public approval. One and all, you have earned the confidence of our people and I salute you for your patriotic and selfless service.

Biggest Camporee Held In Midland Abounded In Sports, Fellowship

Looking down from surrounding one hundred foot cliffs on typical spring Saturday afternoon last April, one could see long lines of Scouts trudging up the narrow road to their favorite campsite, Norris Spring. This group of over 135 Scouts and leaders were hiking to the camp area to check in with the camporee chief, Father Richard Swift, and District Commissioner Roy Taylor to be assigned to troop areas for a week end of camping and fellowship with one another.

As the Scouts and their leaders checked in with the camporee chief, the camping and activities committee members were ready with their inspection forms to check the Scouts' equipment for proper packing. For on a camporee, a Scout not only has fun but also has a chance to show his skill in packing his equipment, pitching his tent and preparing his food by standard Scout methods. After the inspection the Scouts were directed to their assigned areas on a beautiful wooded ridge to pitch their tents and set up camp.

When all camps had been set up, the Scouts started preparing supper. Over those numerous small bright fires many different dishes were being prepared as evidenced by the aromas drifting along the ridge.

The camporee staff held another inspection during supper to see that the tents were pitched properly and that the food was prepared correctly. For some reason the staff never seems to mind making the supper inspection, probably because the Scouts are always eager to give samples of their cooking.

There was free time after supper for visiting among the troops and for working on stunts for the campfire program. A good part of this time was spent in roaming through the pine woods and getting acquainted with the camping area.

At eight o'clock the bugler sounded assembly and all troops gathered at the campfire area which was a natural amphitheaer with a small fire table in the center. The Scouts seated themselves on the edge of the amphitheater about seven feet above the campfire.

The campfire ceremony was opened with all Scouts remaining silent while the master of ceremonies, in true Indian fashion, called upon the spirits to light the fire. As if by magic with no one near, the pile of logs burst into flames. The Scouts then sang several songs to get things under way. Each patrol put on a stunt for the group. As with all campfires there were the old favorites such as the "old Ford" stunt and the "voices of the four great spirits." But there were several new and very original stunts presented. These got the greatest approval from the crowd.

After a few more songs by the group, all new Scouts were invited to join the ever present Royal Order of Siam. This procedure always gets a big response from the Scouts.

As a closing ceremony, the group was asked to remain silent. Just as stillness settled over the area, a brilliant burst of fire and smoke flared up on a distant cliff Out of the smoke an Indian appeared to give the Indian benediction and disappeared into the night as magically as he came.

The Scouts were then instructed to return to their tents and to go to bed when taps sounded. In about fifteen minutes one could hear the beautiful clear notes of Taps echoing back from the high cliffs which surrounded the camp. Then quiet settled over the camp areas but only until day break.

COUNCIL WINS GREAT VICTORY

Takes Every Award Offered By National For Proficiency

In 1950 the Ouachita valley council qualified for every award which was offered by the National Scout council and by region five for proficiency in the council's operation. Winning of these awards helped make it possible for this council to be selected as the region's outstanding council during the year. Awards won included the 40th Anniversary Crusade award, Regional award of Opportunity Club, Regional Round-up award, and a special Regional quality membership award.

Each year councils in the southern region, which have ten per cent growth in Cub packs, Scout troops, explorer posts, Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, an explorer Scouts qualify for the regional Opportunity Club award. The Ouachita valley council has qualified for this honor for the past two years providing Scouting's opportunities to many more boys each year.

All Boy Scout councils in America set goals in 1949 for a two-year period. These goals were set for many items in leadership, membership, and program activities. The Ouachita valley council received a Crusade award at the region five annual meeting in Little Rock last May and will receive another award this year to become one of the few councils in this region to meet its Crusade objective for both years of the National Scout crusade.

Another membership award will be made to L. L. Price, chairman of the organization and extension committee in 1950, Council President A. B. Clarkson, and members of the council's professional Scout staff. This award, given for quality membership, was earned by organizing a large per cent of new units and dropping a very small percentage of existing units.

A special round-up contest was also set up during the last four months of 1950 with emphasis placed on the recruiting of new boys for Scouting. The Ouachita valley council was also one of the leading councils in this contest.

1950 was one of the most outstanding years in the history of the twenty-five-year old northeast Louisiana council. Officers of the council have expressed appreciation to the 1,000 volunteer leaders who worked faithfully to make this record possible.

3,500 AWARDS IN SCOUTING GIVEN

Courts Of Honor And Cub Pack Meetings Bestow Coveted Ranks

Scouts and Cub Scouts of the Ouachita valley council, always eager for the recognition which follows the passing of a required test, received over 3,500 different advancements during 1950. Most of these awards were made at courts of honor and cub pack meetings in which recognition for advancements are an important part of the programs.

Fifteen Scouts attained their Eagle badges for Scouting's highest rank during the year. These were: Richard Bryan, troop 45, Ruston; Juan Watkins, troop 57, Delhi; Malcolm Rundell, troop 57, Delhi; Billy Wilder, troop 45, Ruston; Marvin Green, Jr., troop 45, Ruston; Evans Wyly and Charles Wyly, Jr., troop 57, Delhi, Jimmy Rivers, troop 31, Monroe; Billy Hardy, troop 31, Monroe; Bubba Stodghill, post 53, Winnsboro; Kenner Bell, post 53, Winnsboro; Fred Perry, troop 67, Sterlington; Reagan Randall, Dannie Greathouse, and Harvey Johnson, all of troop 17, Ferriday.

A total of over 1,000 merit badges in 90 different subjects from airplanes to zoology were passed. The most popular merit badge was home repairs. Cooking, athletics, civics, personal health public health, and swimming, also proved to be very popular in the merit badge program.

Forty-three Life Scout awards were made, 113 Star Scout awards were made, 205 Firstclass badges were earned, and 436 Scouts received recognition for passing Secondclass rank.

Cub Scouts received over 500 awards from their parents in monthly pack meetings. These awards included Bobcat, Wolf, Bear, Lion, Webelos, and Gold and Silver Arrow Points.

The council advancement committee, under the capable leadership of James Madison, of Bastrop, supervised the advancement program in the council in 1950.

Scouts Soon Can Earn New Badge

New York, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Boy Scouts soon will be able to earn a new merit badge—World Brotherhood.

Benjamin Cohen, United Nations assistant secretary-General disclosed the plan today when 12 Eagle Scouts from various sections of the country visited UN headquarters.

Local Group Accepted Over All Others In Region Of 6 States

The Ouachita Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America, which is composed of fifteen northeast Louisiana parishes, was selected as the most outstanding council in the mid-south in 1950. Council officials were recently notified that the council had been chosen as having the best all around operation of the thirty-two councils in region five during the year. Region five includes all of the councils in Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee, Alabama, and the northwest Florida.

As a result of this outstanding achievement, the region five executive committee requested that the local council, with headquarters in Monroe, send a scout to represent the region in the "report to the Nation" ceremonies being held in Washington this week. This scout along with eleven other scouts from different regions in America presented a report of scoutings accomplishments in 1950 to President Truman Tuesday morning. President Truman is honorary president of the Boy Scouts of America.

In 1950, more scouts than ever before were enrolled in the popular character-building and citizenship-training program, and the seven districts of the council were greatly strengthened to carry out the program.

At the close of the year, over 2,700 boys were actively engaged in the council's 125 units. Over 1,000 volunteer adult leaders were supervising the activities being carried out in these units.

Other factors which led the regional executive committee to select the northeast Louisiana council as the most outstanding in 1950 included increased camp activities, a large national jamboree contingent, unusual accomplishments in financial efforts, a great gain in inter-racial work, a very active training program for leaders, improved operation of all the council's operating committees, and increased activities by all district committees.

The council led region five in many phases of membership and training accomplishments throughout the year. Camp attendance was the highest in twenty years and the contingent of 107 boys and leaders was the largest group to attend the national jamboree from the state of Louisiana and one of the largest groups from the south.

The council has recently become one of the leaders in this area for the promotion of the scout program for Negro boys. The council also increased its operating budget for 1951 by over 35 per cent to enable the continuance of activities in all phases of the program on a larger basis.

Council leaders have made plans to continue a program of membership expansion as well as a program of increased activities for scouts and cubs in 1951. The goal of the council is to provide a better program of scounting for an ever increasing number of boys in northeast Louisiana.

PLAN BROADER SCOUT PROGRAM

Larger Membership Is To Be Sought In Year Now Starting

Making Scouting available to more and more boys in the 15 parishes served by the Ouachita Valley Council is the primary aim of Scouting officials in this area as they formulate plans for the 1951 Scouting program. Plans to extend this character-building program and make it available to every boy in every community in the council are being discussed in every Scout committee meeting.

The council's organization and extension committee under the leadership of A. J. Ensminger, veteran Scouter of Wisner, La., has already held two important meetings in 1951 to formulate aggressive plans to bring more Northeast Louisiana boys into the program this year. The committee has set an objective of over thirty new units to be organized in 1951 and has also set an objective to drop no Scout troop or Cub pack from the rolls during the year. If the plans of this committee are carried out, well over 3,000 boys will be actively engaged in Scouting in this council this time next year.

Each year over 4,000 boys reach the Scouting age in the council area. When this large figure is multiplied by the several age groups which the Cub Scout and Explorer Scout program serves, at least 30,000 boys are available for Scouting at any one time. Realizing that the 2,700 boys now served is only a small percentage of those who should be deriving the benefits that the movement provides, all operating committee chairmen are setting high goals that this important program might be rapidly expanded.

Not only are plans under way to expand but every phase of the program will be greatly enriched through plans developed at a recent planning conference. Important training for leaders and committees is to take place in order that Scouters will be more adequately prepared to serve in leadership capacities. An effort will also be made to strengthen each unit by providing at least two leaders for every unit.

Every Scout and Cub will also find the program interesting as troop and pack activities are improved and special events are

BIG PROGRESS MADE IN YEAR

Past Twelve Months Prove Greatest In Entire 25-Year Scouting History

1950 was the greatest year of organization in the 25-year history of the Ouachita Valley Council. Under the leadership of Organization and Extension Chairman L. L. Price, this committee organized thirty-seven new units in the fifteen parishes of the council during the past year.

Early in the year, this committee set up a very active program of organization in an effort to bring more boys into scouting. Since existing units were almost

Cub Scouting Proves Steady Feeder For Boys In Teens

The young Scouts with the dark blue uniform and bright yellow neckerchief have come into prominence in the area in recent years. These boys belong to the Cub Scouts—Scouting's home-centered, neighborhood-directed program for 8, 9, and 10 year-old boys. This phase of the program has developed in an unprecedented manner, and more and more boys with their parents are joining the ranks of this purposeful organization every day.

During the past two years, the Cub Scouts of the Ouachita Valley Council have grown rapidly in membership and activities. This expansion has taken place in every district of the council as training of all Cub leaders has been one of the main points of emphasis in the council's program.

Look in on one of the council's thirty-six Cub packs as it conducts its monthly pack meeting and you will find a large group of Cubs and their parents, who also participate actively in the program. You will see the boys who are members of the pack participating in a special program which they have been practicing each week in their neighborhood den meetings. These programs are usually built around some central theme which holds a great amount of interest for boys of this age.

The enthusiasm and determination of this younger group of boys is not excelled any where in the entire Scout program. There is almost always 100 per cent attendance in all of their activities, including monthly pack meetings and den meetings.

Many youngsters look forward to the day when they will be eleven and can join the Boy Scouts. In the meantime, the Cubbing program offers a very real need in the lives of boys from eight through ten years of age. It gives interesting, worthwhile things to do with boys of their own age; and with Cub training, a boy has every chance of getting more out of Scouting than a boy who has never been a Cub.

The character aims of Cubbing and Scouting are basically the same although the programs are kept distinctly different. Starting with Cubbing, a boy may be an active member of the Boy Scouts of America from the time he is eight years old until he grows into manhood.

AREA COMMITTEE TO MEET FEB. 13

Organizational Session Is Planned At Hotel Virginia

The Central District Boy Scout committee, which administers all activities of Scouting units in the Monroe-West Monroe area will convene in an organizational meeting Tuesday night, February 13. This meeting is to be held at the Virginia Hotel at 7:00 p.m.

L. L. Price, recently elected chairman of the district for 1951, has stated that the purpose of the meeting is to reorganize all of the operating committees in order to make continued improvements in committee work.

Many new men have been invited to attend the meeting and will be given opportunity to serve Scouting in some capacity in the district. Mr. Price has explained that it is his hope to build a large district committee so that the great amount of work to be done can be distributed among a lot of people.

In the Tuesday night meeting, the organization of the Scout district will be explained and the duties of all operating committees given. Operating committee chairmen who have already been appointed to serve in 1951 include Haynes Harkey, leadership training; A. S. Huffman, health and safety; Rush Biossat, organization and extension; Judge Jesse Heard, advancement; Jimmy Plaisancefinance; W. W. Stevens, commissioner; A. C. Lea, Cub Scouting; and S. K. Heninger, Interracial.

All institutional representatives have been invited from the Central District to the meeting as each of these men is a working part of the district organization.

W. MONROE TROOP 13 IS ACTIVE WORKER

For the past several years, Troop 13, Boy Scouts of America, of West Monroe, have been steadily forging ahead. One of the many troop projects has been the remodeling of the Scout hut, planning a volley ball court and basketball court. All troop equipment has been replaced. The boys are keeping abreast of all the latest scout craft and skills, making advancements and learning true scouting spirit. Troop 13 is being readied to meet all emergencies that may arise.

The boys endeavor to cooperate with all civic and church organizations. They go camping at least once a month and in summer spend a week at Ki-Ro-Li.

The scoutmaster is George Screpetis and assistant scoutmasters are Jesse Lathan, W. W. Brewer, W. Dunn, the scout committee comprises Ed Hislop, chairman, John Parker, Ed Watkins, C. G. McElroy and Judge Jesse Heard, institutional representative.

EXPLORER RANK NOW BESTOWED

Classification Older Scouts Have Eligibility To Receive This

Since September, 1949, all boys in Scouting who are 14 and over have been called Explorers and participated in the new Explorer program which is geared to the interests and needs of this age group.

In Exploring, the young men run their own program almost entirely with the adult leaders serving only as advisors. There is a difference in the uniform, in the advancement program, and in many other features; but the basic aims of character building, physical fittness, citizenship and services to others love of God and country, are still the same as ever in Boy Scouting.

The Explorer program gives the older Scout opportunity to explore various fields and receive actual training in these fields. He also has a chance to evaluate his experience in these fields. Experts in vocational guidance and other counselors are brought in to counsel with the Explorers.

Four main areas of activity are set up for the operation of an Explorer unit, whether it be an Explorer or an Explorer crew and a troop. These are outdoor activities, social activities, service projects, and vocational exploration. Explorers may participate in these activities in a separate Explorer post or in a regular Scout troop. In either case, the young man is under the guidance of an Explorer Advisor.

Explorers elect their own officers and plan their own programs. Committees are so appointed that every boy who is an Explorer has some important job to do in his unit. Committee work is carried out in a manner very similar to that of a civic club. This older boy group of Scouts is naturally interested in high adventure and well planned special exploring expeditions are encouraged after a unit is prepared to undertake such a project.

In the Ouachita Valley Council there are only four Explorer posts. However, practically everyone of the 85 troops in the council has Explorers as members. More emphasis is now being given to this age group than at any time in this history of Scouting.

A recent very successful activity for Explorers was the Tech Trek, a vocational exploration program carried out at Louisiana Tech in Ruston in the fall of 1950. Through the cooperation of college officials, a full program of exploration was carried out in all departments of the school. The program also included a football game and other items of campus life.

In 1951, the Explorers of the Ouachita Valley Council will be called on to be prepared for any emergency in connection with civil defense work in this area. All Explorers are to be trained in rescue work, first aid, communications, and other items of emergency service. An emergency service corps training course will be held at Camp Ki-Ro-Li in May, and many Explorers will form emergency service corps to facilitate the effective carrying out of Explorer emergency service projects.

Anyone interested in the Explorer program for young men 14 years of age and older may obtain information about the Explorer program from the Ouachita Valley Council Scout headquarters in the parish courthouse in Monroe.

New Haven—(AP)—A frankfurter and bean dinner for 10 cents once was a luxury to Sinclair Lewis, famed novelist who died recently in Rome. Arthur J. Sloane is now managing editor of the paper.

Scout executives were also employed by the council. Field Scout executives serving the council area during the first few years included Robert W. Dubos, R. B. Stellwagon, N. H. Crawford, and J. Noble White.

During the early 1930s, the council had financial difficulties due to conditions brought about by floods, drought, and the depression and by the end of 1932, the council had no professional staff. Its membership had dropped to 700 Scouts and its operating budget was less than $3,000. J. Lester White, Bastrop, H. F. Madison, Jr., Monroe, and Berney Oakland, Monroe, served as council presidents during these trying times.

Prospects for an active Scout program for the boys of northeast Louisiana seemed rather dim until the Missouri Pacific Railroad sent one of their special Scout executives, George Simpson, to aid the council. Through the guidance of George Simpson and Council President Judge W. M. Harper, the council was reorganized on a sound basis and began to grow again to serve more boys with a good Scouting program.

After George Simpson left the council in 1934, Olan H. Black was employed as Scout executive and served in this capacity until 1943. During this period, the council had a slow but steady growth in membership. The council was incorporated by the state of Louisiana on June 30, 1935, under the name of Ouachita Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America, Incorporated.

In 1937, Fred Williamson became president of the council. This was the year of the first national Scout jamboree, held in Washington, D. C., and the council sent 49 Scouts to this affair.

S. L. Maxwell, of Canebrake, was council president in 1938; and in 1939, A. B. Clarkson was elected president. He has served in this capacity ever since and during his period of service as president, the council has tripled in membership and greatly improved its program.

Charles B. Cook became Scout executive in 1943 and while he served in this capacity for a period of over two years, the council made phenomenal growth in membership. Activities for Scouts were increased during this time as troops were busy in the war effort. Camp attendance increased as did the council's operating budget. By the end of 1945, the operating budget had been increased to over $16,000, and two field Scout executives had been added to the professional staff, in order to provide better service to all Scout units. Membership had increased to 2,458 boys in 99 units and for the first time great emphasis was placed on Cub Scouting and Scouting for Negro boys.

Floyd D. Huddleston succeeded Charles B. Cook as Scout executive in 1945. During the postwar period, the council lost considerably in membership but was greatly strengthened in some of the fundamental principles of district and council organization. Serving as field executives with Charles B. Cook and Floyd D. Huddleston were O. H. Voran, E .K. Murray, Sam L. Hartman, Jr., and John D. Spaulding.

In January 1948, Jones B. Huskey was employed as Scout executive, and Gerald B.Harrigill joined the council as field Scout executive. Raymon L. Owens was employed in September of the same year to serve the council as field Scout executive. All of these men are still serving the council. During the past three years, the council has grown rapidly in membership, so that it has reached its highest peak. At the present time, 2,774 boys are registered in 125 Scout units.

One of the greatest developments during 1950 has been the organization of divisions of the administration for the program for Negro Scouts. Under the leadership of S. K. Heninger, chairman of the inter-racial committee, Scouting for Negro boys has been greatly increased in the council. Plans are now being made to develop a campsite for these boys, so that they can have a permanent camp program.

Cub Scouting has also progressed beyond all expectations during 1949 and 1950 under the direction of J. C. Crawford, chairman of the council Cub Scout committee. In 1950, an unusual training program for Cub leaders was conducted throughout the council through roundtables, pow wows, formal courses, and commissioner service. Cub membership has soared to new heights and, in some areas, Cub Scouts out number Boy Scouts.

The facilities of Camp Ki-Ro-Li were greatly improved in 1950 and F. F. Ferrington is now employed as permanent caretaker. During the past few years, several thousand dollars have been spent in improving the camp, and camp attendance is continually increasing.

One of the highlights of activities for Scouts in the council was the second national jamboree held in Valley Forge, Pa., in the summer of 1950. The council sent 107 boys and leaders to this event, to make the largest contingent from the state of Louisiana.

Great progress has been made during the past twenty-five years in the Ouachita valley council, and present plans indicate that a great amount of progress will be made within the next few years. The present excellent condition of the council has been made possible because of the unselfish efforts of hundreds of men and women who have served Scouting in this area. The boys of northeast Louisiana who have, for the past 25 years, enjoyed the benefits of the Scouting program are indebted to these Scouters beyond their ability to repay.

Striking Art Shown In Numerous Windows

Scouts of Monroe and West Monroe will demonstrate some of the Scouting skills and Cubbing activities in a very unique manner during the Anniversary Week celebration by decorating windows in the downtown shopping districts.

Local merchants have cooperated in this project by allowing Scout troops and Cub packs to display their troop, pack, patrol, and den trophies, as well as special Scout camp and hiking equipment and many special items of interest made by Scouts. Some items displayed will represent many hours of work by Scouts as they have prepared for their camp outings and merit badge work. Most of the Scout displays will be on camping, cooking, woodlore, and related outdoor subjects. The Cub Scout displays will be made up principally of handicraft articles that Cubs have made in working on the Cub achievement program.

Some of the troops and packs have indicated that their displays will be live displays after school hours each day with boys in the windows actually demonstrating some skill and answering questions of the public.

Displays can be located during Anniversary Week at the following Monroe and West Monroe stores: Monroe Furniture Co., Troop 31; Durrett's, West Monroe, Pack 10; Hatchell's West Monroe, Pack 14; Morgan & Lindsey, West Monroe, Pack 13; Sears Roebuck & Co., Pack 34, Sig Haas Packs 31, 131, and 231; Millsaps Furniture Co., West Monroe, Troop 13; Silversteins, Troop 30; Ferd Levi, Troop 32; Standard Office Supply Co., Troop 34; Lane-Wilson Feed Store, Troop 35; J. filled to capacity, emphasis was placed on activating new troops and packs to take care of additional boys who wanted to be Scouts.

The thirty-seven new units organized in 1950 included Cub packs, scout troops, and explorer posts to fill the needs of every age group. Some units were organized in the city and many of them in rural areas. A large number of the new units were for Negro boys.

The active and enthusiastic members of the organization and extension committee of the Ouachita Valley Council made the following new units possible in 1950:

TROOP 31 HAS BEEN BUSY ONE

Since Formed In 1933 Has Never Been In Inactive Class

Troop 31, sponsored by the Grace Episcopal Church, 1400 North 4th, Monroe, was chartered May 31st, 1933, the first meeting being held at that time. The first scoutmaster of Troop 31 was Fletcher Ashcraft, who was the first of only 6 scoutmasters leading this troop since its inauguration. Troop 31 has never become inactive or dormant since its beginning.

Two scouts of Troop 31 received their Eagle badges while in attendance at the first national jamboree in 1937. This was repeated in June, 1950, at Valley Forge, when two more boys, Jimmie Rivers, and Billy Hardy, received their Eagle awards at the 1950 national jamboree.

Tim Heninger, now a doctor of English and a Fulbright scholar in England, received his boyhood training in citizenship as a Boy Scout in Troop 31.

The leaders, and boys, of Troop 31 have adopted a by-law by which there will be no camping done in cabins. Through various troop activities and membership dues, money was raised to purchase 20 pup tents and the troop takes pride in "roughing it." All camping is done in tents and only what equipment that can be carried on the back while hiking is used.

During the Christmas season, 1950, scouts of Troop 31 cut and presented to the Old Folks Home on Jackson street 12 Christmas trees; and, for this effort received a very nice letter from the Gray Ladies expressing the appreciation of those involved and a photo of an old lady, blind and bedridden, who requested that a photo be made of her, with her tree, so that it might be sent to her son overseas.

SOUTHWEST AREA LEADS COUNCIL

Winn And Jackson Parish Boy Scout Units Make Best Records

1950 was a very eventful year for that part of the Council known as the Southwest District. This district is the area of Winn and Jackson parishes. Nearly every large community in these two parishes has one or more Scout units and men from over the area combine to lead in the promotion of Scouting. Those few smaller communities that do not have Scouting are in the organizational plans for this year. To get more boys into Scouting as well as more Scouting into boys are the constant aims of the Southwest District.

During 1950, the district planned and supervised many Scouting events. One of the most successful was the camporee for all troops held near Chatham in the spring.

School programs were held in Hodge, Jonesboro, and Winnfield. Other community activities were held in Chatham, Eros, Dodson, and Atlanta. New units were organized in Ansley, Quitman, and Joyce.

The Southwest District contributed generously to the budget of the Council this year. Under their leadership, all communities held finance campaigns with a successful increase in each community.

This group of Scout leaders led the way in developing leaders' training within their own district. Having instigated the "Be Prepared" plan for training, all district committeemen in the Southwest District followed through this year with a week-end training course for all troop leaders. This was a very successful event, and plans are underway for more of these vital training events.

John McCloy of Winnfield heads this group of Scouters as district chairman with T. O. Dollar of Jonesboro as vice-chairman. The commissioner's staff is composed of Phil Hannan of Hodge, W. H. Cameron of Winnfield, F. L. Main of Winnfield, and C. L. Steadman of Jonesboro. The round table meetings are under the direction o these commissioners and are one of the major emphasis of this year.

planned for them. Future plans call for camps, camporees, a council-wide circus, cuboree, a round-up, and other outstanding events. Scouts will also be active in the advancement which has recently undergone some major changes to make it more effective.

Camping will also play a very important part in the 1951 council program. Most boys join Scouting because of their great desire to hike and camp. Ouachita Valley Council will help fulfill the desires of these Scouts by encouraging more adequate troop camping and by improving the program and facilities of the council camp. A healthful and safe program, full of adventure and Scouting skill, will be provided all Scouts who attend Camp Ki-Ro-Li and the council Negro Scout camp.

Another major feature of the 1951 program is cooperation in the civil defense program. The council's health and safety committee is giving leadership to this work and plans have already been made in some areas for Scouts to carry out very important assignments in the Central District work. The council is placing emphasis on training courses and first aid, health and safety and emergency service course training.

The Boy Scout movement wants to meet all of the desires of every boy of Scout age by giving him a worthwhile program that is fun and at the same time very healthful to him. The Ouachita Valley Council leaders are taking aggressive steps to see that boys in northeast Louisiana have every opportunity that Scouting offers in 1951. Many new Cub packs, Scout troops, and explorer posts will be organized in the council area to provide Scouting opportunities for as many boys as possible.

A special appeal is made to men who in their boyhood were Scouts and who enjoyed the benefits of this program but who up to now have not taken the opportunity to volunteer their services. Their services are greatly needed in the council in many different capacities.

Men interested in serving as leaders of boys or in any other Scouting capacity should contact the council Scout office in the Ouachita Parish Courthouse or any Scouter now active in the program.

SCOUT LEADERS TO AID DEFENSE

Will Plan Full Cooperation Of Boys In Nation's Program

Local Scout leaders are now making plans for full cooperation of all Scouts and every Scout unit in the nation's civil defense program.

President Truman in a recent letter to Dr. Arthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America, indicated the importance of Scouting in civil defense as well as the need for maintaining every facility for the character building and citizenship training of our nation's youth. The president's letter read as follows:

"Dear Mr. Schuck:

"Our nation must increasingly develop its strength in order to play its part, in concert with other free nations, in the building of a peaceful world. Our civil defense program is one of its great assets. Another is the vast membership of the Boy Scouts of America.

"Your organization has for forty years prepared boys and young men to render service under all conditions. In view of this enviable record, I hope you will encourage your adult volunteer leaders to keep on with their work in their units. Boys will then continue to receive the benefits of Scouting's character building and citizenship training program, and to acquire the skills which fit them for emergency service.

"The record of these patriotic and unselfish men is inspiring. The unforeseen emergencies that lie ahead are a home front challenge to all Scouts and Scout leaders alike. Continued full strength to all Scouts and Scout leaders alike. Continued full strength leadership, all along the line, is of major importance. Your motto "Be Prepared" emphasizes this need and is an assurance that your leaders will wholeheartedly cooperate in meeting it. Very sincerely yours, signed Harry S. Truman."

In the Ouachita valley council Cub Scouts are to work in the home and family phase of civil defense preparation while Boy Scouts as individuals and in troops will give their emphasis to first aid practice. Explorers will practice mobilization, rescue work, and emergency service training.

Many leaders have already begun extensive first aid training in troops and all leaders are being encouraged by the council's health and safety committee to participate in Red Cross first aid courses as they become available. The services of the Boy Scouts have also been offered to civil defense leaders in many communities of the Ouachita valley council.

The council has also set up a special emergency service training course for Explorer Scouts to be held at Camp Ki-Ro-Li May 18 and 19. Health and safety training courses are also scheduled to be conducted during the summer months.

District Contest To Be Conducted In '51

The seven districts of the Ouachita Valley Council will be competing in a district contest in 1951. The contest which was adopted by the Council at a planning conference in January included points of emphasis for every operating committee in each district.

The award to be given in this contest has not been announced; however, the district making the best record based on the items being considered in the contest will be appropriately recognized.

Items to be included in the contest to improve the quality of the Scouting program of the Council are: Organization & Extension; 100 per cent charter reviews, 20 per cent gain in units; Leadership Training: District training committee conduct training for all new leaders of units; Camping and Activities: at least one district-wide special event, participation in Council circus, Council camps —40 per cent attendance, active summer program—all cub packs; Advancement: average one advancement per boy during year; Health and Safety: 100 per cent troop meeting room inspections, 100 per cent physical exams for boys going to camp, complete cooperation with Civil Defense; Finance: campaigns in all communities using the Council plan; Commissioner: roundtables for all program people; BOYS' LIFE: 20 per cent increase in subscriptions; Institutional Representatives: 50 per cent participation, two deep leadership.

Ambassador Austin Commends Aid Lent

Ambassador Warren P. Austin, Chief Delegate of the United States Mission to the United Nations, has commended the Boy Scouts of America for the nationwide clothing collection campaign they are now conducting to meet an urgent need in many countries throughout the world.

The Ouachita Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America with headquarters at Monroe, Louisiana, as enlisted the assistance of its entire membership of 3,700 boys and adult leaders. The collections will continue until March 31, 1951.

Ambassador Austin's statement, released today by J. W. Webster, Commissioner of the Ouachita Valley Council Boy Scouts of America, follows:

"I commend the Boy Scouts of America for its leadership in conducting a nationwide clothing campaign at this time when clothing and blankets are so urgently needed in many parts of the world.

BOY SCOUTS TO ATTEND CHURCH

Special Religious Services Slated Througout Nation Today

Sunday, February 11, will have a special meaning for Boy Scouts all over America, as on that day special religious services will be held for Scouts all over the nation as a fulfillment of the twelfth point of the Scout Law "The Scout is Reverent."

Almost all of the local churches which sponsor troops and packs will have some special Scout Sunday service, either Sunday morning or Sunday evening. Scouts and Cubs will participate in these services by sitting in a body and wearing their uniforms.

In many of the services, Scouts will take very active qarts on the program and several pastors have indicated that they will deliver messages in line with the Boy Scout theme.

From its very inception, Scouting has supported religion. The constitution of the Boy Scouts of America clearly states "No boy can grow into the best kind of citizenship without recognizing his obligation to God." The Scout program of character development is not complete in itself. It needs the spiritual motivation of religion to achieve its highest aims. In harmony with these principles, Scouting asks all who are associated with it as leaders and followers to pledge their faith in God.

Since the teaching of religion is the responsibility of the church, Scouting has excluded from its manuals all elements of sectarian indoctrination. Incentives toward religious instruction are included in the program and a boy advances in Scouting as his spiritual guide certifies that he has been faithful in his religious duties. This contact has directed many boys to the church and is evidence that Scouting aims to build character on spiritual foundations.

The projects are grouped around four objectives: (1) To help a Boy Scout become more faithful in the fulfillment of his religious duties; (2) To encourage him in the practice of his daily devotions; (3) To deepen his appreciation of his spiritual heritage by increasing his knowledge of the teachings and practices of his religion; (4) To provide incentive for making his religion practical in service to his church and community. Underlying these four purposes is the basic objective of relating the Boy Scout to the total program of the religous institution to which he belongs.

At "birthday parties" during Boy Scout Week throughout the nation each member will re-pledge himself to the Scout Oath or Promise. In each community representatives of the churches, schools, government and business will observe the anniversary with their Scouts. At Unit "open house" parties, parents, relatives and members of the chartering institutions will hear a review of the year's program features, service projects and membership gains.

During Boy Scout Week members of the organization will develop window displays and demonstrations on civil defense and conservation. Each member will inspect his home to make certain no hazards exist. Surprise mobilizations will test Scout efficiency should emergencies arise.

Since 1910 more than 17,500,000 boys and men have been identified with the Boy Scouts of America.

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

Scouting Ranks Reach 1,000 In Central Area During 1950

In 1950, Scouters of the Central District saw a long-desired goal accomplished. This goal of 1,000 Scouts in the district was obtained during 1950 and at the close of the year, 1,038 Scouts in 41 Scouting units were actively registered and engaged in the Scout program in the Twin Cities area.

Three years ago, when just a little over 600 Scouts were enrolled in the central district, the central district committee set a goal of 1,000 Scouts to be accomplished in Monroe and West Monroe. the 19 units which were then active have grown into 41 units and the boy membership goal has been exceeded.

Tom Hayes, Jr. has served as district chairman during this period and has been greatly assisted by the commissioners' staff headed by W. W. Stevens, district commissioner. Progress in other endeavors of the central district have also been successful.

L. L. Price, newly elected chairman of the district, has indicated that this progress in membership growth and improved activities will continue in 1951 as many new Scouters are recruited to carry out this important work.

In 1950, 16 new units were organized in the central district. Much of this organization work was done in the fast-growing Cub Scout program and by the Keystone division which works with the Negro Scouts.

The Ouachita Valley council has been chosen to select a Scout to represent region five (five southern states) in the report to the nation ceremony. The Northeast Louisiana council had the best record in 1950 of the 32 councils in this region.

STIFF TEST TO QUALIFY AS EAGLE

CUB SCOUTING

Parents take a very prominent place in the Cub Scout program since the boys must work with parents on all projects and have parents approval of the work as it is completed. The program has been so designed as to bring parents and the boys closer together.

The Cub den is a neighborhood group and meets weekly under the supervision of a den mother, assisted by the den chief who is a Boy Scout living in the neighborhood. Each week the den program is an actual beehive of activity as the boys join in their stunts, plays, puzzles, handicrafts, games, and similar activities.

BANQUET CLIMAX OF ANNIVERSARY

Twenty-Five Year Period Is Marked By Celebration Here

Former scout executives and past presidents of the Ouachita Valley Council returned to Monroe in December to join council members in celebrating the silver anniversary of the northeast Louisiana Scout Organization. A large group of scouters and ladies attended the annual recognition banquet in Monroe, which was highlighted by special recognition being given to those who had played an important part in building the 25-year old council.

Among those attending the anniversary celebration was Mr. Jack Keith, first Scout executive of the council when it was organized in 1925. Keith, who is now Scout executive in St. Louis, Missouri, one of the country's largest councils, presented veteran awards to a large group of scouters at the annual meeting. Among those receiving veteran awards were Judge E. L. Walker of Ruston and S. L. Maxwell of Canebrake. These men were both members of the council executive board while Mr. Keith served the council and both were presented 25-year veteran pins. Mr. Keith commanded the president and the council leaders for the great progress which had been made in recent years.

Another former Scout executive who offered words of praise for the council and its leaders was Mr. Charles Cook of Chattanooga, Tennessee. Mr. Cook, who is now Scout executive of the Cherokee area council, recognized the 1950 council Eagle Scouts.

Mr. George Simpson, who was Scout executive of the Ouachita Valley Council in 1933 and 1934, was also present at the banquet to present training awards to seven council scoutmasters. Mr. Simpson is deputy regional executive of region five with headquarters in Memphis Tennessee.

All of these former executives were presented with Scout statutes by the council in appreciation for their part in building a strong council to serve the boys of this area.

Past presidents of the council were similarly recognized at the banquet program. Those men present to receive this recognition of appreciation were J. Lester White of Baton Rouge, S. L. Maxwell of Canebrake and H. F. Madison, Jr. of Monroe

Other features of the silver anniversary program included a welcome and recognition of districts by T. M. Hayes, Jr., recognition of leaders by A. B. Clarkson, round-up awards by L. L. Price, installation of 1951 council officers by Dr. Marvin Green, Ruston Silver Beaver Awards by Phil J. Hannan, Hodge, a history of the council by Judge Mack Barham of Bastrop and a very inspirational address by Colonel E. W. Palmer chairman of region five executive committee.

J. W. Webster council commissioner, conducted the closing ceremony for the silver anniversary program. For this closing, a map of the 15 parishes of the council was spotlighted and through the use of an unusual lighting effect, a challenge for those present to bring more boys into the scouting program was given.

1ST ANNUAL CUB MEET SUCCESS

Held For Members And Parents At Camp Ki-Ro-Li Last May

One of the most successful events ever conducted in the Ouachita valley council was the Cuboree held for Cub Scouts and their parents on May 20, 1950 at Camp Ki-Ro-Li.

The Cuboree was carried out as an experiment to see if this type Cub event could be properly conducted on a council-wide basis. The outstanding event was planned by the Cub Scout committee under the direction of Chairman J. C. Crawford of West Monroe, and practically every pack in the council took some part on the program.

Over 300 Cubs and many more adults began arriving early Saturday afternoon to make preparations for their part on the program. By 4:00 p.m. the midway with many side shows were ready to go into action. The Cuboree was officially opened at this time with group games conducted by council leaders.

All packs had side shows, which included minstrels, a womanless wedding, variety shows, magician acts, and many other features of interest to the Cubs. From the side shows, those present went to the midway where numerous homemade games were a main feature.

Most Cub Scouts brought picnic suppers and ate with their parents in family groups or with their Cub packs in community groups.

The highlight of the day's program was an early evening campfire which consisted of stories, stunts, Cub songs, and special Indian dances provided by a group of older Scouts from Shreveport. Mr. Mark Ringheim was master of ceremonies for this program.

ARROW ORDER IS HIGH IN RATING

Organized In 1945 Has Proved Rank For Which Scouts Strive

The Comanche Lodge, order of the Arrow, was organized in 1945 and has fast become one of the great honors for Scout campers. An honor campers organization, the local lodge now has over 300 alumni and an active membership of 52. All Scouts that have the qualifications are eligible for election into the lodge, and all Scouts look forward to the day that they can join this select group of Scouts and participate in the ceremonies, which are founded on Indian lore.

This organization, which has chapters in nearly all Scout councils, was founded 25 years ago at the Treasure Island camp of the Philadelphia ,Pennsylvania council. Since that beginning, many Scouts have passed through this fine part of the Scouting program. The purpose of the group is to give cheerful service in the true tradition of Scouting, helping where ever the need arises.

All of the ceremonies, which are a closely guarded secret of the young men, are built around legends of the Indians that once roamed the forest as our modern day Scouts do today. Very colorful costumes have been developed for these ceremonies, and the Scouts make each item of dress in the same fashion that the Indians made them. The Scouts are proud of the workmanship that each item of costuming requires, because this is one thing that modern machines have yet to duplicate.

At the summer camp of the Ouachita valley council, members of the Comanche lodge conduct the honors campfire at the close of each session. This is the time that visitors are invited to witness some of these fine costumes and hear the legend of Lenni Lenape of the Delaware Indians. Several Indian dances are performed by the Scouts as a part of this fine ceremony.

The Scouts have reorganized their lodge with a small executive group that works as a planning body for the whole lodge. A representative from each district is on this committee along with the elected lodge officers and the advisors. To attest to the fine leadership that the Comanche Lodge has is the fact that the lodge chief was selected to represent Ouachita valley council in the "report to the nation" ceremonies in Washington and New York. Serving as advisors to the lodge are J. W. Webster and W. W. Stevens, both of Monroe.

The lodge has assisted the council in many of the phases of Scouting since its organization. Leadership is furnished by its members for many of the good turns that Scouts are called upon to do throughout the year. Each spring the entire lodge camps at Camp Ki-Ro-Li for a weekend and carries on different projects to get the camp in top-notch order for the summer season. The lodge has always taken a very active part in the various campfire ceremonies that are conducted throughout the entire council area. Many of the camporee and summer camp ceremonies are planned and presented by these fine Scouts in the true spirit of their motto, "The Brotherood of Cheerful Service."

At the annual meeting of the lodge held last September, the members of the lodge elected the following officers: Lodge Chief Arthur Matthews, troop 28; scribe, Sammy Hanna, post 53, Winnsboro; treasurer, Billy Funderburk, troop 34, Monroe; and members of the executive board; Johnny Hall, troop 57, Delhi; Danny Greathouse, troop 17, Ferriday; Kenner Bell, troop 53; Winnsboro; Bill Wheelis, troop 32, Monroe; Richard Bryan, troop 45, Ruston; and Frank King, troop 99, Winnfield.

Council Will Arrange Circus In This Area

All boys love a circus. To fulfill the desires of the circus-loving Scouts of Northeast Louisiana, the Ouachita Valley Council is providing a circus, and the 2,700 registered Scouts and Cubs will be the actors.

The 125 units of the council will put on their own circus in Monroe on May 5, 1951. Plans are now being made for the big affair—the first of its type ever staged in this area—and leaders are enthusiastically talking about what their units would like to do in the circus.

The public will be invited to the huge Scout show, which will demonstrate that Scouts have fun and will present in a very effective manner some of the skills in which Scouts are proficient.

Some of the show features will be about Scouting's emergency service program, rescue work, first aid, and other related items which tie in with the nation-wide Civil Defense program.

In addition to the circus parts of the program which will present the skills taught in Scouting, the program will be filled with many fun activities just like in a real circus. Cub Scouts will have an important part in this phase of the program.

And so character is built and the citizen is trained by this phase of the program of the Boy Scouts of America.

Help the Boy Scouts celebrate their 41st anniversary, Feb. 6-12, by giving them clothing you can spare. They'll send it where it will do the most good.

NEGRO SCOUTS MAKE PROGRESS

Great Expansion Noted In Inter-Racial Program; Heninger Chairman

The greatest expansion of Scouting in the Ouachita Valley Council has been done by the council's inter-racial committee in carrying out the program for Negro boys. S. K. Heninger of Monroe is chairman of this group. Members of his committee include E. L. McLain of Ruston, Chet Steadman of Jonesboro, and Joe Dante of Winnsboro.

The leadership of this committee for Negro boys has organized rapidly and the council now has 572 Negro Scouts registered in 30 units. Three years ago, there were only nine Negro Scout troops in the entire Ouachita Valley Council.

As a part of the development program of the inter-racial committee, divisions are being set up in several areas to administer the program of activities for Scouts. These divisions are led by the most outstanding Negro citizens in the community. The Keystone division has operated successfully in the Monroe area for several years. B. D. Robinson is now chairman of this group and has the following operating committee chairmen on his division committee: E. H. Hoston, organization and extension; George Mills, leadership training; I. B. January, camping and activities; W. F. Sherman, advancement; Joe Pendleton, health and safety; J. C. Roy, finance; and Robert Murray, commissioner. This group has led the Negro boys in the Twin Cities area to its greatest accomplishments in 1950.

After a visit of Weaver Marr to the Ouachita Valley Council in 1949, it was decided that new divisions should be created in order to carry out the inter-racial work more effectively. In 1950, two of these new divisions were formed in Winnfield, Jonesboro - Hodge area. The Kisatchie division was organized in the early part of the year and C. O. Wilson has served as chairman of the group. J. A. Gaulden of Winnfield has been the commissioner of this division which has provided scouting for a very large number of new boys during the year.

In the Ruston area, the D'Arbonne division was organized during the year with Dean E. L. Cole of Grambling College as division chairman. This division has also experienced a great growth in Scouting and was the host group to a large Negro Scout Camporee in the spring. E. B. Bilberry of Farmerville serves as commissioner of this group.

Frank Land division has just been organized in 1951 to supervise the program in Franklin and Richland parishes. J. Ernest of Wisner has been elected chairman of this group.

In the summer of 1950, the largest camp for Negro boys ever held in northeast Louisiana was conducted near Calhoun with 160 Scouts attending. An excellent program of activities was carried out for these Scouts who camped with their own troops under their own leadership. Scoutcraft activities were a feature of the program and many advancement tests were passed.

Several Negro Scouts and one Negro Scout leader attended the national Scout jamboree held at Valley Forge, Pennsylvania in the month of July to participate in one of the greatest gatherings of Scouts ever held.

Other activities of the divisions include Courts of Honor, in which many Scouts are now obtaining very high ranks in Scouting, and training courses for leaders. It is planned that more and more improved activities will be conducted for Negro Scouts in the Ouachita Valley Council in 1951.

Present Negro Scout Units in the council are: Troop 80, Winnfield; Troop 81, Winnfield; Troop 82, Winnfield; Troop 84, Ansley; Troop 86, Hodge; Pack 86, Hodge; Troop 83, Winnfield; Pack 80, Winnfield; Troop 40, Ruston; Troop 140, Grambling; Troop 141, Ruston; Troop 142, Bernice; Troop 41, Farmerville; Troop 65, Ruston; Troop 66, Monroe; Troop 68, Mon- Troop 61, Monroe; Troop 62, Monroe; Troop 63, West Monroe; Troop 64, Monroe; Troop 66, Monroe; Troop 68, Monroe; Trop 95, Mnre; Pack 61, Monroe; Pack 66, Monroe; Troop 72, Rayville, Troop 73, Rayville; Troop 74, Rayville; Troop 97, Winnsboro; and Troop 100, Wisner.

NEW DISTRICT IS SHOWING GAINS

Progress In Scouting Shown In Parishes Of Union, Lincoln

The Northwest District has been setting the pace for the Ouachita Valley Council in its finance work. These excellent financial accomplishments are the results of many years planning and progressive achievements. Every community in the two parishes (Lincoln and Union) of this district conducts campaigns using the financial plan recommended by the Council. The district has always been strong in its financial work, and 1950 witnessed further gains. Participation such as the Northwest District shows means a finer program of Scouting for any boy that desires to become a Scout.

The district held a spring camporee in connection with the dedication of a new short-term campsite with 116 Scouts in attendance. A very large group of parents and friends of Scouting attended the evening campfire ceremonies and enjoyed the fine program. Fourteen Scouts and leaders attended the recent national Jamboree from this district. Several troops took part in a friendship camporee held at Bernice in the early fall.

The operating committees for the two parishes are among the strongest in the Council and these men work diligently to provide the best program possible for the Scouts. Advancement, training, health and safety, camping, organization and extension, and finance committees carry out the administrative responsibilities of the area.

The district has a very active division for administration of the program of Negro Scouts. This division was organized with the help of Dr. R. W. E. Jones, president of Grambling College, and other key Negro leaders. The chairman of the D'Arbonne Division is Dean E. L. Cole of Grambling College. The division meets each month and has active operating committees. The division is represented on the district Committee by Mr. L. P. McLane, who is a professor at Louisiana Tech.

The Northwest District was very active during the year and organized new units in Simsboro, Live Oak, Ruston, Hico, Bernice, and Marion. Membership has grown in the past two years from 160 to 462. All phases of the operation have kept pace with this increase.

Dr. Marvin T. Green, Ruston, is the chairman of this district and is assisted by L. K. Wells.

A FINE OLD NAME

This message is directed to all persons in the Fifth Congressional District which is the same area covered by Ouachita Valley Council of Boy Scouts of America, Inc.

For 41 years the Boy Scout motto has been

BE PREPARED

Does this mean anything to us, the people? Maybe it does since the atomic scare started. Scouting is not a fly-by-night organization. It was created by an act of Congress. Scouting teaches and trains our youth in the basic principles that are the very foundation of these United States.

The boy learns the SCOUT OATH as follows:

★ Upon my honor, I will do my best, to do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout law.
★ To help other people at all times.

The SCOUT LAW has twelve points as follows:

★ A Scout is trustworthy
★ A Scout is loyal
★ A Scout is helpful
★ A Scout is friendly
★ A Scout is courteous
★ A Scout is kind
★ A Scout is obedient
★ A Scout is cheerful
★ A Scout is thrifty
★ A Scout is brave
★ A Scout is clean
★ A Scout is reverent

What a wonderful world it would be if every man had been a "real true blue" Boy Scout. Scouting is neither military nor anti-military. It carefully avoids political or commercial entanglements. Scouting gives boys a chance to serve their community. Its activities not only give pleasure and knowledge, but they prepare to meet community emergencies. When tornadoes strike, when floods sweep, the Scouts have always proved at once their readiness to serve. Right now Scouting is giving special emphasis to preparation for Civil Defense. This training may save YOUR VERY LIFE!!

The enemies of Democracy are against Scouting—they oppose it at every turn. Many people and many organizations unintentionally and intentionally oppose Scouting. BEWARE THAT YOU ARE NOT AMONG THEM!

Scoutmasters and Leaders are volunteers and serve without pay. Their unselfish leadership helps Scouting become more and more skilled in emergency service. We salute these fine men and their accomplishments. They "Strengthen Liberty" by serving boyhood. They are men of character, men who believe in America, men who are serving a great cause.

Everyone should indicate that he is for the Scouting program by positive action in helping to advance Scouting at every opportunity. Radio Stations and Newspapers should give wide publicity to all good news of Scouting instead of blaring forth with only the bad news. Public officials elected and appointed should aid unselfishly in the program of Scouting, particularly the Mayor, Sheriff, Firechief, and Police Chief. Religious organizations, civic groups and schools should help in every possible way. Parents should see that their children join and participate in and continue the work of Scouting in all its phases. Men and women of all walks of life should volunteer as scouters to aid in teaching Scouting. Scouting is basic and a college degree is not required to instruct a Boy Scout.

Too often we read and forget. Remember that this emergency will be with us for sometime and the Boy Scout that is trained today will be a pillar of strength a few short years from now when he is a man. If 18-year-olds are drafted, they will be men then! So, the man of tomorrow is the Boy Scout of today!

HEART WEEK IS BEING OBSERVED

Mayors Of Twin Cities Issue Proclamations; Goal Is $10,000

Mayor John E. Coon and Mayor C. C. Bell, Jr., of West Monroe issued a proclamation last week proclaiming American Heart Week, February 11-18. The American Heart Association and its affiliates have set aside the week of February 11-18. Including St. Valetine's Day, as American Heart Week which is the high spot of the month-long 1951 Heart Fund Campaign. The goal for Ouachita and Caldwell parish is $10,000.00 and it is hoped that Mr. Cage, general chairman of the local drive, to reach most of that quoto during American Heart Week.

The joint proclamation read as follows:

WHEREAS diseases of the heart and blood vessels constitute our nation's most important medical and public health problem in that they effect more persons than any other disease, lead all other diseases as a cause of death, and are serious social and economic burden, and

WHEREAS the week including February 14 each year is being sponsored by the American Heart Association as American Heart Week for the purpose of focusing public attention on the medical, social and economic aspects of the primary health problem, and of reminding the nation that solution depends upon the fullest cooperation of the people, science, government, and health and social agencies:

NOW, THEREFORE, WE—John E. Coon and C. C. Bell, Jr., mayors of Monroe and West Monroe do hereby order that the week beginning February 11, 1951 be observed in the cities of Monroe and West Monroe as American Heart Week. We further call upon schools, churches, scientific bodies, civic associations, business establishment, and other organization and the people of the Twin Cities generally, to observe this American Heart Week with appropriate activities.

Signed:
John E. Coon,
Mayor Monroe, La.
C. C. Bell, Jr.,
Mayor West Monroe, La.

Our aid in this drive, said Mr. Cage, general chairman . . . can bring that day closer. During American Heart week an all out effort will be put forth in the Twin Cities to reach our quoto of $10,000.00. The most valuable assistance we can give, he said, is financial support to our local heart association which has taken the leadership in Ouachita and Caldwell parish. Perhaps the most loving Valentine we can give to those we hold dear is our generous contribution to the 1951 Heart Fund.

Plastic Heart containers have already been placed in the schools. The distribution of plastic heart containers in business districts of Monroe and West Monroe will begin Monday, February 12th. In Monroe the distribution will be made by members of the Junior Charity League and in West Monroe by the La. Tertulia Club group.

Six Airplane Lines Are Given Turn Down

The Civil Aeronautics Board Saturday declined the applications of six airlines that have been vieing for the privilege of inaugurating the first transcontinental route across the southern states.

The board also spoke strongly in favor of equipment interchange agreements between carriers to provide long haul service not at present being offered.

Interchange agreements to provide a southern service to the west were specifically outlined in its decision as alternative to the new transcontinental route a number of the carriers had sought.

The interchange agreements approved today are:

1. Between Delta and American to provide service between Atlanta and Birmingham on the Delta system and points west of Dallas work.

2. Between National, Delta and American to provide service between Miami, Tampa, New Orleans, Dallas and Ft. Worth and points west of Ft. Worth on the American network.

It also allows an agreement between Braniff, Continental and American to provide one plane service to the west for Houston-Austin-San Antonio traffic.

EVACUATION ORDERED

Bangkok — (AP) —Four American firms here have been ordered by their head offices to evacuate wives and children of American personnel immediately.

A spokesman of one of the firms said the action was a "commonsense move." He pointed out many of those affected had been interned in various parts of the far east by the Japanese during the last war. The move will not affect operation of the firms involved, the spokesman added.

WELL, WHERE'S THE SMIRKING LEER OF TRIUMPH, O'HARA ? HASN'T SNAPPER BRASSARD JUST TOLD YOU HE LOVED YOU ? ASKED YOU TO MARRY HIM ?
SNAPPER'S PEGGED AS A MARTINET— A DRIVER WITH A BOOK OF AIR FORCE REGULATIONS FOR A SOUL, BUT THE SAME FLY-GUYS WHO FEAR HIM RESPECT HIM. THAT SHELL ISN'T TOO THICK, ANYHOW, AND WHEN IT CRACKS, HE'S WARM AND HUMAN.

THE PLANE SINKS FAST.
SAVE YOUR BREATH. THEY'RE SAILING AWAY FROM US.
SHARKS, TUAN JIM! THEY SMELL BLOOD!
SWIM AWAY, JUNE. HEAD FOR SHORE. I'LL HELP KOLU.

THANK YOU FOR RESCUING US. I THOUGHT YOU DIDN'T SEE US.

FLASH BARELY HAS TIME TO BALANCE THE HEAVY GRATING OVER THE PASSAGE WHEN THE LOCKED DOOR SWINGS OPEN. LIKE ANGRY ANTS, THE WIZARDS' TROUBLE-SHOOTERS SWARM OUT OF THE TUNNEL WITH TOOLS AND WEAPONS.

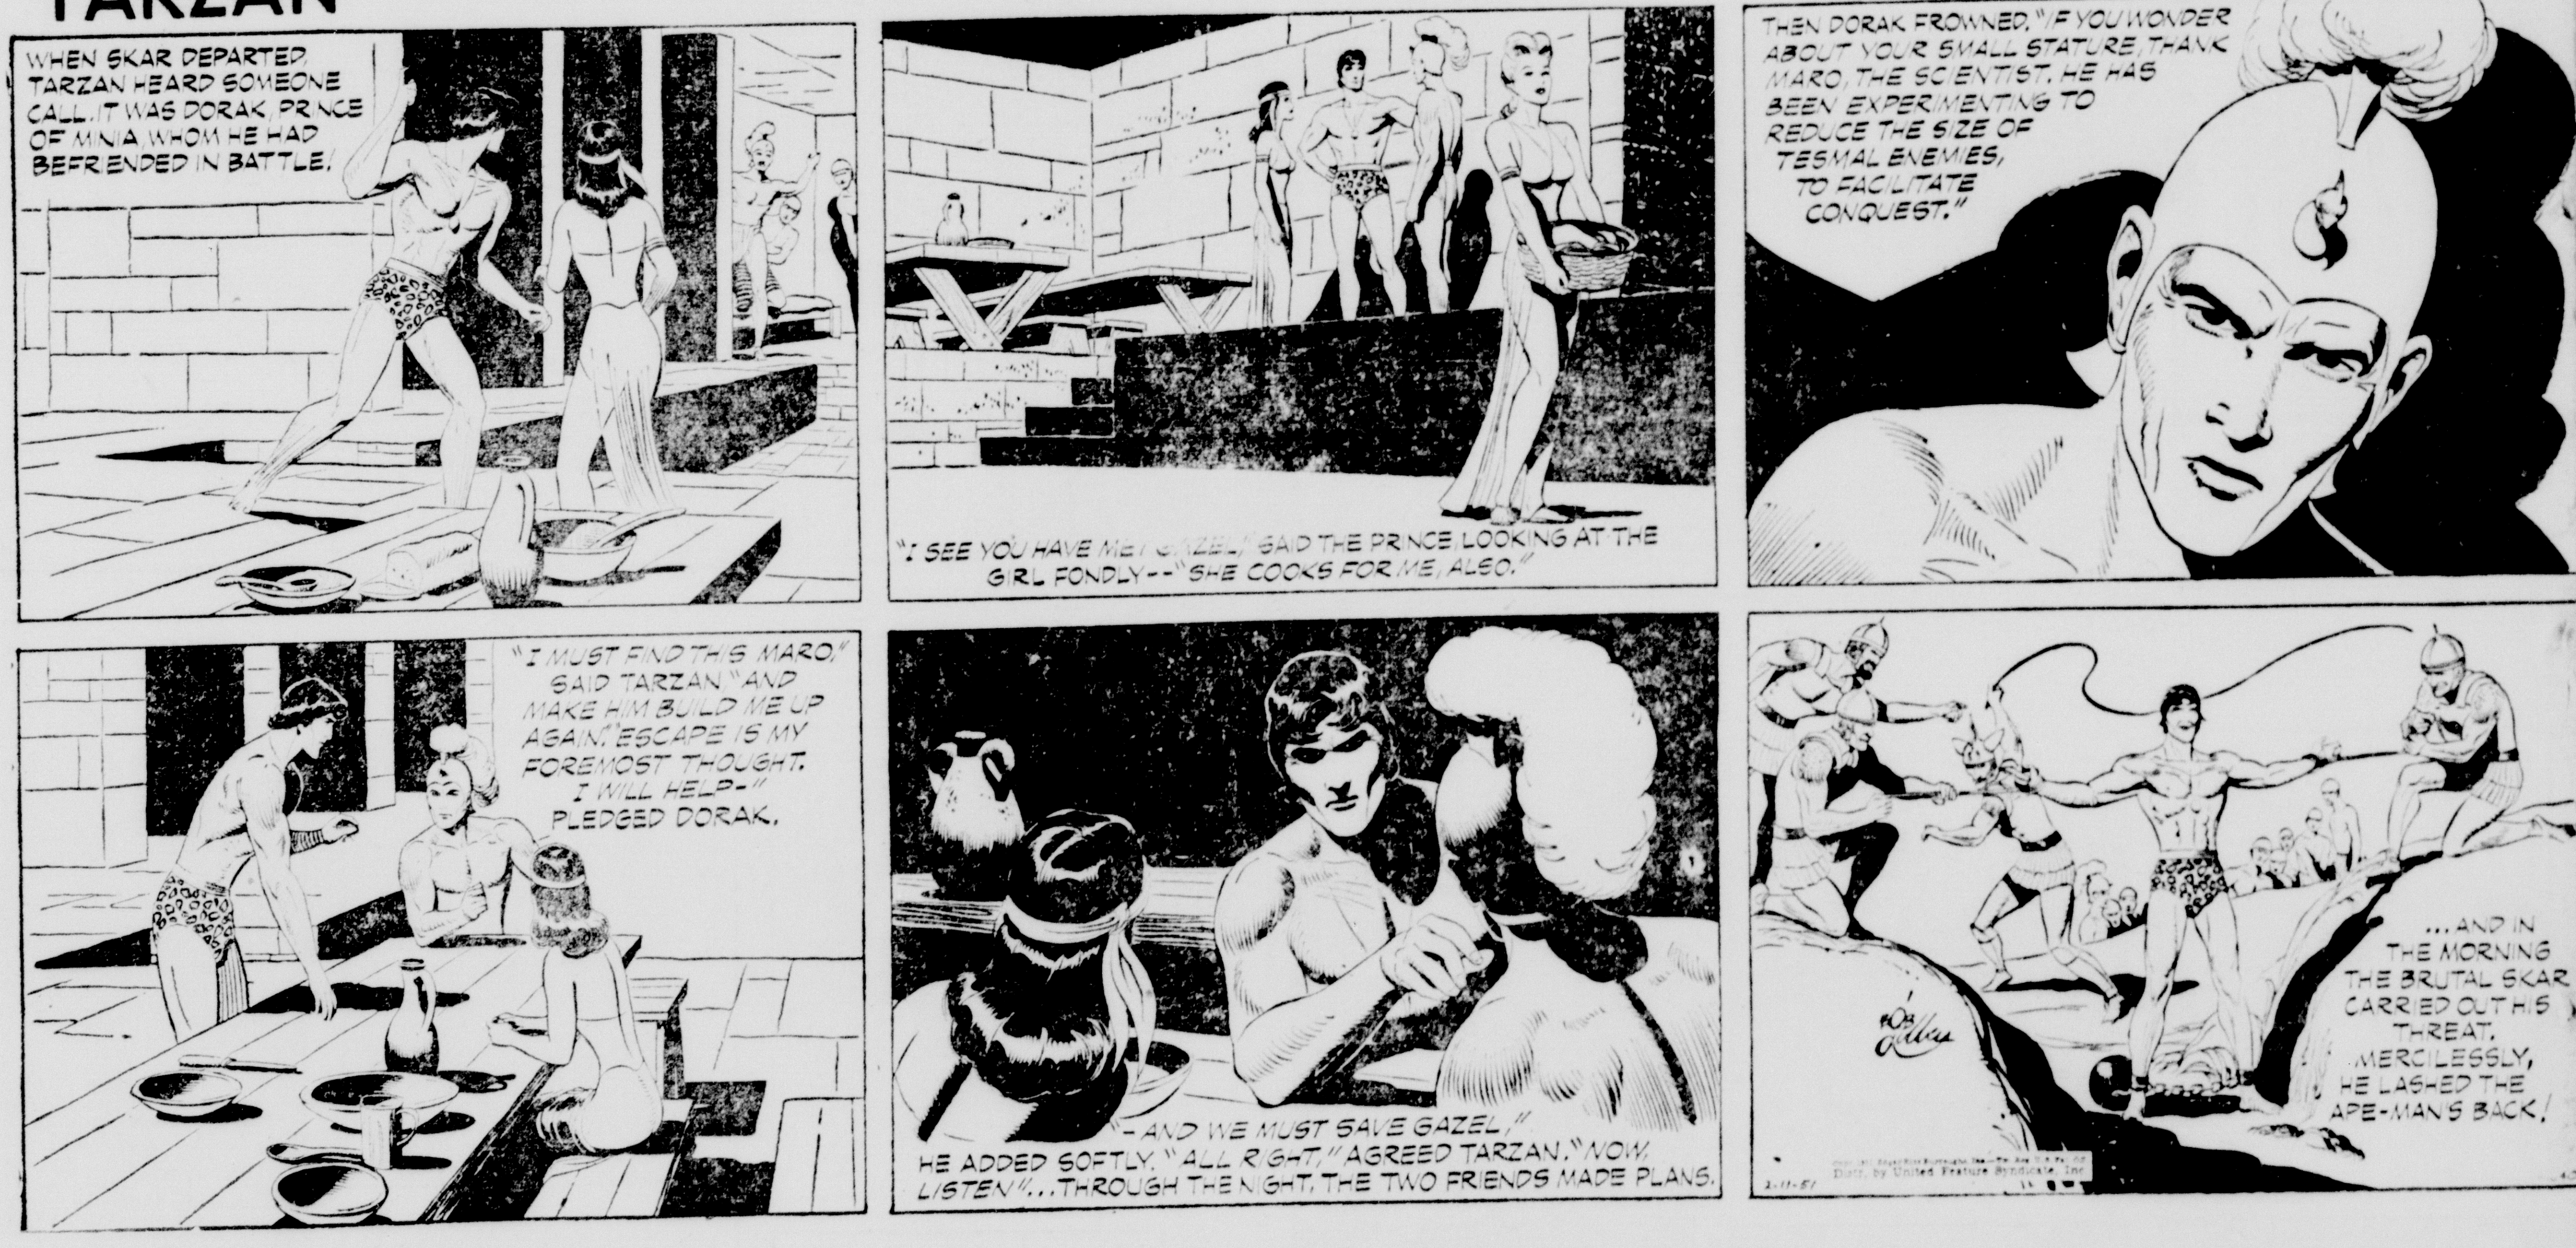
TARZAN

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS



WHEN SKAR DEPARTED, TARZAN HEARD SOMEONE CALL. IT WAS DORAK, PRINCE OF MINIA, WHOM HE HAD BEFRIENDED IN BATTLE.
"I SEE YOU HAVE MET GAZEL," SAID THE PRINCE, LOOKING AT THE GIRL FONDLY--"SHE COOKS FOR ME, ALSO."
THEN DORAK FROWNED. "IF YOU WONDER ABOUT YOUR SMALL STATURE, THANK MARO, THE SCIENTIST. HE HAS BEEN EXPERIMENTING TO REDUCE THE SIZE OF TESMAL ENEMIES, TO FACILITATE CONQUEST."
"I MUST FIND THIS MARO," SAID TARZAN, "AND MAKE HIM BUILD ME UP AGAIN." "ESCAPE IS MY FOREMOST THOUGHT. I WILL HELP-" PLEDGED DORAK.
"-AND WE MUST SAVE GAZEL," HE ADDED SOFTLY. "ALL RIGHT," AGREED TARZAN. "NOW, LISTEN"... THROUGH THE NIGHT, THE TWO FRIENDS MADE PLANS.
...AND IN THE MORNING THE BRUTAL SKAR CARRIED OUT HIS THREAT. MERCILESSLY, HE LASHED THE APE-MAN'S BACK!
